ESTIMATED OUTTURN OF THE RUBBEE HARVEST AND OF IMPORTANT CROPS SUCH AS JUTE, TOBACCO, &c.

No. 917Agri., dated Calcutta, the 12th-16th May 1888.

From—E. W. COLLIN, Esq., c.s., Offg. Director of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, Bengal.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department.

IN continuation of Mr. Finucane's letter No. 51Agri., dated 10th January 1888, I have the honour to submit the report called for in your letter No. 408—9Fam., dated the 8th February 1887, regarding the estimated outturn of the rubber harvest and of important special crops, such as jute, tobacco and others.

2. The statistics given in the appended tables have been compiled in the manner described by Mr. Finucane in his letter submitting the previous return, and the figures which are given cannot lay claim to complete accuracy. The letter from Mr. Finucane, calling upon District Officers for the information, and giving instructions as to the manner in which the statistics should be compiled, has been already submitted to you, and explains the system which was adopted.

3. The season was generally unfavourable to the rubbee harvest. There was a late rain in October which injured the sowings, and the winter rains were delayed till late in January, and thus were of little benefit. The outturn of the rubbee harvest, as was to be expected under these conditions, is reported to have been deficient throughout Behar, Chota Nagpore and the Bhagulpore Division. Wheat is reported to have been little more than half an average crop; but other crops, such as gram, rahur, barley, and mustard, were not much below the average, except in Chota Nagpore where, however, there is said to be no cause for anxiety. Some injury to wheat was also caused by insects in the Patna district. The dryness of the season was equally unfavourable to the rubbee harvest in Eastern and South-Eastern Bengal, except in parts of the Dacca Division where the mustard crop was rather over the average. In the Chittagong Division the deficiency of the rainfall in autumn, which was unfavourable to the winter rice crop, had a good effect on the cold weather harvest, while in Orissa the outturn of the rubbee crops was better than usual. In no locality was the crop worse than half a crop, except in parts of the Darjeeling district, especially in the Terai, and of the Chota Nagpore Division. The good mohwa crop will, however, afford some compensation to the latter.

4. The returns which are appended do not distinguish the areas cultivated with the different rubbee crops, so that it is impossible to estimate the total area on which wheat or any other crop is grown. An attempt will be made to remedy this defect in future, though in consequence of the absence of any accurate information on the subject, it will not be possible to guarantee the accuracy of such returns.

5. The important special crops, regarding which information has been collected, were sugarcane, jute, tobacco, ganja, opium, mulberry, and potatoes. Sugarcane was generally a better crop than in the preceding year throughout East and South-East Bengal. It was, however, an indifferent crop in Bhagulpore and Behar, and was almost a failure in Shahabad. The deficiency of outturn in that district is attributed to excessive rainfall during the planting season, and to the ravages of grasshoppers. Tobacco was an average crop in the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions, but gave an inferior outturn throughout the Rajshahye Division, especially in Kungpore, where it is largely grown. In the Behar districts reports vary. In Durbhunga the tobacco crop is said to have been a bumper one; while in the neighbouring district of Mozufferpore it was less than a three-quarter crop. In Orissa, where a considerable amount of tobacco is grown, the outturn was better than in the preceding year. Jute, so far as it has been reported on, is shown to have suffered to some extent from the want of seasonable rain and, in Nuddea, from floods. The opium crop was better than in the previous year, while the mulberry and potato crops were rather below the average.

6. The area under the several crops has not been separately shown in the return, and hence it is not possible to make an estimate of the total area cultivated with any special crops. District Officers will be requested to separate the areas under the different crops in future reports.

CALCUTTA, the 18th May 1888.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN ASSAM FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 18TH OF MAY 1888.

At the close of the previous week the meteorological conditions in Bengal were of the ordinary hot-weather nature, and except that a few local storms with rain continued to occur in most of the divisions, there were no points calling for any particular remark. In the south of the Bay, however, conditions had distinctly altered, and the first advance of south-westerly monsoon winds had taken place at the South Ceylon stations, and in front of this advance a small cyclonic storm had formed, the centre of which was situated on Friday, the 11th, a short distance from the South Madras coast to the east-north-east of Negapatam. The storm was by no means an intense one, and it during the night of the 11th advanced across the coast in a westerly or west-north-westerly direction, the centre apparently passing near Cuddalore, and on the morning of the 12th the centre was well inland to the north-west of Negapatam. Though the storm was by no means an intense one, yet it gave strong winds, a rough sea, and rather squally weather along the whole of the coast from Madras southwards. On the 13th the small storm had again advanced in a north-westerly direction, but it had rather rapidly filled up, and had practically disappeared. This advance of the monsoon winds was rather a feeble one, and it does not appear to have advanced as a definite moisture bearing current very far up the Bay, but the low pressure, which apparently accompanied its advance in the south of the Bay, afterwards spread in a northerly direction, and a wave, or perhaps two waves of decidedly low pressure, have advanced over the Bay into Bengal. The first rapid fall of pressure in the north of the Bay took place on the 13th, and continued on the 14th, when at some stations pressure fell by no less than a fifth of an inch during the two days; on the 15th there was a slight recovery; but on the 16th a further very rapid fall commenced, which was greatest on the Burma coast and in Orissa, and there was again a very large decrease on the 17th off the Arakan and Pegu coasts, the fall in some cases exceeding 0.15 inch. This caused a very distinct low-pressure area to be formed to the south-west of Akyab, and this diffused depression was accompanied by a distinct cyclonic circulation of winds. The depression probably gave somewhat squally weather over the northern half of the Bay on this day; but it did not concentrate or develop into any definite storm, and on the following day the area of low pressure advanced over South Bengal, when the pressure recorded became extremely low, as for instance Balasore registered 29.544 inches—a pressure almost as low as is generally recorded at the commencement of the rainy season. Beyond, however, this abnormal pressure and bringing up with it moderately strong, but very moist, winds, and giving rather numerous showers, the depression did not influence the weather in Bengal to any material extent, and it subsequently passed into the interior of the province and afterwards appeared in Behar.

The conditions in Bengal during the week have been therefore slightly more disturbed than they were in the previous week, and local storms with rain have again been rather numerous, particularly after the appearance of the low pressures above recorded. These storms have again been most numerous in East and North Bengal, and less numerous in North Behar, South-West Bengal and Orissa, but still a few showers have fallen in the present week in South Behar, though in Chutia Nagpore rainfall has been almost absent. In Assam moderate rain has fallen almost throughout the week.

Pressure—Had at the end of the previous week been nearly a fifth of an inch above the normal over a large part of the province, but the changes during the present week have caused the mean pressure to become below the normal, and taking into consideration only those stations from which records have been received for a long series of years, the average pressure of the province of Bengal for the week has been 0.04 inch in defect of the normal, the defect being largest at such stations as Calcutta, Berhampore, Purneah, and Durbhuaga, where it equals 0.05 inch. In Assam the mean defect is even larger, and it equals 0.052 inch. On Friday, the 18th, pressure was generally in defect of the normal by amounts varying from a tenth to a fifth of an inch.

Temperature.—The variations of temperature during the week have been of little importance, and it has been rather largely above the normal in almost all districts. In Chutia Nagpur the excess in the mean temperature has averaged about four degrees; in South Behar, South-West Bengal, and Orissa it has averaged about three degrees; in East Bengal nearly two degrees, and in North Bengal and North Behar less than one. For the whole of Bengal temperature has therefore been 2.2° in excess of the normal. In Assam, on the other hand, the variation has been small, and temperature has been in excess of the normal by only 0.3°. The highest maximum temperatures reported this week have been 111.9° at Dehree on the 17th and 109.4° at Cuttack also on the 17th.

Rainfall—Has been rather below the normal over the whole province. In East Bengal the fall has averaged 1.90 inches, which is equal to the normal fall. North Bengal has received an average fall of a little more than an inch, or about two-thirds of the normal. The fall in Orissa has been about half an inch, or little more than half the usual fall; while in North Behar it has only averaged four-tenths of an inch, or about two-thirds of the normal fall. In South-West Bengal an average fall of little more than a third of an inch is reported, or about a third of the ordinary fall at this period. In South Behar the fall has only averaged a little more than a quarter of an inch which is, however, about two-thirds of the normal fall, while Chutia Nagpur has been almost rainless.

Taking up the rainfall rather more in detail, the following districts have received fairly good falls: in South-West Bengal—24 Pergunnahs, Howrah, and Hooghly; in East Bengal—Chittagong, Noakhally, Tipperah, and Mymensingh; in North Bengal—Pubna, Bogra, and Rajshahye; in North Behar—Purneah and Durbhuaga; and in South Behar—the Moughyr and Sonthal Pergunnahs districts. On the other hand, the following districts have received very deficient rainfall: in Orissa—the Poores and Outtaak districts; in South-West Bengal—Midnapore, Burdwan, Birbhoom, Moorshedabad, Nuddea, Khoolna, and Jessore; in East Bengal—Burrissal, Furreedpore, and Dacca; in North Behar—Mozufferpore, Champaran, and Sarun; in South Behar—Shahabad, Patna, and Gaya; and in Chutia Nagpur—all districts.

In Assam during the week Silchar has received 4.22 inches, Sibsagar 3.55 inches, and Dhubri 3.51 inches.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph and from observations made at 6h, 10 16h, and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

RED SEA.

Further particulars regarding the position of the wrecks of the Avocet and Teddington.

The following Notice to Mariners, issued by the British Admiralty, London (No. 115 of the year 1898), is re-published with reference to Nos. 51 (1) and 54, dated respectively the 19th August and 15th September 1887, and previous orders on the subject, issued by this Department.

With reference to Notice to Mariners, No. 190 of 1887, on reported sunken rocks northward of Jebel Zukur island:—

Telegraphic information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander T. F. Pullen, H. M.'s. Surveying Vessel Stork, that he has found a small coral patch, with a least depth of 15 feet, situated in lat. $14^{\circ} 22' 8''$ N., long. $42^{\circ} 41' 32''$ E.

This is undoubtedly the danger on which the steam vessels Avocet and Teddington struck during last year. It lies midway between the two best positions, which, from conflicting evidence, could be assigned to the respective vessels when they struck. The depths around the rock are 28 to 30 fathoms.

The Stork's search is the fourth that has been made by H. M.'s. ships before this small danger has been re-discovered.

Vessels passing down the Red Sea should keep to the westward of this rock, and should remember that irregular lateral currents sometimes set across the sea; and if, when on the homeward voyage, they pass eastward of Abu Ail, care should be taken to steer to the westward after rounding that island, until Jebel Zukur summit bears about S.S.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E.

There is little doubt that the loss of the Avocet was due to one of the lateral currents above mentioned, as not only was the steam vessel St. Oswald in company with the Avocet, also to the eastward of the correct track, but other vessels passed on both sides of the two vessels while stopped to save the crew of the Avocet.

THE Council met at the Council Chamber on Saturday, 12th May 1888, at 11 A.M.

Present:

THE HON. SIR STEUART COLVIN BAYLEY, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, presiding.
 THE HON. G. C. PAUL, C.I.E., Advocate-General.

 THE HON. H. PRATT.

BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

THE HON. MR. MACAULAY moved that the Bill to amend the Bengal Municipal Act, III of 1884, be passed.

The motion was put and agreed to, and the Bill was then passed.

HOWRAH BRIDGE ACT AMENDMENT BILL.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend the Howrah Bridge Act, IX of 1871.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY also moved that the Report of the Select Committee be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses of the Bill be considered in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. MR. MACAULAY also moved that the Bill as amended be passed. The motion was put and agreed to, and the Bill was then passed.

CALCUTTA AND SUBURBAN MUNICIPALITIES AMALGAMATION BILL.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that the clauses of the Bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to the Municipal Affairs of the Town and Suburbs of Calcutta, as further amended, be further considered in the form recommended by the Select Committee.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. BABU KAIL NATH MITTER moved that such of the sections of the Municipal Bill to which objections have been taken by those residents of Calcutta who have memorialized His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor on the subject, and which had been passed previous to the receipt of their memorial, be reconsidered.

He said:—On the 17th of April last a memorial was presented to Your Honour by a deputation appointed by a public meeting in the Town Hall, and in answer to that memorial Your Honour was pleased to say:—

“Your memorial will, however, be duly laid before the Council, and if the Council should wish to have any of the points enumerated re-opened and reconsidered, I shall not allow a technical objection to stand in the way.”

If my memory serves me right, at the meeting of the Council on the 18th April, Your Honour referred to this memorial, and also then said pretty nearly the same thing as you stated to the deputation which waited on you. Availing myself of what Your Honour then said, I thought the practical way to give effect to it was to bring forward this motion, because the matter could not otherwise be discussed and considered. The memorial, I think, was circulated to the Council before the meeting of the 21st April, and the first section of the Bill which was considered on that day was section 235, so that, if this motion of mine is now carried, the sections prior to 235 would have to be reconsidered. I do not mean that all those sections would be reconsidered, but only those to which exception has been taken by the memorialists. In going through the memorial, it seemed to me that only a small number of sections would require reconsideration, such, for instance, as the sections which relate to the constitution of the Municipality, the section about the appointment of the Chairman, the sections about the control which the Local Government should exercise over the Municipality, and the section about the general Committee, and that about the assessment of house property. I think these are all the sections which would have to be reconsidered if my motion is carried. I do not wish to take up the time of the Council by entering into those matters now, because in the course of the various amendments which I moved I fully discussed those questions. I will only remind the Council that the body which presented the memorial belong to an important community, and that being so, their representations should have some effect on the Council. To my mind the result will be clear. I do not for a moment anticipate that the result will be in any way different from what it has been, or that any amendments I may bring forward will share a better fate than those I had the honour to place before the Council at its earlier meetings. But still I think it my duty to take advantage of the statement made by Your Honour that you will not allow any technical objections to stand in the way of reconsidering these questions if the Council so desire; and I therefore make this motion for discussion by the Council.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said:—I think that what the hon. member has just said is perfectly correct, and that he is quite within his right under the special circumstances of the case in asking for an opportunity of getting an expression of opinion from the Council on the question he has raised. In deference to the important body that deputed the gentlemen referred to with the memorial, I said on that occasion that, though a great many of the sections of this Bill to which they objected had already been considered by the Council, I should not, if the Council wished to reconsider them, let any technical difficulty stand in the way. The question has practically been left dormant from that time to this, and now the hon. gentleman takes the opportunity of raising the question whether the Council does or does not mean to reconsider these sections. I think, in consideration of what I said before, that the most respectful way I can deal with this question is simply to put it to the Council.

THE HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—Being the member in charge of this Bill, I can have no objection to any reconsideration of the Bill, because it is my conviction that the overwhelming force of argument and reason is on the side of the decisions to which the Council has already come in respect of the several matters to which the hon. member has referred, and a rediscussion would only serve to bring out that preponderance of argument and reason still more forcibly. But looking at the motion from the point of view of the Council, I would ask whether any useful purpose can be served by re-opening the consideration of these questions. My hon. friend has himself made a statement which, I think, closes the door to any further discussion, namely, that it will make no difference in the result. If he rightly diagnoses the effect of the rediscussion of these questions, which would occupy at least one or two sittings of the Council, what useful purpose would be served by further discussions in which the same arguments would be repeated, and the result of which the hon. member himself virtually acknowledges would be inevitably the same as before?

THE HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said:—The hon. mover of the motion before the Council himself took a most prominent part in the discussion of these sections and stated fully his arguments, and I take it that we ought not to be asked to reconsider the sections or arguments which have already been adduced. Unless the hon. member can adduce additional arguments, throwing further light on the discussions which have taken place, I don't think we ought to re-open the consideration of these questions. I have not heard a single additional argument in respect of any of these questions, and that being so, we are not in a position to take the matter into consideration again. That an important section of the community has taken objection to these provisions is no doubt a matter of significance, but that taken by itself, without any additional arguments being adduced to support those objections, affords no sufficient reason for reconsidering matters which have already been fully discussed. Are we to discuss questions again on grounds which have already been discussed? I apprehend that is not a procedure we should be called upon to adopt. No fresh grounds having been put forward, I shall therefore vote against the motion.

THE HON. DR. GOOROO DASS BANERJEE said:—I wish to say one word in support of the motion. Although it may be quite true that the speculative reasons which may be advanced for and against any of the matters which have already been settled may be the same as before, still as many of the points which were discussed involve matters of opinion more than matters of mathematical demonstration, the views and sentiments of a large and important section of the community ought properly to be taken into consideration. The fact that the Council has now before it the formulated expressions of opinion of a very large and important section of the community is of itself a reason why, if the Council be so disposed, these questions might be reconsidered in the light of those opinions, and with the additional information that those views convey to us. The parties who are most likely to be affected by the provisions of the Bill have also a right to say what they think about those provisions; they have said something, and we may fairly take into consideration what they have said.

The HON. BABU KALI NATH MITTER said :—In reply I will simply point out that the very fact that an important section of the community has taken serious objection to many provisions of the Bill is a strong argument in favour of their reconsideration. It is one thing to discuss and decide a matter without knowing the views of the community which are most affected by the provisions of the Bill, and it is another thing to discuss them in the light thrown on the discussion by that community coming forward and making a representation before Your Honour. Therefore it is not necessary for me to advance any argument in favour of this motion in the way pointed out by the hon. and learned Advocate-General. No doubt, if I have to argue these sections again, I would argue them in the same manner as I did before, adding thereto the opinions and representations submitted by the memorialists; and therefore the mere fact that I do not advance any fresh arguments now is, I submit, not a sufficient reason for refusing to consider this matter. For after all, who are the persons most interested? They are the persons who have come forward to offer suggestions. As far as this Council is concerned, it may pass the Bill, and there its responsibilities and its duties cease; but as far as the outside public is concerned, they will be affected by these provisions almost daily, and therefore I submit it will only be gracious on the part of the Council if they accede to this motion. The hon. member in charge of the Bill complains that there would be one or two additional sittings of the Council; but considering the amount of time we have spent upon the consideration of this Bill, I do not think that argument should at all influence my colleagues. If for the interests of the public there should be two or three or even four meetings more, I do not think we should grudge them. My hon. friend referred to my own sentiment on the subject. I have formed the impression that as far as the present Council is concerned, I do not think it will be possible to have modifications introduced in the sections which have already been passed. I have formed that impression after careful consideration: but that is neither here nor there. Certain persons have come forward and raised serious objections to several very important sections of the Bill, and it would only be gracious on the part of the Council to yield to those representations and to reconsider those provisions.

The motion being put, the Council divided:—

His Honour the President.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said :—I have now to move a series of amendments in the Bill before the motion finally to pass it is brought forward, and I must ask the indulgence of the Council, and remind them that in a large measure of this kind there must be a number of flaws, and the object of these amendments is simply to remove some of them. The first of these amendments was brought to my notice by the Hon. Mr. Reynolds, who pointed out that section 460, which provides for the preparation of the budget in anticipation, is in a part of the Act which will not come into force before the 1st of April. It is therefore necessary to provide that that section and the schedule appended to it shall come into force on an earlier date, and with this object I move that, to section 1, the following be added:—

“And section four hundred and sixty and the schedule referred to therein, shall come into force from the 1st January 1889.”

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said :—The next amendment has reference to a certain difficulty, especially in the added area, owing to the fact of there being owners and sub-owners in possibly two or three grades, and possibly also occupiers, though that does not come in here, and is of less importance.

The present Act places the liability of ownership on the person who receives the rent; but several persons may be receiving the rent. In the Mofussil Act the words are "every person who is entitled to receive any rent in respect of land"—not as proprietor, for that is already met, but in the various grades of sub-proprietors, such as a mokuridar, durmokuridar, as well as a lakhirajdar, and in that case each one of them would come under the definition of "owner," because each would be receiving rent from the land. I therefore move that in line 2 of clause (a) of the definition of "owner" in section 3, for the word "rent" the words "any of the rent" be substituted.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that, in line 4 of section 8, for the words "resident in Calcutta" the words "residing or paying rates in Calcutta" be substituted; also that, in line 11 of section 4, for "residing, carrying on business, or personally working for gain in Calcutta" the words "residing or paying rates in Calcutta" be substituted; also that, in line 4 of section 9, after "resides" the words "or pays rates" be inserted.

He said:—I shall explain to the Council that some amendment is necessary here, and it is for them to say whether these or any other amendments should be made. According to my view it is desirable first to amend section 8, and therefore I preferred to put this amendment first. But the difficulty may also be met by altering the section in another way. I will first refer to section 14, which provides that any person qualified to vote under any of the preceding sections shall, subject to the provisions of section 12, be qualified to be elected a Commissioner. So the qualification to be elected is the same as the qualification to vote. But by section 4 the seventy-five members shall be male persons, "residing, carrying on business, or personally working for gain in Calcutta," while by section 8 the electors must reside in Calcutta. How are these two sections to be reconciled? First the qualification to vote and the qualification to be elected are the same; but the qualification to vote requires residence, whereas the qualification to be elected may be either residence or working for gain or carrying on business. The reconciliation I propose is to substitute for "resident" the words "residing or paying rates." That seems a fair and not embarrassing way of reconciling the difference; and if that is done, we must put in the same words in section 4. If, on the other hand, we take the words of section 4 and put them in section 8, we shall have to alter several other sections. A person who pays no rates at present is not supposed to vote; if he resides in Calcutta, he can be qualified by paying taxes. But the section which provides for the place of voting says that a person qualified under clause (d) of section 8, which refers to the payment of the trades and professions tax, shall, if he pays rates directly to the Commissioners for his place of business, vote in the ward in which his place of business is situated, or if he does not pay rates for any place of business directly to the Commissioners, he shall vote in the ward in which he resides. That presumes that he must do one or the other. The amendment which I propose will meet the difficulty, and seems on the whole reasonable and fair. A person who resides out of Calcutta and only comes to his office and does his work there has the smallest possible interest in the town, but a person who either resides in the town or pays rates on account of property has a substantial interest. That is the reason why I have selected this solution of the difficulty.

The HON. MR. ALLEN said:—I wish to ask the hon. member in charge of the Bill whether there is such an antagonism as he supposes. The qualifications for election are laid down in section 8, and I understand these are exactly the same qualifications which are required in respect of the persons to be elected and those who are to elect them, and therefore so far the Bill is perfectly harmonious. The discrepancy is supposed to be between sections 4 and 8. But section 4 lays down a rule not only for the 50 Commissioners to be elected, but also for the other 25 Commissioners to be nominated. That is a wider rule. It allows the 25 Commissioners not elected to be qualified in a different manner. [The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison—"That may be the meaning, but that is not intended."] It is quite easy to give effect to the two sections; for before a person can be proposed as a candidate for election, he must fulfil the conditions prescribed in section 8, which are quite consistent with the qualifications further on in the Act. But the 25 Commissioners to be nominated, which is the difference between 75 and 50, do not require such strict qualifications. It would be open to the Government to nominate a person who may be carrying on business or personally working for gain, even though he does not reside in Calcutta. I do not see that there is any inconsistency or that there is any necessity for making any change.

The HON. SIR ALFRED CROFT said:—This very point was discussed and decided in the opposite sense. An amendment was proposed that instead of "male persons resident in Calcutta" it should be "male persons residing or paying rates in Calcutta," but the hon. member in charge of the Bill was opposed to the change.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said:—I think the Hon. Sir Alfred Croft is right in saying that the literal point contained in this amendment was decided before, but it was decided without any reference to those grounds upon which the hon. member in charge of the Bill now proposes to amend what appears to be a contradiction between the two sections. I do not think there is any objection to the question being discussed now. It is a technical amendment,—really an amendment in drafting,—although it does involve a change of the rule on general grounds.

The HON. DR. GOOROO DASS BANERJEE said:—I submit that there is really some antagonism between sections 4 and 8 of the Bill; but supposing that there were none, the argument of my hon. friend on my left (Mr. Allen) would go to show that the ground upon which the two sections are proposed to be reconciled is itself a most objectionable ground, and if that ground holds good, this amendment is the more necessary. It is as regards the fifty elected Commissioners that the qualification of residence applies, but as regards the remaining twenty-five Commissioners that qualification is unnecessary. If that is so, you will give greater latitude of selection to the special constituencies, such as the Chamber of Commerce, the Trades' Association, and the Port Commissioners, than you do to the general body of electors. Is that fair?

The HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said:—It may be said in one sense that section 8 cuts down the meaning of section 4, because it is a subsequent section. Every one of the seventy-five Commissioners must be qualified as in section 4, and then section 8 says that the fifty Commissioners to be elected must come from a more limited class. But, as the hon. member who spoke last has said, all the Commissioners should be of the same class, whether they are elected Commissioners, or Commissioners nominated by the Government or the other special constituencies. If the hon. member in charge of the Bill is right, that a person who comes to Calcutta merely to work at a Government office during so many hours in the day can be said to have only a transitory interest in the town, the qualification should be so defined that only those should have votes who have a permanent interest in the town.

The HON. BARU KALI NATH MITTER said:—Section 4 provides that the seventy-five members shall be male persons, residing, carrying on business, or personally working for gain in Calcutta, and section 8 says that of the remaining members fifty shall be elected as hereinafter provided by male persons resident in Calcutta. Why should not this section be on precisely the same footing as section 4? The words "carrying on business" have a recognised meaning; there are many decisions of the High Court which have given them a special meaning, and they are better understood than the words "paying rates." I therefore submit that if there is to be any modification at all, it should be on the lines of section 4. But I would point out that an amendment of this sort is not a verbal amendment. It is an amendment which goes to the merits of the section. [His Honour the President—"It has been decided on the merits, but the ground for the amendment is the discovery of a contradiction."] This matter was fully discussed, because my hon. friend opposite (Dr. Gooroo Dass Banerjee) brought forward amendments on all these sections, and the hon. member in charge of the Bill objected to all of them, as he would do to every amendment which might be brought forward. [His Honour the President—"I don't think this particular point was brought forward. We were then not aware of the contradiction in terms. If the fact was as you say, you are right in objecting on a point of order."]

The HON. SIR ALFRED CROFT said:—On the 4th of February last, the hon. member opposite (Dr. Gooroo Dass Banerjee) proposed to substitute the words “residing or paying rates in Calcutta” for the words “resident in Calcutta,” in section 8, defining the qualification of voters. Upon this the hon. member in charge of the Bill said:—

“I do not attach any very great importance to this question; but on the whole I think it better to leave the Bill as it stands. As long as the the Suburbs and Calcutta were under entirely different bodies, a very large number of persons came into Calcutta from the Suburbs for purposes of business. Now these persons will be in Calcutta, and therefore the amendment will be inoperative; but under the amendment some persons living out of the enlarged Calcutta, such as Howrah or up the line, would still get a vote for the business which they carry on in Calcutta, and it is on the whole but fair that those who do not reside within the limits of the Municipality should leave the administration of its affairs to those who do.”

The business which they carry on includes, I presume, business premises for which they pay rates, and I myself voted in favour of the amendment. I think that only fair; because a man who sleeps out of Calcutta, but carries on his business in Calcutta all day, has just as great an interest in the good government of the town as the man who lives in Calcutta, but carries on his business in the railway yard across at Howrah. On that ground I support the present amendment, as I did the previous one. But when I take the amendment in connection with what the hon. member proposes to move in section 9, I find a difficulty. By that amendment he proposes that any person qualified to vote under clauses (a) to (c) of section 8, shall vote in the ward in which he resides or pays rates. Clause (e) of section 8 says “having paid on his sole account and in his own name not less than Rs. 24 either in respect of rates levied under Chapter IV or in respect of taxes under Part I and Part II of Chapter III.” Now Part II of Chapter III refers to the carriage tax and the license tax. We have already discussed the question whether a person who pays the license tax but resides out of Calcutta should vote, and it was decided that he should not vote. So that unless it is clearly understood in section 9 that paying rates does not include paying taxes, this amendment will include a number of persons as qualified to vote who were declared to be disqualified under the previous amendment.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—I think it is more than ever necessary that the Council should accept this amendment; not only because it is the only key by which a number of locks in the sections which follow can be opened, but because what my hon. friend has just pointed out was specially taken into consideration. I myself do not see any contradiction. Clause (e) of section 8 gives everybody who pays taxes to the amount of Rs. 24 a right to vote, provided he is otherwise qualified. Now that qualification will not accrue unless he resides in the town, or pays rates. He can help out his qualification by the payment of taxes, and that was always intended, but the essential qualification must be that he must either reside in Calcutta, or pay rates: if he does not reside, he must pay rates for property. If the Council adopts this amendment, all the subsequent parts of the Act will work consistently, as far as I have been able on a careful investigation to make out. The Chairman has a list of the owners and occupiers of houses, and prepares the list of voters from that. He does not know whether a particular person resides in the town or not; and if the payment of rates does not give the qualification, the list will contain the names of a number of persons who are non-resident. I maintain that, when the amendment was previously rejected, it was exactly on the opposite ground. The hon. member opposite (Dr. Gooroo Dass Banerjee) wanted to introduce the words “or carrying on business,” to which I objected: if a man is a mere bird of passage, I purposely did not want to give him a vote. The whole tenor of the voting qualification is the payment of rates; and if you do not insert payment of rates in these sections, it will throw them out of joint; but if the words are inserted, it will bring them into joint again. It may be discussed separately whether this qualification should apply to the fifty elected Commissioners only, or to the whole seventy-five.

The motion that in line 4 of section 8, for the words “resident in Calcutta” the words “residing or paying rates in Calcutta” be substituted, was then put and carried.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—With regard to section 4 in particular, I don't see any good reason why there should be a larger scope for the selection of the twenty-five nominated Commissioners than is given for the fifty elected Commissioners. It is admitted by the vote just taken that the fifty Commissioners must be persons either residing or paying rates. I am free to confess that, if a wider qualification is given to the twenty-five Commissioners, it will work; but that is not the intention, and I think it is better that all the Commissioners should have the same qualifications.

The HON. SIR ALFRED CROFT said:—I think there is a very good reason for making a distinction between the elected and the nominated Commissioners. The qualification to be a Port Commissioner does not consist in residence or the paying of rates, but in being closely connected with the trade and commerce of the port; and the same is true of members of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Trades' Association. In these cases there is no need to impose restrictions which are necessary in the case of elected Commissioners.

The motion that in line 11 of section 4, for "residing, carrying on business, or personally working for gain" the words "residing or paying rates" be substituted, was put and carried.

The motion that in line 4 of section 9, after "reside" the words "or pays rates" be inserted, was put and carried.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that the clause newly added to schedule III be transferred to the end of section 15. He said:—This is really an enacting clause, and ought rather to be attached to the section than to the schedule appended to it.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that in line 12 of section 31, after "two electors" the words "in each ward in which he proposes to stand" be inserted; and that in line 14, after "eight electors" the words "in each such ward" be inserted.

He said:—This amendment is intended to remove an awkwardness in the wording of the section, from which it might be inferred that a person who gets two electors to propose and eight others to approve his nomination may start as a candidate for several wards; but the words in the section are based on the assumption that he stands for only one ward. It was certainly intended that he should have two electors to nominate and eight others to approve his nomination in each and every ward for which he may wish to stand. I think it is only right that no man should be allowed to stand for a ward unless he can get the electors of that ward to bring him forward.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that, in line 7 of section 39, after "Local Government" the words "at its discretion" be inserted. This, he said, is really a verbal amendment. It has been pointed out by high authority that as the section stands the Local Government would have no authority to remove a Chairman unless on the recommendation of the Commissioners. I should not have thought that it would have that effect, but as there is no reason for leaving doubtful what is intended, it is better to insert the words proposed in order to remove all doubt.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that, in Chapter IV and elsewhere wherever the expression occurs in the Bill, for "halalkhorrate" the words "sewage rate" be substituted. He said:—I place myself in the hands of the Council in this matter. We took the word "halalkhor" from the Bombay Act, but after doing so we adopted a definition of "sewage" which exactly meets the case. To my mind the term "sewage rate" is a better phrase.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that, in line 4 of section 108, the words "by the occupier" be omitted, and that in line 7, for "from the occupier" the words "from the person who pays him rent" be substituted; and that in line 13, to the end of the section, for "rent payable by the occupier, and shall be recoverable by the owner for him" the words "added to the rent and shall be recovered by the owner from the person liable for the payment thereof" be substituted. He said:—The object of these amendments is very much the same as the amendment already adopted in the definition of "owner." The section assumes that there is only one owner and one occupier. If the owner lets his house for Rs. 200, and the assessment is fixed at Rs. 300, the owner can say to the occupier, you only pay Rs. 200 as rent, you must pay the owner's rate on the other Rs. 100, as well as the occupier's rate. That has always been the rule. It is intended that the owner shall not pay the tax on a higher assessment than that for which the house is let. But in the area to be added, especially, the owner may not be the sole owner, but we may have sub-owners. The amendment is intended to save the case which may occasionally occur of a person not being an occupier who pays rent to the owner.

The motion was put and carried.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that, in line 15 of section 122, for "estimated cost of building" the words "estimated present cost of building the house" be substituted. He said:—This is the most important amendment on the list, and in regard to it I must throw myself on the indulgence of the Council, inasmuch as this is a motion which I made before and which was lost. Ordinarily such a course would be unjustifiable, and in fact I do not propose to take it in reference to any of the other motions which I made and were lost, because I have no sufficient reason to offer in regard to them. But for the motion which I now make there are very strong reasons, and if those reasons are considered sufficient, I hope the Council will accept this motion rather than allow the Act to go forth with a serious blot in it. This section of the Bill, it is well known, has caused more heart-burning than any other of its provisions, and the main cause of this is the fact that a certain class of the community have got off hitherto by paying from one-third to one-half of what they will have to pay under this section, which still will make them pay only about five-sixths of what the rest of the community are paying as rates. We have no reason to be surprised that a provision of this kind should create strong opposition. It is an opposition which would be met with under similar circumstances in any other country in the world. In France, for instance, the old French aristocracy, rather than submit to be taxed, brought on a revolution and their own ruin. It is obviously a self-interested opposition which must be experienced from any class which may be similarly situated. But as a matter of principle, it is the bounden duty of the Legislature to tax all classes alike. But while, as regards the justice of the case, I could not ask the Council to re-open a question which has been previously discussed and decided, when we come to apply the principle which has been adopted we are confronted with real difficulty. We find in England political economists like Mr. Mill and practical statesmen like Mr. Goschen, as well as the Courts of law, recognizing the necessity of some interpretation being put by the Legislature. The reasons given by them are in favour of one of two interpretations, either that the assessment shall be on the market value or upon the present cost of rebuilding the house; but no authority can be found in favour of taking the original cost of building; and so little was I prepared for the possibility of the Council adhering to the latter view that I scarcely directed a single argument against it. I directed my arguments to the principle that either the market value or the cost of rebuilding should be taken. I have the more reason to ask for the reconsideration of this question because I have reason to believe that at least one vote against the amendment was given on the ground that the hon. member thought the section as it stands means estimated present cost, and immediately after the vote was taken the learned Advocate-General drew the attention of His Honour to the fact that the decision was an extremely embarrassing one, because the interpretation which the Courts would be likely to put upon the words "estimated cost of building" would be the very same which the Council had rejected. I hope the Council will see that, having regard to the proper interpretation of these words, we shall put ourselves into an extremely embarrassing position, because the Courts may still attach to them the meaning which we rejected. On the other hand, the Courts may say, how are we to put a meaning which was rejected by the Legislature? If, therefore, the Council wishes the words to bear the meaning which they intended, that meaning should be made clear.

Now as regards the arguments on the subject. There is a great deal to be said in favour of 5 per cent. on the market value being the test of the assessment. My own impression, after reading much which has been written on the subject, is that this in itself would be the better test; and if we decided to take the market value we should not require the exception which follows. But at the same time we have been advised by those who are experienced in the interpretation of laws that we should be introducing the greatest possible trouble, and therefore on the previous occasion that proposal was abandoned in consequence of the difficulty of rating property, and I will not ask the Council to re-open that question. But when we come to consider the other two proposals, then it is necessary that we should put in the section a defensible instead of an indefensible principle. The more the section is attacked, the more necessary it is that it should not be vulnerable on a point of this kind. Those who oppose the section naturally wish to see a principle incorporated in it which they will hereafter be able to find fault with because it fixes a wrong standard of assessment, but those who approve of the section ought to be on their guard against this danger. A house was built, say, a hundred years ago when materials and labour were cheap; it has been thoroughly repaired several times. What is the money spent upon that house? The original cost would be the cost of building the house plus the cost of repairs from time to time, minus the amount of depreciation, and that is a completely impracticable test. If labour and materials become dearer, there is no reason why the house should remain at the lower instead of the higher value. It is altogether an indefensible principle. The question for consideration is the worth of the house to whoever gets it. Suppose by some means a person builds a house at 50 per cent. less than any one else could build it. It is evident it will be worth to the owner the whole hundred per cent. The proper test, therefore, is what will the house now cost to rebuild it in its present condition after making the fullest allowance for depreciation. I daresay I shall be excused for again pointing out the grounds upon which Mill rejects the market value as a fair test. He says—

“When the occupier is not the owner and does not hold on a repairing lease, the rent he pays is the measure of what it costs him, but when he is the owner some other measure must be sought. A valuation should be made of the house, not at what it would sell for, but at what would be the cost of re-building it, and this valuation might be periodically corrected by an allowance for what it had lost in value by time, or gained by repairs and improvements.”

This is a much more practical test, and the assessor, who is an experienced officer of the Municipality, could easily estimate according to this rule. If the estimate is disputed, builders and contractors can be brought in who would perfectly well know what the cost would be. But suppose the question is what did that house cost to build 40 years ago? It is perfectly evident that that must be a matter of pure guess work, and even worse, because it would open the door to all sorts of accounts being produced of what the actual cost was, in order to prove that the cost was considerably less than the surveyor's valuation. Whereas if the Legislature puts a proper interpretation, viz., what would be the estimated present cost of rebuilding the house, then you will have a test which can be applied without any extraordinary difficulty, making of course due allowance for depreciation. If the Council will adopt this principle, then I think, with the exceptional clause to which I have referred, we shall hold a defensible position, because on the one hand we take a true and proper test, namely, the actual amount of money in the house, and secondly we say that if a valuation of 5 per cent. upon the estimated present cost is excessive, a less rate can be taken. But if this interpretation of the meaning of the section is rejected, then I think the section will be altogether vulnerable, and it will not be reasonable to hold me responsible for the section which, without this interpretation, I admit will be indefensible. I therefore submit that I have shown sufficient grounds for asking the Council to allow the consideration of this question to be re-opened.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said :—I rather regret that the hon. member in charge of the Bill, in bringing this question before the Council, should have done so in such a way as to re-open the whole policy of the section and invite discussion on the section generally. I think he has very good ground for bringing the particular point before the Council, which is this. Does the Council mean that the estimated cost of the building should be the present estimated cost, or the estimated cost at the time when the house was built? The reason why I say he has good ground for bringing the question before the Council is that the outside opinion, as well as the opinion of experts generally, is that there is a blot in this section; that you are leaving a question open which ought to be decided; that the probability is that on reading the words "estimated cost" the courts would take the present estimated cost, but that the discussion which has taken place in this Council places a difficulty in the way, and you should say what the interpretation is. Under these circumstances, I think the hon. member has fair ground to ask the Council to decide which of these two views it will take. But if we open up the whole question of this rating clause, I cannot prevent hon. members from discussing it at equal length and with equal seriousness from another point of view. I would ask the hon. members of the legal profession to help us in this matter, both as to what course should be adopted, and also as to which interpretation should be adopted.

The HON. MR. ALLEN said:—In voting against the hon. member's former amendment I was influenced by the conviction that the words as they stand at present "estimated cost of building," truly interpreted, could refer to no other time than the time when the estimate is made. If any other time was pointed at, some indication of the time should have been introduced. If the intention had been to look back to the time when the building was put up, the clause should have run thus—"estimated original cost;" or if it was intended to refer to some future time, some words implying futurity should have been inserted. But the words "estimated cost of building" in their simplicity, to an unsophisticated mind could convey a reference to no other period of time than the time at which the estimate is being made. For that reason, partly, I voted against the amendment. But there was also another reason, namely, this. The amendment as originally stated was to substitute the words "present estimated cost;" but when the hon. member proposed it, he did not seem quite sure whether it should be "present estimated cost" or "estimated present cost," and he kept see-sawing from one to the other, and I was within my right in recording my protest against such vacillation. After having had ample time to consider the point, the hon. member had not been able to make up his mind. But I am free to confess that now the question stands upon a different footing. The fact that the amendment was lost may be used as an argument for putting on the words of the section a construction different from what I still consider their proper meaning, and therefore I am quite willing to vote for the present amendment; but I think the hon. member would obtain all he desires by simply prefixing the two letters "re" to the word "building," so that it should read—the estimated cost of re-building.

The HON. BABU KALI NATH MITTER said:—I must oppose this motion. This question was fully discussed by the Council, and the Council deliberately rejected the amendment proposed by the hon. member in charge of the Bill. The question was fully discussed, and we came to the conclusion that this amendment would be worse than the provision which is now in the Bill. We understood the meaning of the section to be the estimated cost at the time the house was built. Several hon. members of the Council met together, discussed the question, and came to the conclusion that they should oppose the amendment. Two of our hon. colleagues are now absent, and I think it extremely unfortunate that a matter of this sort should be brought forward again at this time. On that ground I also oppose the amendment, because it will not now have that amount of attention which it would have otherwise received, and which it received before. Who can say on what grounds those two gentlemen voted against the amendment. The cost of rebuilding now the large buildings erected in former times would be simply fabulous, and under the method of assessment proposed here, the owners of those houses would not think of building them. There are old buildings in the town which cover from five to ten bighas of land, and how unjust would it be to assess such buildings at 5 per cent. on the estimated present cost of building them, which would perhaps be a hundred times more than when they were built. I submit that a proposal of this kind should not be allowed to be brought at this time, especially as the matter was thoroughly discussed at a full meeting of the Council, and also because it has been brought forward without the slightest previous intimation. All the intimation the Council has had is that the hon. member has obtained Your Honour's permission to bring forward verbal amendments. But this question, I submit, has already been settled, and that it is not competent for the Council to re-open it, principally on the ground that two hon. members who voted against it before are not now present.

The HON. DR. GOOROO DASS BANERJEE said :—While I fully admit the necessity of having certainty in the law, and of avoiding uncertainty or any possible chance of it, I am still bound to oppose the amendment, and for this simple reason. Unless the question is discussed fully in the Council, and unless the Council is prepared to go fully over the same ground again, we cannot do justice to this particular amendment. The remarks of the hon. member in charge of the Bill clearly went to show that this amendment imperceptibly glides into the other amendment, viz., whether we ought to have the market value instead of the estimated cost. It has been said that the use of the word "value" applied to anything, is what it is worth to the owner just now, and not the money which it cost him years ago. If that is so, that brings us very near the other matter, namely, the market value. If we do not adopt the market value, there is hardly any reason why we should have the present estimated cost rather than the actual cost of the building or house when it was built. Then there are other difficulties in the matter. With regard to old buildings to which one of these provisions would apply, the materials of which they were built are practically historical now. Some of these houses were built of bricks only six inches long, none of which kind are now to be found, and it would be very difficult now to say what the value of those six-inch bricks would be. Then, again, we have many old houses with low windows and small doors which are of no value now, and if we are to apply the present cost of building with reference to these houses, we shall be exaggerating their value beyond measure. Would it be fair to apply the present raised standard value to houses which would not agree with the tastes of the present day at all? These are all serious objections which I have pointed out.

The HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said :—I have to submit that those who oppose this amendment are making a mountain of a mole-hill. As I understand this matter, the amendment has arisen entirely out of a mistake which the hon. member on my right (Mr. Allen) acknowledges, at all events to this extent, that in voting against the inclusion of the word "present" he did it for the reason that this section as it stood read as if the word "present" already existed, and that that word was superfluous. That was the main ground on which he voted, and I believe I am right in thinking that my hon. friend Mr. Reynolds was actuated by the same reason. It is clear, therefore, that these two hon. members, if it had been brought to their notice that the omission of the word "present" introduced an ambiguity, considering that they were voting for the section as against the opposite view, would undoubtedly have voted for the inclusion of the word "present." At the time this motion was lost, I immediately perceived that a mistake had been made. Every member who voted for it intended that the rate should be on the present estimated value, and yet the word "present" was struck out. There were two questions before the Council then, as I understood the subject. The hon. member in charge of the Bill, who presented, I think, very forcibly and very fully a fair view of the case, said this:—In assessing a house we must proceed on the present value of the house: the present value of the house and land will determine the amount of the assessment. He said there were two ways of determining the present value. One is the market value; the other is the present estimated value deducting a certain amount for depreciation. These were the two questions he formulated. The estimated letting value was excluded altogether, because it had been found to be a fallacious test. The test of the market value was, I think, rightly abandoned for the reasons stated by the hon. member on my right (Mr. Allen). He pointed out that there was no market value, which is a value obtained by a certain multiple of the letting value, which is an unknown quantity. Under the Land Acquisition Act, the Courts had decided that the value of house property in Calcutta is sixteen times the letting value; but as these buildings have no letting value, the assessment on the market value was abandoned. I submit, therefore, that the market value cannot be taken as the basis of assessment. We are thus forced to accept the present value as the basis. Any one who in opposition to that basis supports the position that the original cost should be the test, would in my opinion be dreaming of applying a test next to impossible, for it would be idle to suppose that at this present moment you could get evidence of what the original cost of a house built 50 or 60 years ago actually was. Such an idea I believe never entered the mind of any hon. member; those who oppose the amendment are trying now to support a view which was not thought of before. If you consider the two principles, whether the assessment should proceed on the original cost of the building or upon the probable letting value, the test of the original cost would land the Commissioners in as great a difficulty as the letting value. That test being left out of consideration, the Council clearly intended that the assessment should be on the present estimated value. But the wording of the section created an ambiguity; and that being so, the hon. member in charge of the Bill, when he found that the wording was ambiguous, deemed it his duty to remove all ambiguity and to render the meaning of the section clear and definite. Can that be said to be a re-opening of the whole discussion? I submit not; and I therefore contend that this is only a desire on his part to do that which he was bound to do. There is a great difference between re-opening a discussion, and simply asking the Council to express that which it really meant: there had been an unfortunate omission, and he desired to correct it; and it is as much in the power of the Council to do that as to correct a word which has been misspelt or a wrong word which had crept into the Bill.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—I regret if I have in any way opened out the discussion in a wider sense than Your Honour thought it desirable; if I did so, it is due to an obscurity in expressing myself. What I did intend to press upon the Council was that, seeing that this has been such a controverted section on grounds which are perfectly explicable, seeing that it is the one section in the Bill on which attention will be concentrated more than on any other, its meaning and intention should be made as clear as possible. The only question I intended to open out is this. I think this discussion has abundantly proved that in reality the majority of the Council did recognise the proper test to be the estimated present cost of building the house, and in fact the hon. and learned Advocate-General seems to consider that it is utterly impossible to interpret the section in the opposite view. And I also pointed out that the vote took me by surprise. It occurred to me that the whole of the motion I brought forward on the previous occasion might be rejected, that the majority of the Council might be in favour of taking the market value as the test; but it never occurred to me that the test of taking the original cost would be adopted as against the estimated present cost. I assumed that if the test of the market value was rejected, the estimated present cost would be adopted, because those were the only two intelligible and defensible solutions of the difficulty. I regret very much that two hon. members of the Council are absent; but it seems hardly right that we should send this Bill out to the public with an admitted blot in it, a blot which my hon. friends would be the first to press upon us. They would fasten on this and drive us into a corner in consequence of the indefensible wording of this clause. It therefore seems to me that the Council would be acting in a very unreasonable manner if, on a question of interpretation, it refused the indulgence of re-opening the question with a view to state clearly what the section is intended to mean. I admit that I am asking the Council to do something very exceptional, something not justifiable except on irrebuttable grounds; but I think I have really made out the strongest ground for what I ask the Council to do.

HIS HONOUR THE PRESIDENT said:—I feel myself in a position of some little difficulty as to putting the question before the Council, for I think the hon. members opposite have a strong argument to urge that they have not been allowed to re-open, in their own interest, the discussion of the whole question.

But in this particular matter we ought to look at what really happened in the Council on the occasion to which reference has been made. Then, the substitution of the words "estimated cost of the building" for these words "estimated present cost," was proposed by the hon. member in charge of the Bill, and not a word was said about it. Neither was the question of the actual interpretation of the law considered in the previous discussion as to what would be the interpretation of the words "estimated cost of building." We have learned that at least one hon. member voted against the amendment, not because he considered that the interpretation the hon. member in charge of the Bill wished to put upon it was wrong, but because he thought the amendment was superfluous, and that the section could mean nothing but what it was desired it should mean. How many hon. members followed and took the same ground is more than I could say. But I have to point out, with reference to the observation of the hon. member opposite (Babu Kali Nath Mitter) that two hon. members who voted against the amendment were now absent, that I have before me the division which was then taken, and I find from it that the Hon. Moulvie Abdul Jubbar voted for the amendment and the Hon. Mr. Moore voted against it. Practically those two votes cancel each other, and the question therefore concerns not the members who are now absent, but those who are present. I have to choose between two unpleasant alternatives—to let the Bill go forth with a very great blot in it, leaving an ambiguity which the Council know is an ambiguity, and which, if not corrected, will lead to great trouble in the future; or, I will not say to strain a point, but at all events to bring before the Council the reconsideration of a point which I confess is a little more than technical. Under these circumstances, I think it is my duty to let the motion go to the vote.

The motion was then put to the Council and carried on the following division:—

Ayes 6.		Noes 4.
The Hon. Mr. Pratt.		The Hon. Dr. Gooroo Dass Banerjee.
" Sir Alfred Croft.		" Dr. Mahendra Lal Siroar.
" Sir Henry Harrison.		" Babu Kali Nath Mitter.
" Mr. Allen.		" Mr. Macaulay.
" Mr. Reynolds,
" The Advocate-General.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that between clauses 4 and 5 (line 29) of section 138, the following be inserted:—

"When there are gradations of owners or occupiers, and doubt exists as to who is entitled to be registered as owner or occupier of any premises, the Commissioners shall determine which of the several owners or occupiers is entitled to be registered as such, and their decision shall remain in force for the purposes of this Act till set aside by the order of a competent Court."

Also that, after section 448, the following new section be inserted:—

"Whenever by this Act any right is conferred or duty imposed on the owner or occupier of any premises, and doubt arises owing to there being gradations of owners or occupiers as to who is the owner or occupier entitled to exercise such right or bound to perform such duty, the Commissioners may, after due enquiry, determine from time to time which of such persons is thus entitled or bound:

"Provided that, if one of the persons regarding whom doubt exists is registered under section one hundred and twenty-eight as owner or occupier, such person shall be entitled to exercise such right or bound to perform such duty till his name has been duly removed from the register."

He said:—The Bill is full of rights conferred and duties imposed on owners and occupiers. They have the right to vote; the Corporation has the right to compel them to take certain order with their premises, &c.; but at the same time in the area now to be added to Calcutta we may have difficulty in determining who is the person where there are several grades of owners, and similarly in the case of occupiers. Suppose a house is let to A, who leaves Calcutta and lets the house to B, which of the two is the "occupier"? There should be some mode of solving the difficulty. I propose in the first instance to give power to the Commissioners on due enquiry of deciding who is, for the purposes of this Act, the owner, or who is the occupier, amongst the various grades of owners and occupiers. Subject to certain limitations, if one of these owners has registered himself as owner, we hold him to be the owner for the purposes of rating and performing the duties required of him ; but suppose more than one person has so registered himself, then it is necessary to have some means of deciding which of these is for the purposes of the Act to be considered the owner, and therefore I propose to introduce a clause providing that the Commissioners shall decide which of them shall be considered the owner, leaving the owner who thinks himself aggrieved to go to a competent Court and establish his right to be registered. If we have the owner and occupier registered, we can deal with them in the first instance. It is obviously necessary that there should be some means of deciding, in case of doubt, which of several grades of owners is to be considered the owner, and I therefore ask leave to move these two sections as the best solution which I can suggest.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that the words "so far as may be reasonably practicable" be transferred from line 4 so as to stand after "Commissioners" in line 1 of section 153. He said:—It has been pointed out that these words are so placed in the section as to make a great anomaly, because the easier task of supplying water at low pressure is only made obligatory so far as may reasonably be practicable, but that condition will not apply to the keeping up of high pressure at 30 feet, which will be a far more difficult task under certain circumstances. Therefore it will be better to put the qualification into the forefront of the section, so that it shall apply to the whole section, instead of only to the supply of water at low pressure. So far as is practicable we are now bound under the present Act to supply water at a pressure of 50 feet, and although at the pressure gauge that pressure can easily be kept up, the pressure in houses even to half that extent cannot be maintained, and yet no one has brought any suit against the Corporation, and the section might probably stand as it is without any fear of our being molested. But the fact of attaching the qualification to what is by far the easier task and leaving it out in respect of what is more difficult, is an anomaly which, I think, ought to be corrected.

The HON. THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said:—I shall oppose this amendment. I think the Commissioners are bound to give water at a pressure of 30 feet between 6 o'clock and 8 o'clock in the forenoon. I think a discretion may be allowed to the Commissioners in respect to one of the modes of supply, but I think one portion of the requirements of this section should be imperative. I therefore object to transferring the words "so far as may be practicable." The hon. member in charge of the Bill has advocated very forcibly the interests of the Corporation in raising taxation, but he should also bear in mind the interests of the public.

The HON. SIR ALFRED CROFT said:—The whole discussion on this subject outside the Council has understood these words as applying to the second clause of this section equally with the first, and I was surprised to find that the hon. member in charge of the Bill allowed the words to remain in what was evidently the wrong place. The sword of Damocles has been hanging so long over the head of my hon. friend, that he has lost all fear of its falling upon him ; but it will clearly be better to protect him against the consequences of an accident.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—If this provision is going to be put into force, it will in some cases be found impossible to drive the water to all houses up to a height of 30 feet, especially after the occurrence of a fire, when as much as half the day's supply may be consumed in the course of a few hours. I do not think I am unreasonable in asking the Council to adopt this amendment.

The motion was then put and carried on the following division:—

Ayes 7.

The Hon. Dr. Gooroo Dass Banerjee.
The Hon. Baboo Kali Nath Mitter.
The Hon. Sir Alfred Croft.
The Hon. Sir Henry Harrison.
The Hon. C. P. L. Macaulay.
The Hon. H. J. Reynolds.
His Honour the President.

Noes 4.

The Hon. H. Pratt.
The Hon. Dr. Mahendra Lal Sircar.
The Hon. T. T. Allen.
The Hon. the Advocate-General.

So the motion was carried.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that section 412 (c) be worded as follows:—

“The deposit, whether in the public street or otherwise, of rubbish and offensive matter, the removing and carrying away of the same and charging the person responsible for such deposit with the expenses of removing it.”

This, he said, is an amendment regarding the framing of bye-laws. We are entitled to make bye-laws for the removal of refuse, and especially trade refuse; and a bye-law was passed making the deposit of trade refuse on the streets without a license punishable; but it was held that the passing of such a bye-law was ultra vires under the present Act, and we are in some cases driven to the necessity of removing such refuse from the houses of traders, or of leaving it there as a nuisance to the neighbours. That especially happened in the case of a certain large cow-house, the owner of which would not pay for the removal of the refuse, and would not throw it out on the streets, because it was pointed out by some that the word “deposit” in the section would be read as depositing it on the streets, and therefore the bye-law would not hold good. It is therefore, I think, desirable to amend this section so that the word “deposit” shall be interpreted to apply to deposit whether on a public street or otherwise. I think this a perfectly reasonable proposal. There is no reason why a tradesman should escape because he keeps the refuse within his house.

The motion was put and agreed to.

The HON. SIR HENRY HARRISON moved that the Bill be now passed. He said:—After the discussion we have had to-day, and having regard to this late hour, I daresay the Council will think it unnecessary for me to make any long speech on this occasion; but if it is necessary for me to do so to meet any objections which may be raised, I shall have an opportunity of doing so before the vote is taken. For myself I know that the Bill has caused a great deal of vexation and irritation, but I can only say that I have endeavoured to be studiously fair in the provisions bearing on the questions of taxation or of the public burdens, and I believe also that with regard to the constitutional question we have carefully considered the claims of all sections of the community and have steered a fair middle course, guiding ourselves mainly by the experience gained in the past. I do not think the Bill at all deserves the imputation of a one-sided Bill, and I believe that, as far as possible, it is fair to all parties and interests in the Corporation. I admit that in the sections regarding building regulations and bustees new burdens are placed upon the owners of property, but these I believe to be necessary. It is undoubtedly necessary that the owners of property should discharge their duties in connection with that property. It is well known that the value of land has increased to an enormous extent, partly on account of the trade and commerce of Calcutta, and partly on account of the improvements which the municipality has effected. The fresh burdens imposed on owners by this Bill are a mere drop in the ocean as compared to the additional value which the land has acquired in recent years. Therefore, as far as concerns the operations of the municipality on the value of property, it is clear that we are making a fair and legitimate claim if we ask owners to perform such duties as are performed in all civilised communities by the owners of property for the well-being of the community. The true objection to the sanitary sections of the Bill is that they will be found to be almost inoperative. They should not be so, but the difficulties for some years to come will be very great. I am hopeful that the working of this Act will in a very short time tend to diminish the apprehension with which it is now viewed. Of course in regard to those whose apprehension is that they will have to pay an equal share of taxation it cannot do so, but in all other respects I am sanguine.

The HON. BABOO KALI NATH MITTER said:—I am constrained to raise my opposition to the Bill being passed in its present form. I am quite aware that my opposition is a feeble one and will be of no avail; still I deem it my duty to place upon record, in the most distinct terms possible, my opposition to the passing of the Bill. Perhaps Your Honour is aware that to some extent, if not to a material extent, I aided in the passing of a resolution in favour of the amalgamation of the Suburbs with the Town. After that resolution was forwarded to Your Honour's Government, a Committee was appointed to prepare a scheme for the amalgamation, of which I was one of the members, and in that Committee also to some extent I aided the scheme. Again when this question was brought up in Council, I gave my vote in favour of the introduction of the Bill. But at the time I did all this I had not the remotest idea that the series of amendments I subsequently brought forward would meet with the fate they did. I thought some regard would be paid to the opinions expressed by persons capable of forming opinions on matters of this kind. I thought that the opposition raised by communities which are capable of judging in matters of this description, would weigh with the Council. But I find that the clauses of the Bill have been adopted in total disregard of the representations made by the Municipal Commissioners, the members of the British Indian Association, the Indian Association, and the residents of Calcutta who called a public meeting and presented a memorial on the subject. The various amendments which I moved have shown the nature of my opposition to the Bill; but it does not follow that I ever expected that all these amendments would be carried in Council. It may be that I have been very unreasonable: so unreasonable that out of a series of amendments extending over a hundred and fifty, only some minor and unimportant amendments (I think there were three) should be carried. But my experience is that in other places, when I have the privilege of moving amendments, more than seventy per cent. of them have been carried, and therefore it was a perfect surprise to me that this Council should have thought fit to reject amendment after amendment which I had the honour to lay before them. Of course my hon. friend the mover of the Bill is responsible for it, and the responsibility will rest with him so long as this Bill remains law. I have, however, every hope that before many months elapse the Municipal Law will have again to be placed on the anvil of legislation. I have no doubt that, so long as my hon. friend is at the head of the Municipal Corporation, he will, if this Bill is passed, do his utmost to work the law in the best manner possible. But will his successor do the same thing? That is a point on which I have serious doubt. The innovations which have been introduced in the constitution of the Corporation, the various duties which the Commissioners will have to perform, the inadequacy of the funds placed at the disposal of the Commissioners, are all matters on which amendments were proposed by me. It will be useless to take up Your Honour's time and that of my hon. colleagues by referring in detail to the various matters which have been discussed. All I need say is that the Bill in its present form will be unworkable; many of the sections passed will remain dead-letters, but if they are not allowed to remain a dead-letter, the hardship and oppression that will result will be intolerable. The sanitary provisions introduced into this Bill will, if carried out, bring about a change which is to be deplored. It will be possible also to interfere with the religious sentiments of the people under the provisions of this Bill; it will be possible to interfere with private rights beyond all measure; it will be possible to deprive people of their property where even there is no absolute necessity for it; it will be possible to put parties to endless trouble and annoyance when they apply for sanction to build a house in Calcutta; and it will be possible to open a wide door for the levy of blackmail. I will remind Your Honour that, during the administration of one of your predecessors, a Municipal Bill was passed by this Council in total disregard of public opinion and in total disregard of the opposition raised in different quarters; and the fate of that Bill was that it was vetoed by the Viceroy. The noble Statesman who then ruled over the Empire, in vetoing the Bill, said this:—After enumerating his objections to the several new taxes sanctioned by the Bill, His Excellency said:

"Apart from these objections to particular portions of the Bill, His Excellency can only regard the whole measure as calculated to increase municipal taxation in Bengal, and he believes that such an increase is unnecessary and inexpedient at the present time." His Excellency added: "It is true that many of the provisions of the Bill to which His Excellency objects are permissive, and depend for their introduction upon the exercise of the powers committed to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. The present Lieutenant Governor has expressed his intention to use with great caution and reserve the power which would be placed in his hands; and His Excellency cordially agrees with the sentiments expressed by His Honour that it is unwise 'to push far sanitary and other regulations which may affect some future good at the cost of great individual vexation;' and that in introducing such regulations we must recollect 'not only that our knowledge of these subjects is yet imperfect, but also that much regard must be had to the habits and feelings of the people, which, even in Europe and still more in this country, are opposed to great innovations in matters affecting their daily lives in their homes and neighbourhood; but, while entirely concurring in these views, His Excellency must, in dealing with the Bill, look rather to the powers which it confers than to the extent to which for the present it is proposed to make use of those powers. If he objects to any material provisions contained in a proposed law for which his assent is required under the Indian Councils Act of 1861, it is not sufficient for His Excellency to be informed that the officer invested with discretion as to their introduction considers that action should be suspended or deferred. No feeling of confidence in the discretion of any one man, in whose power the administration of a law may for the time being be placed, would, in His Excellency's opinion, justify him in assenting to a measure, to any essential provisions of which, if fully brought into operation, he entertains such serious objections as he does to some of those which are contained in the Bengal Municipalities Bill."

I hope and trust that when this Bill is submitted to His Excellency the Viceroy it will meet with the same fate as did the Municipal Bill of 1874. For myself I cannot be a party to an Act which, under the garb of law, sanctions the spoliation of private property. I cannot be a party to an Act which is likely to interfere with the religious feelings of the people, which will materially affect the inherent rights of private property, which authorises legal presumptions being raised contrary to all the principles of the law of evidence, which authorises the forcible detention of private property after it has been improved by municipal agency, and, above all, which authorises a method of assessment which is unknown and which will injuriously affect the owners of property who are also occupiers of them. Under all these circumstances, I cannot refrain from emphatically entering my protest against the Bill being passed in this form.

The HON. DR. GURU DAS BANERJEE said :—I regret that I also am constrained to oppose this motion. I am fully sensible of the fact that the objections I have to urge against several provisions of the Bill have all been considered by the Council, and though I have not been more successful in my amendments than my hon. friend, still I deem it my duty to thank Your Honour and my hon. colleagues for the patience and attention with which my feeble words have been heard. If I have been unsuccessful in my amendments, the only thought which oppresses me is that the objections I have urged had not a better advocate; for so strong is my conviction as to the justice of my objections that I cannot help thinking that they would have prevailed if only my case had been better put. I say this with all respect for my hon. colleagues. I may add that in the compensating economy of nature I have had an advantage which perhaps my hon. colleagues had not, for my respect for their judgment and my diffidence in my own have made me devote the most anxious attention to every point in which I differed. But I should be wanting in sincerity if I were not to say that the result has been to confirm me in my own opinion. And the reason is not far to seek. I and my hon. colleagues have viewed matters from very different points of view. An ideal standard of improvement and progress has been the sole aim of my hon. colleagues, while I, on the other hand, though yielding to none in my earnest desire for sanitary and other improvements, have had much of my eagerness for improvement restrained by the stern realities of our situation, of which, I venture to think, I can form some opinion. I find, for instance, that with our limited funds, with only a doubtful and very remote chance of the duty on petroleum being allowed to be levied, the amalgamation scheme is not likely to prove a success, while it will prove oppressive by raising the taxation on the poor population of the Suburbs without giving them a quid pro quo in the shape of municipal improvement. I find, again, that the reduction in the popular element in the constitution of the municipality which will result from the operation of the scheme of plural votes and special constituencies, will not only interfere with the popularity of our municipal administration, but will render the enforcement of the new stringent building and other regulations attended with considerable hardship. I find, again, that some of the provisions of the Bill are characterized by an utter want of regard to private rights. Then, again, I find that there are certain sanitary regulations in the Bill which will interfere so largely and so minutely with the daily life of the rate-payers as to be wholly unsuited to the circumstances of the country, and to be repugnant to the feelings and sentiments—religious, social and domestic—of several large sections of the heterogeneous population of the metropolis. I find that the Bill has these and many other objectionable features, which are so strong to my humble apprehension that I think I shall not be doing my duty if I were not to record my respectful but emphatic protest against the passing of this Bill into law. My only apprehension was lest by so doing I might stand in the way of improvement and progress; but I am relieved of that apprehension from these considerations. I think the existing law is quite sufficient for the present, and for a quarter of a century to come, for Calcutta; and if something is wanted for the Suburbs, it is not so much a new law as additional funds; and if therefore Your Honour's Government grants to the Suburban Municipality the pecuniary help that is offered to the amalgamated municipality, improvement in the Suburbs would follow as fast and as efficiently as under any scheme of amalgamation.

The HON. SIR ALFRED CROFT said:—I think that the significance and importance of the opposition to this Bill which has been expressed by the two hon. members who have just spoken can hardly be overrated; representing, as they claim to do, that community whose interests are chiefly affected by the measure. Still, it seems to me desirable to examine a little closely the objections which they have raised and the charges which they have brought against the Bill. The objections which have been raised are of two kinds, representing two different and even inconsistent sets of ideas. One class of objections condemns the Bill because it allows too much power to the municipality; the other class condemns it because it allows too little power to the municipality and gives the Government too great a power of control. The first class of objections refers to such provisions as the building and bustee regulations, regulations to prevent overcrowding and the spread of infection, the right to acquire land for the public benefit, and matters of that kind. The course of debate on all these questions involving an increase of the powers of the municipality, has been marked by one special character, which is no doubt present to the minds of members of this Council. It is that to which reference was made by the hon. member on my left (Baboo Kali Nath Mitter), when he said that he did not expect his amendments to be carried because of the persistent majority in the Council. I must say that it was not altogether a pleasant thing for the members of that majority to find that on so many occasions when a division on these questions was taken, there were eight European members on one side and four native members on the other. This was by no means uniformly the case, but it occurred often enough to give the fact significance. The fact is a perplexing and painful one when we consider that this Bill affects the interests of natives of this country much more widely than it does those of Europeans. But what is the explanation of that majority? I have read the public papers, and I see that it is sometimes called the official majority. It is only necessary to mention that, in order to discard the idea that there has been anything in the least degree approaching to official coercion or influence exercised. The true reason of that majority I take to be that those who constitute the majority are Europeans who really believe in municipal government, while you who oppose it do not believe in it, or at any rate not to the same extent. Looking at it in that light, I see no difficulty in finding an explanation of the majority. Belief in municipal government is natural to Englishmen from their birth; they have been fighting and struggling for it for five or six centuries. With the people of India, on the contrary, it is an exotic; it has been only recently introduced among them; it has not grown with their growth, nor strengthened with their strength. And if they are reluctant to press it on too quickly, if they are inclined to put off for a quarter of a century what we regard as necessary reforms, it only shows the difference between those who believe in municipal government, and those who are reluctant to believe in it because it is not a part of their birthright. What we understand about municipal government is this, that people who live in a municipality must learn to subordinate their individual interests to the general good, and that this subordination has to be enforced not only in matters of private freedom, but also in respect of private property. That is of course not peculiar to municipalities, but is common to every form of civil government. The practical question is, where will you stop? With regard, for example, to the provision as to overcrowding in private houses, we maintain that we are doing what the Legislature has a right to do; while hon. members opposed to the Bill deny that. Therefore the question comes back to this: what are the limitations to municipal freedom? The opposing members maintain that a municipality has at any rate no right to interfere in private and personal matters of that kind; and in support of their contention they declare that their opposition is shared by the whole of those who will be affected by the Bill. I very much doubt whether they have any solid ground for making such a claim; and on that point I will read to the Council an extract from a Bengali paper called the Sanjivani, which, next to the Bangabasi, has perhaps the largest circulation amongst the vernacular papers in Bengal. That paper says:—

“Section 122, which imposes a 5 per cent. rate upon the estimated cost of dwelling-houses, is a very good provision. It will do away with every anomaly now existing in connection with the assessment of rich men's houses; for those houses are now assessed more lightly than the houses of poor and middle class men, and it is very surprising that the poor rate-payers of Calcutta have joined with the rich in protesting against a provision which is so equitable from their own standpoint. Objection has also been taken to this provision by saying that it may serve as a deterrent to those who would otherwise build spacious rooms to live in, and that the cause of sanitation may thus suffer harm. But if the best way of improving the sanitary condition of the town be to clear bustees of all their poor occupiers and to build thereupon palatial residences and let those that build those residences pay only half as much in the shape of taxes as had been paid by the evicted poor, why not abolish the Municipality altogether, and declare the few rich men of the town its absolute proprietors?”

So much for the rights of private property. Then with regard to personal freedom it goes on:—

“The sanitary sections, which will invest the Executive with the power to declare buildings to be overcrowded or unfit for habitation, are also very good and reasonable. If the provision as to overcrowding be condemned on the ground that its working may be attended with hardship to the poor people, the very taxation of poor people must also be condemned; and if it be considered wrong not to allow a man to live in a house which is unfit for habitation, it must also be wrong to prevent the man from committing suicide who is about to do so, or to punish him for attempting to kill himself.”

These are reasonable arguments, put forward by a paper which is the representative of a large and influential class of the population of Bengal; and in face of these objections I do not see how it can be contended that the inhabitants of Calcutta are unanimous in their opposition to the Bill.

Next, there is the other class of objectors—those who base their objections to the Bill on the ground that it confers too great powers of control on the Government, and needlessly limits the powers of the Corporation. The sections now objected to are those which relate to the proportion of nominated Commissioners, to the appointment of the Chairman by the Government, and also more particularly the control sections; and it is claimed that at this stage of its history the Municipality of Calcutta should be left, if not entirely, yet to a great extent free from the control which these clauses impose. The question, therefore, arises, should we be safe in allowing this claim? For my part, I confess that I see no ground for any strong expression of dissatisfaction with the Corporation of Calcutta during the years it has been in existence. Speaking as an occupier, I should say that the Municipality is well governed, it is well watered, well lighted, well drained, well watched; in fact in all those points by which one can judge of the success and value of a Municipality, the Municipality of Calcutta comes out well. But successful as the Corporation has been in the past, the Calcutta Municipality is still a young institution. It has not had an existence of five hundred years as municipalities in England have had. Its life extends only to a period of ten or twelve years as an elective municipality; and however thriving it may be, whatever promise of future strength and stability it may give, it is still in the stage in which it is liable to infantile diseases and infantile caprices, and to that liability it will be subject until it has taken far deeper root in the convictions and the daily life of the people. There is every reason to hope that it will go on improving; but still the Government would be neglecting a clear duty if it abandoned those functions of supervision and control which are necessary to keep the Calcutta Municipality in the straight path in which it is going. The conditions of Calcutta are indeed so exceptional that it is essential for the Government to exercise a watchful control over its sanitary state. To refer to a recent incident, a few weeks ago Sir Donald Wallace accompanied the Viceroy when His Excellency went to see some of the less wholesome parts of Calcutta. A day or two after, Sir Donald Wallace had symptoms of cholera. Some people because they believed it, others perhaps because they were glad to have a fling at the Municipality, attributed the attack to the fact of his having accompanied the Viceroy to these unsavoury places. But if, instead of His Excellency's Private Secretary, it had been the Viceroy himself who had been attacked, the name and reputation of Calcutta throughout Europe are not so secure but that you would have found every newspaper in Europe ringing with indignant denunciations of the supineness and folly of the Government in allowing a plague-spot like this to remain uncleansed. Therefore I say it is imperative on the Government to retain the powers of control which are given to it in this Bill. I have referred already to those objections which have been raised to the Bill because it gives the Municipality too much power in enforcing sanitary arrangements. That implies a want of faith in municipal government; and the fact that these objections have been raised seems to me to supply another reason for insisting upon those powers of control which the Bill provides. Those who hesitate to give the Municipality large powers in sanitary matters are not the persons who may be trusted to work them as vigorously as the case requires. Municipal institutions are one of those advantages which India owes to the foreign government of England; and no discredit attaches if they have not as yet advanced to that degree of stability that is found in the country of their origin. But the effect of the introduction of municipal government has been that sanitation and everything else has improved, and I hope will go on improving; and as regards the objections to this Municipal Bill I trust they will soon disappear. The most violently abused reforms of yesterday are the accepted principles of to-day. Look at the stormy opposition which was raised to the introduction of the water-supply and the under-ground drainage, and now these are looked upon as the greatest of blessings. And I have good hope that when in the course of years this Bill again comes under revision, the inhabitants of Calcutta will have found that it has worked smoothly and well, and that the objections which are now raised to it will have altogether disappeared.

The Hon. SIR HENRY HARRISON said:—In closing this debate I only wish to say two things. First, I thank Sir Alfred Croft for reminding us that this is not the first occasion on which a very large and influential community in Calcutta has been extremely bitter against a certain proposal. We had in the opposition to the water-supply an exact counterpart to the opposition which is now raised by the identical community who were willing to do everything in their power to prevent it, and now they admit that there has never been any more beneficial work than the water-supply of the town. In the same manner, leaving aside the question of individual interest, I am strongly in the hope that, as years roll by, the other provisions in this Bill which have excited so much opposition will be found to have worked for the well-being of Calcutta. But apart from that I but give expression to my inmost conviction when I say that the impression that I have formed, more than anything else from my seven years' connection with Calcutta, is that the wealth and prosperity of the town are absolutely bound up with its commercial prosperity. It is absolutely by its trade, its commerce, and its industries, that Calcutta is what it is. Throughout these protracted proceedings all the objections which have been taken really turn on this, that the Bill has carefully watched the interests of the industries of Calcutta in their widest sense, and the contention has usually amounted to this, that those interests ought to give way. And, besides that, there is another very large class whose interests deserve to be carefully watched. I mean those thousands of the labouring community who are in a lower degree the life-blood of Calcutta, and who, it is only true to say, have entirely gone to the wall in the municipal arrangements of the town. I believe this is the only town in the world in which we take rates on the almost rack-rents paid for huts and make them the foundation of assessment, and in addition to that we have another system by which we impose a rate on huts for one kind of service which amounts to no less than 10, 15, or 20 per cent. on the rent. I know that these classes have no voice. I shall get no thanks from them, and they will probably follow their natural leaders in the opposition which has been raised to this Bill. But though these classes have no voice, and will probably not be conscious of the benefits done to them, yet I felt bound to think of their interests. The whole system of the consolidation of the rates has been framed largely with the view of relieving them of the burdens from which they suffer. The Bill itself is no doubt beset with difficulties. The amalgamation is perforce a work which cannot be carried out without great friction and dissatisfaction. To suppose, therefore, that the passing of the Bill will lead to immediate amendment or satisfaction is absurd. A new Bill like this, introducing a variety of new elements and, above all, largely increasing the jurisdiction of the town, must necessarily at the first start lead to embarrassment and friction in many ways; but when those particular difficulties have been overcome and the machinery of the new Act has been brought into fair working order, it will lead to considerable improvement in the municipal administration of the town, and, impressed as I am with that hope, I ask Your Honour to put the motion to the vote that the Bill do now pass.

HIS HONOR THE PRESIDENT said:—Before putting the question to the vote, I wish to be allowed to say a few words on the general aspects of this Bill, and on the remarks that have fallen from the Hon. Members opposite. It were idle to deny that the Council is in regard to this Bill by no means in harmony with a large body of native public opinion in Calcutta. There is no doubt that to one very influential element of the community the Bill is distasteful, because it does not go far enough in relaxing the bonds of Government control and interference; it does not reduce the proportion of nominated members; it does not provide for an elected Chairman; it does introduce a power of effective control by the Government. Another large and influential body object even more strongly to those provisions of the Bill, which give the Commissioners power to interfere with private property for the benefit of the community; the power of regulating buildings and enforcing sanitation, and above all, probably, the provision to which exception is most generally taken is that which fixes the annual value of houses, whose letting value cannot be ascertained, at 5 per cent. of the estimated cost of building. To me it is a matter of great regret that a Bill, which was initiated for no other purpose than that of providing the amalgamated municipality with a better system of Government, and which was drawn out under the auspices of such a proved friend of self-government as the distinguished Chairman of the Municipality, should have given rise to so much irritation and dread. I may and do consider much of the apprehension groundless, but I do not deny that it exists. I can even sympathise with the irritation which a large section of the public must feel, at finding that their opinions, which in the Municipality are largely dominant, are here both in Select Committee and in Council resisted by a compact phalanx of opposition consisting not solely of the official element by any means (for the line of cleavage is not between official and non-official), but of one which is, at all events, non-Hindu. Now no one can set more value than I do on legislating in harmony with public opinion, and I should always advocate making concessions where this can be done without sacrificing vital principle, and where it will have the effect of disarming opposition. But I think a little consideration will show that the Council are justified, notwithstanding this feeling of hostility, in maintaining their own views, and in declining to modify the main lines of the Bill in accordance with the wishes of those of whom I speak.

For, as I have already pointed out, this Bill has been threshed out twice in Select Committee—a Committee which latterly consisted of three-fourths of the Council. This Committee had before them not only the various memorials received from public associations and bodies. They had also the views of the opposition most ably enforced by their two principal representatives in this Council. But they had also the views of another and very important section of the community—those who represent the Commerce, the trades, and in a general way the European element of the community. They had also before them the views of the Health Society—a body that can make its voice heard elsewhere than in Calcutta. Now it is well known that if the representatives of the Hindu community thought the powers of control and of interference with individual liberty went too far, it is equally certain that the other section of which I speak thought the Bill does not go nearly far enough in providing for effective sanitation and for the interests of the minority. Both these opposing influences were brought to bear on the Committee. The Committee, as Sir Henry Harrison pointed out at an early stage of the debate, took up a line between the two sections, and though on the whole, no doubt, it leaned to the views of the latter section as more in accordance with the requirements of the times, they rejected what they considered the extreme demands of both parties, and what they presented to the Council was practically the irreducible minimum beyond which they were not likely to go in rediscussing the matter in Council. I would wish, however, in considering these questions of control and sanitation together, to look at the matter from a somewhat broader point of view. Now it can scarcely be denied—in fact it is one of the main arguments of the opposition—that neither the habits nor the views of the Hindu community on the subject of sanitation are in touch with those accepted at the present day by public opinion in Europe, and it will be said “then why force on the Hindu community your western ideas and practices for which admittedly the former are not prepared?” Well, the reason is that the Government is responsible in this matter to a much wider public opinion than even that of the Hindu community in Calcutta. It must be remembered that Government in its dealings with the local municipality is not negotiating with an independent potentate, whether friendly or hostile. In the long run the Government is itself responsible for the administration of the Calcutta Municipality. It has delegated its powers to a certain extent to the local community on the just and wise principle that a local body can best deal with local affairs, but this principle has its limits. From this point of view the municipality is a part, a department so to speak, of the Government, and the Government as I have said is responsible for the way its affairs are managed, responsible in the first instance to the people themselves, but secondarily responsible to the much larger public in Europe, who may either be, or may fancy themselves to be affected through the commerce of Calcutta, by the sanitary condition of the city; and that public opinion, let me tell you, has in the Suez Canal quarantine regulations a very potent and effective method of making its voice heard. So potent that it may almost be said to hold the existence of your commerce and therefore of the prosperity of this city in its hands. I have put forward this argument first, as it is based on the utilitarian grounds which appeal to everybody. But if some of these reasons did not exist, I should still say that it was the duty of Government in spite of opposition, to keep in its hands the power of maintaining an effective control over the sanitation of this great city for the health of which it is responsible, and that in this matter it is the duty of Government to lead and not to follow the less instructed public opinion of the time and place. I am not one who would treat with ridicule or with anything but respect sincere prejudices even when in my opinion quite unfounded, but I have great faith in the faculty of adaptation to environment, and as Hindu feeling has successfully adapted itself to much more perilous changes, such as the abolition of suttee, travelling by rail, medical tuition, the Calcutta water-supply, about all of which the prophets of evil had many hard things to say, so I believe will it very readily reconcile itself to the removal to a hospital of a houseless wayfarer when stricken with an infectious disease, and to compelling a landlord to purify an infected chamber before letting it out to a fresh lodger. At the same time I feel sure that the powers with which the municipality is armed in dealing with private property will be exercised with all leniency, and that Government in exercising its powers of control will not lose sight of the prevalent feeling on the subject.

Turning now to the new rating section, I am bound to say that the principle which underlies that section is manifestly so fair and so reasonable that as an abstract principle it cannot be gainsaid. It is manifestly unjust that if A and B live in houses of equal value they should be unequally taxed. A, whose house is a rented one, should not pay double what B does, merely because B's house is his own, or even his ancestral property. So far I suppose we are all agreed, but when we come to apply this principle and try to discover a reasonable method of ascertaining the real value of B's house, then the difficulties begin, and denunciation is apt to take the place of argument. I do not wish to add to the irritation prevalent on the subject, so I shall not notice the hard words and exaggerated language used concerning it. But I would point out that the argument founded on the danger of fraudulent and benami leases being multiplied, comes with bad grace from those who are at the same time urging the more complete emancipation of the Municipality from Government control.

I think, too, there may be in the public mind, not perhaps in the minds of the few who lead, but of the many who are led, some real misapprehension about this matter. I was much astonished to hear the rate denounced by a gentleman for whom I have a sincere respect, as a 5 per cent. cess on the capital value of the house, and to learn that it was supposed by many that people living in their own houses would have actually to pay the sum of 5 per cent., instead of this being merely an assumed value for rating purposes. This very morning one of the Calcutta dailies published a letter in which the tax was denounced because impoverished tenants "would have to pay 5 per cent. on the present cost of the building." No doubt if such a mistake as this is general, it would account for a much more vehement expression of indignation than that which we have already met with. But even where there is no misunderstanding, I fear there is a good deal of vexation. With those who merely want to escape paying their fair share of the rates, I have no sympathy; but with the very numerous cases of impoverished descendants of good families who cling to the ancestral home, as a matter of sentiment almost as deep as religion, I have a very real sympathy. I trust the saving clause which Sir Henry Harrison has introduced will be effective in protecting this class, and even if it should be found in practice to cover more cases than those on whose behalf it was invented, I should look on this as a lesser evil than leaving the latter altogether unprotected. I do not say that even with this safeguard the rating clause as it now stands is a satisfactory solution of the problem, but I do say that of all the methods of solving it laid before the Council, this seems to me the least unsatisfactory.

I will not detain you now by touching on other parts of the Bill. It is a matter of no small grief to me that the attitude which the Council has been bound to maintain should be one which to many of my personal friends and representatives of the Hindu community appears one of unyielding hostility. I am convinced that it is not so, and that we have all of us given the most attentive, and in some cases sympathetic, consideration to the views and arguments of the minority. But constituted as the Council is, and legislating as the Government must do in accordance with the views not of one class, but of the most enlightened general public opinion of the day, the result could not be otherwise. I have carefully considered the question whether by postponing the passing of the Bill I should in any way help to arrive at a better understanding. I have quite satisfied myself that nothing is to be gained by such a course. It is quite certain that the views held by three-fourths of the Council after the full and ample debate which the whole subject has undergone both in Council and Committee will not be changed, and I am equally hopeless of any change being effected in the views of the minority. To postpone the Bill will therefore only be to keep open an irritating sore without any prospect of arriving at a better understanding, and it is better that the arguments and appeals of those whom the minority represent should be at once addressed to higher authority with whom the question ultimately rests. 'Interest reipublice ut sit finis litium'. The controversy is disposed of as far as this Council is concerned, and the sooner it is brought to the consideration of a higher tribunal, the better, and I will gladly facilitate this.

Before I sit down, I trust I may be permitted to bear testimony to the indomitable perseverance and the unfailing courtesy with which the losing side have fought their uphill battle. These qualities are not so invariable in some assemblies of which we read, that they should fail to receive honor where they exist. And now I will only thank the Council collectively for their regular and steady attendance throughout an unusually prolonged session, and trust that the Bill, if passed, may be fruitful of good government, and undarkened by the train of evils which its opponents have prophesied for it.

The motion was then put to the vote and carried on the following division:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.
The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation. — Summary. — The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the readings during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the air is shown in enclosed square centages, saturated vapour being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number in the brackets means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the past 10 years or the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

for the week ending Friday, the 25th of May 1888.

The variations are negative when the mean for the week is less than the corresponding normal mean, and positive when greater. The means of the district are the numerical average of the rainfall return received in the district, i.e. from total rainfall at the sub-divisional years. Under the head District observations of rainfall the normal mean denoting cloud amount represents the part of the sky covered, the whole sky being denoted by 10.

CALCUTTA, the 25th May 1888.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 25th OF MAY 1888.

The meteorological conditions of the present week in Bengal resemble very closely those of the previous two weeks. Weather has been generally slightly disturbed, and local storms with rain have been fairly numerous, particularly at the close of the week, when in North and part of East Bengal very heavy rain was received. The meteorological conditions in Bengal and Assam have as usual varied slightly from day to day, but not to such an extent as to materially alter the weather. For the greater part of the week, therefore, a rather strong moist southerly wind current has been blowing at the southern stations, south-easterly and easterly winds have been blowing at the eastern stations, and a steady easterly and north-easterly current at the northern stations, while in the west and south-west of the province winds have been south-westerly and westerly. There has been thus a feeble circulation of winds over the province, which has caused local disturbances and rain as previously stated. At the close of the previous week also a feeble low-pressure area had advanced from the Bay over South Bengal, and on the 19th it had again advanced inland and was situated in Behar. This intensified the low pressure area, which is usual at this season, over parts of Chutia Nagpur and Behar, and this decided low pressure over those districts has remained a distinct feature in the meteorology of the province up to the close of the week.

While, therefore, the conditions in Bengal and Assam during the week have not varied to any large extent, more important changes have been taking place in the south of the Bay. The first advance of the south-west monsoon winds, as described in previous reports, took place in the south of the Bay on about the 9th and 10th of the month, and in front of this advance a feeble cyclonic storm was formed, which crossed the South Madras Coast on the evening of the 11th. During the present week a second advance of monsoon winds has taken place in the south of the Bay, and from the 17th up to the 22nd decidedly strong winds have been reported from the Ceylon stations. After this date wind velocities again rapidly decreased in the south of the Bay. This advance of monsoon winds did not, as in the first case, give rise to any storm in front of it, and it apparently simply advanced up the centre and east of the Bay, and moderate and fairly general rain commenced to fall at the South Burma stations from about the 24th, though it was only on the 26th that very heavy rain (nearly 7 inches) was first reported at Moulmein. It is impossible to say with certainty how far up the centre of the Bay this advance of south-west monsoon winds reached, but it is probable it extended over the whole of the southern half. This advance of monsoon winds has been indeed the principal meteorological feature during the past week.

Pressure.—Has been rather low for the greater part of the present week, and taking into consideration only those stations from which observations have been received for a series of years, the mean pressure of the province of Bengal for the week has been 0.048 inch in defect of the normal. Pressure, as previously stated, has been comparatively low in the west of the province, and thus while at Chittagong the defect has been only 0.030 inch, at Dacca only 0.019 inch, and at Purneah 0.022 inch; at Gya the defect has been 0.100 inch, at Patna 0.059 inch, and at Burdwan 0.069 inch. For the previous week the general defect was only 0.04 inch, so that this low pressure is increasing rather than decreasing in amount. In Assam pressure has also been in defect during the week, but the defect is very evenly distributed, and it amounts to only 0.038 inch.

Temperature.—Has been below the normal by rather large amounts in North Bengal and North Behar; it has been almost normal in South-West and East Bengal, and South Behar, while it has been rather largely above it in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur. The largest variations are a defect of 3.3° in North Bengal, and an excess of 3.5° in Chutia Nagpur. For the whole province of Bengal the mean temperature for the week has been almost absolutely normal, because, as before stated, the districts in the north and east of the province have been below it, and those in the south and west have been above it by an almost equal amount. In Assam temperature has been 1.1° below the normal.

Rainfall.—The heaviest rainfall during the week took place on the 24th and 25th in the districts of North Bengal and the neighbouring parts of East Bengal. Up to this time rainfall had been generally light, but on these days falls in excess of two and three inches were numerous. Thus the following stations received falls in excess of four inches on one or other of these days:—Mymensingh, Netrokona, Baloghāt and Bogra, and in excess of two inches—Jamalpur, Subornakholly, Sherpore, Nowkhilla, Durgapore, Panchibibi, Dinagore, Rungpore, Bagdogra, Ulipore, Dinhatta, Cooch Behar, Mickligunge and Kissengunge. It will thus be seen that rather heavy rain has been received over parts of the province during the week.

The average rainfall at the stations in North Bengal during the week has been 3.15 inches, or about one-half more than the normal. In East Bengal the falls have averaged 1.75 inches, or almost exactly the normal fall. North Behar and South-West Bengal have averaged about seven-tenths of an inch, or about the usual amount; but the falls in Orissa, South Behar and Chutia Nagpur have been very small, and only a mere fraction of the normal falls.

Assam has received good general rain almost throughout the week, and the total amounts reported are—Sibsagar 3.75 inches, Dhubri 2.60 inches, and Silchar 2.08 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 25th of May 1888 :—

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

Bombay Castle, 30th May 1888.

No. 1837.—In exercise of the power conferred by Act I of 1870, the following Rules for Quarantine against Cholera have been made by the Government of Bombay, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council: they have effect from the 24th instant in the Port of Aden and at Perim as a temporary measure:—

- I.—The Commander of every vessel, including buggalows or other native craft, arriving from Saigon, shall, before entering the harbour, indicate by signal the port from which such vessel has come.
- II.—Such Commander shall not, except as hereinafter provided, allow any communication, either with the pilot boat, except orally, or with the shore, or with any other vessel or boat in the harbour.
- III.—Immediately on arrival the Commander shall cause the letter B of the Commercial Signal Code to be hoisted, and shall keep the said flag flying during his stay in port or until authorized by the Health Officer to haul it down. If communication with the shore is not desired, the vessel shall anchor at such place as may be pointed out by the Port authorities, having regard to the season of the year. If communication with the shore is desired, the Health Officer shall go alongside the vessel, and, after all necessary enquiries, shall direct the Commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage duly appointed and notified in that behalf by the Resident, there to remain for a period of seven days from the date of arrival, or for the shorter period prescribed in Rule IV, and undergo disinfection, which should apply as well to crew, passengers, effects, and susceptible goods.
- IV.—If the Health Officer of the Port has sufficient evidence that no cases of a suspicious nature have taken place on board during the voyage, and if the vessel is besides in good hygienic condition, the duration of the quarantine will be diminished according to the following scale:—

After eight days of voyage	six days of quarantine.
Do. nine ditto	five ditto.
Do. ten ditto	four ditto.
Do. eleven ditto	three ditto.
Do. twelve ditto	two ditto.
Do. thirteen ditto	and upwards	...	twenty-four hours of quarantine.

- V.—If during the period a vessel is at the quarantine anchorage aforesaid, any case or cases of cholera should occur on board, the said vessel shall remain in quarantine for a period of seven days from the date of the last case occurring, and be subject to all the prohibitions provided for in Rule III.

- VI.—When any vessel has been placed in quarantine as aforesaid, the Health Officer may direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from illness, and whose services may not be required on board the vessel, to such particular spots as may from time to time be selected by the Resident as places of quarantine, there to remain for a period of seven days. If a case of cholera occurs among such passengers and crew during any such period, they shall remain in a place of quarantine for a period of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case of such illness.
- VII.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as the Health Officer may deem necessary to prevent the spread of the disease.
- VIII.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to all vessels in quarantine of such supplies of provisions, stores and other articles as may be required by those on board. Such supplies will be placed on the boats of the vessels in quarantine to be subsequently removed by members of their crews.
- IX.—All vessels arriving at Aden and Perim which may have communicated with vessels coming from Saigon shall be subjected to the same quarantine as vessels arriving at Aden and Perim from that Port.
- X.—All vessels which have undergone quarantine in the manner above prescribed should have the fact clearly stated on their Bills of Health.

By order of His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor in Council,

J. NUGENT,
Chief Secretary to Government.

Further particulars regarding the position of the wrecks of the Avocet and Teddington.

The following Notice to Mariners, issued by the British Admiralty, London (No. 115 of the year 1888), is re-published with reference to Nos. 51 (1) and 54, dated respectively the 19th August and 15th September 1887, and previous orders on the subject, issued by this Department.

With reference to Notice to Mariners, No. 190 of 1887, on reported sunken rocks northward of Jebel Zukur island:—

Telegraphic information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander T. F. Pullen, H. M.'s. Surveying Vessel Stork, that he has found a small coral patch, with a least depth of 15 feet, situated in lat. $14^{\circ} 22' 8''$ N., long. $42^{\circ} 41' 32''$ E.

This is undoubtedly the danger on which the steam vessels Avocet and Teddington struck during last year. It lies midway between the two best positions, which, from conflicting evidence, could be assigned to the respective vessels when they struck. The depths around the rock are 28 to 30 fathoms.

The Stork's search is the fourth that has been made by H. M.'s. ships before this small danger has been re-discovered.

Vessels passing down the Red Sea should keep to the westward of this rock, and should remember that irregular lateral currents sometimes set across the sea; and if, when on the homeward voyage, they pass eastward of Abu Ail, care should be taken to steer to the westward after rounding that island, until Jebel Zukur summit bears about S.S.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E.

There is little doubt that the loss of the Avocet was due to one of the lateral currents above mentioned, as not only was the steam vessel St. Oswald in company with the Avocet, also to the eastward of the correct track, but other vessels passed on both sides of the two vessels while stopped to save the crew of the Avocet.

(The bearing is Magnetic. Variation 4° Westerly in 1888).

DEFINITION OF ACTIVE SERVICE.

Substitute the following for the portion beginning with "In the case of a Military Officer," &c., down to "Rule I, under clause (i) above, applies also to Military Officers subject to Civil Rules":

"In the case of a Military Officer subject to Civil Rules, Active Service for the purpose of calculating the amount of leave admissible under the Rules of this Code commences from the date of first substantive appointment in the Civil Department, except in the case of an Officer of the Royal Engineers who was in civil employ on the 1st November 1886 and elected for Continuous Service in India, who counts Active Service from the date of his election.

"Note.—For the purpose of determining whether leave may be granted to such an officer, and the amount of the leave allowances, Continuous Service and Active Service include any previous service which would be treated as such under these Rules.

"Rules (g) and (i) above apply to Military Officers subject to Civil Rules."

(b).—PAGE VIII.

DEFINITION OF CONTINUOUS SERVICE AND CONTINUOUS ACTIVE SERVICE.

Add at the end :—

"And in the case of a Royal Engineer who has elected for Continuous Service in India, furlough on urgent private affairs under Rule XI of the Rules of 1868."

(c).—PAGE 159.

SECTION 48, PROVISIO (ii).

Add the following Note :—

"Note.—The amount of furlough due under Military Rules is calculated on the whole period of service qualifying for furlough, i.e., without reference to the minimum periods of service that must be completed before furlough can be granted under those Rules, deducting from this amount any leave actually taken which under those Rules reduces the amount of furlough due. When a Military Officer becomes subject to the Civil Rules, the Military Department will, on application and on being furnished with the date of commencement of Active Service, furnish to the Civil Account Officer, to whose audit such officer becomes subject, a memorandum showing the furlough earned, the different kinds of leave taken (distinguishing those which should be deducted from the maximum furlough admissible), and the balance of furlough due to him under Military Rules.

PAY AND ACTING ALLOWANCE CODE.

Pages 289—292.

SECTIONS 45 TO 47.

Substitute the following for these Sections :—

45. In the case of progressive appointments, acting allowances are fixed as follows:—

(a) An officer whose substantive pay is progressive, and who acts in an office of which the pay is fixed.

In this case the officer's acting allowances will be calculated as if his substantive pay were a fixed one, equal to the amount at which from time to time it stands.

(b) An officer whose substantive pay is fixed, and who acts in an office of which the pay is progressive.

In this case the officer's acting allowance will be calculated upon the pay to which he would from time to time have risen if he had held the officiating appointment substantively.

(c) An officer whose substantive pay is progressive, and who acts in an office of which the pay is progressive.

In this case the officer will draw—

(1) His substantive pay, with the increments thereof as they fall due

(2) The acting allowance which he would have drawn if the substantive and officiating appointments were both on fixed pay equal to the minimum : provided that the maximum limit of salary shall be not the said minimum pay of the officiating appointment, but the pay to which the officer would have risen if his officiating tenure had been substantive.

Example (a).—An officer who is substantively in the Rs. 170 stage of an appointment of Rs. 160—10—200 is appointed to act in an office of which the pay is Rs. 200—8—240. His salary is thus fixed—

	Rs.
Pay	170
Acting allowance, $\frac{1}{2}$ of Rs. 200	40
Total	210

But this is limited the first year to Rs. 200.

Next year he gets pay Rs. 180 + acting allowance Rs. 40,—total Rs. 220. But this is limited for a year to Rs. 208.

Example (b).—A Covenanted Civil Servant, substantively in the Rs. 1,200 stage of an appointment of which the pay is Rs. 1,000—50—1,250, acts in an appointment of Rs. 1,500—50—1,750. His salary is—

	Rs.
Pay	1,200
Acting allowance, $\frac{2}{3}$ (Rs. 1,500—1,000)	333 $\frac{1}{3}$
Total	1,533 $\frac{1}{3}$

Limited the first year to Rs. 1,500.

In future years he receives—

Second year—

	Rs.
Pay	1,250
Acting allowance	333 $\frac{1}{3}$
Total	1,583 $\frac{1}{3}$

Limited to Rs. 1,550.

In future years he gets Rs. 1,583 $\frac{1}{3}$, which is the limit of salary in this case.

NOTE.—In calculating the salary of an officer in an acting appointment, the whole of the acting tenure, whether continuous or not, is taken into account.

46. If an officer is appointed substantively to a progressive appointment in which he has already officiated, his pay is fixed as follows :—

(1) If the salary which he drew when last officiating is equal to one of the stages of the pay of the appointment, his pay shall be fixed at that stage, and he shall count in that stage the time during which he has been drawing the said salary.

(2) If the salary which he drew when last officiating is intermediate between two stages, his pay shall be fixed at that amount for half the period during which an increment is earned, and on the first day of the month thereafter succeeding he shall be eligible to the next higher stage of the progressive pay.

Example.—An officer is on 20th June substantively appointed to an appointment of which the pay is Rs. 200—10—250, and in which he is already officiating—

(a) If his salary at the time of his appointment and from 1st March last has been Rs. 220, he continues to draw Rs. 220, and on 1st March next rises to Rs. 230.

(b) If his salary at time of appointment is Rs. 225, he will draw Rs. 225 till 1st January, and then will get Rs. 230.

47. An officer transferred substantively to a progressive appointment from an appointment in which he is drawing pay in excess of the minimum pay of the new appointment will, if the transfer is made by an authority to which both appointments are subordinate, or if the transfer is declared by the Local Government or by a Department of the Government of India to have been made for special reasons and in the interests of the public service, draw the nearest stage, or, if two stages are equally near, then the next higher stage of pay in the new appointment, but will count time for increments as if he had commenced on the minimum pay.

47A. Except as provided in sections 46 and 47, an officer appointed substantively to an office of which the pay is progressive will begin with the minimum pay.

- (e) Executive officers of the District Road Department when travelling on duty.
- (f) Coolies engaged in repairing roads, with their tools and instruments.
- (g) Persons carrying dead bodies or property sent in by the police.

6. I shall not charge or demand tolls from persons who wade or swim across, or take cattle or other animals or property across at their own cost and risk, or from persons who cross themselves, or take other persons across without charge, in their own boats.

7. I hereby agree to pay the rent in the following instalments :—

But if at any time before the expiry of the period for which the ferry has been leased to me, I be removed therefrom for any breach of the terms and conditions of the lease, or for any wilful breach of any of the rules under section 15 of the Act, I shall be liable to pay rent up to and including the instalment due next after my removal.

8. If the rates of toll are reduced during the currency of my lease, or the exemptions from the payment of it are extended, this agreement is to be modified accordingly. I shall be given a fair opportunity of satisfying the Magistrate as to the effect of the change, and if the terms proposed by him thereafter are not such as I can reasonably accept, I will, according to the law, immediately carry into effect the order reducing the rates of toll, or extending the exemption from payment of it, but will at the same time state the amount of rent I may be willing to pay under the altered circumstances of the case. Should my offer appear to the Magistrate to be inadequate, it shall be competent to him to remove me and place another person in charge of the ferry, and for such time as I remain in charge of the ferry after the issue of the order reducing the rates of tolls, or extending the exemption from payment of it, I shall pay rent only at the rate tendered by me.

9. If I make default in the payment of the rent for the ferry, or of any penalty which may be lawfully imposed, or if I do not observe and perform the covenants herein contained, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate to remove me from the charge of the ferry, and to settle the same with some other person. After such removal, I shall not be entitled to any part of the proceeds of the ferry or to levy any toll therefor. And if the rent on reletting the ferry fall short of the amount at which it was leased to me, and the Government thereby incur loss, I shall be held responsible for such difference or loss, the amount of which may be deducted from my deposit. If the deposit does not cover the loss incurred, the rent due from me, and the amount of tolls refunded by the Magistrate under Rule 21 of the rules under section 15 of the Act, the total amount of which is deficient shall be recoverable in the manner set forth in section 12 of the Act.

10. I will not assign, sublet or part with the possession of the ferry without the previous consent in writing of the Magistrate.

11. I shall not claim any compensation on account of roads being closed for repairs, or on account of inundations, or the breaking down of bridges.

The results of observations at the Alipore Observatory are not rigorously comparable with the registers of past years (at the Park-street Observatory). The barometer is about 3 feet higher at Alipore, and, other things being equal, reads therefore .003 lower. The diurnal range of temperature is also greater at Alipore, and the mean temperature apparently about 0.5° higher; and, finally, the thermometer which furnished the record of temperature at the Surveyor-General's Office during 20 years and upwards is found to read 0.6 higher than the Kew standard thermometer, which is the standard of reference at the present Observatory.

Station. Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the readings during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed in percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number of numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the reports sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the last 10 years in the district sending a return divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

or the week ending Friday the 1st of June 1888.

CALCUTTA, the 1st June 1888.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 1ST OF JUNE 1888.

THE meteorological conditions in Bengal and Assam during the past week call for little detailed comment, and throughout this period weather has been decidedly disturbed. For practically the whole week there has been a distinct tendency to a circulation of winds over Bengal. In Orissa winds have been south-westerly, and in South Bengal south-westerly and southerly, and the velocity of the winds blowing at the head of the Bay has been very large, particularly at the commencement of the week. At the eastern stations winds have been south-easterly, and at the northern stations easterly, while in the west of Behar and in Chutia Nagpur winds have in some cases been north-westerly and westerly. The result of this interaction and of the strong moist winds pouring into the province has been the formation of extremely numerous local storms, generally accompanied by rain, in almost all districts of the province, and thus good general rain has been received. This rainfall, however, cannot be said to have been brought up by the true south-west monsoon current, for this current had not made its appearance over Bengal up to the close of the week.

The meteorological changes taking place in the Bay have again been more important than those over the land area. In the report for the previous week, it was noticed that a second advance of monsoon winds had taken place over the south of the Bay, lasting from the 17th up to the 22nd. Winds then fell off in force at the southern stations, and up to the morning of the 27th they remained of about normal force. From this date, however, an extremely rapid increase took place in the strength of the winds at the Ceylon stations, and exceptionally strong winds were reported from the 28th up to the close of the week. During this period weather must have been more or less stormy generally over the whole of the south of the Bay, but up to the 1st there was no evidence of any distinct storm having formed in front of this inrush of monsoon winds, which on this date had reached well into the middle of the Bay, when it almost appeared as if the advance would continue up the Bay, and bring about the commencement of the true rains in Bengal. The further history of this advance, however, belongs to the meteorology of the succeeding week.

Pressure.—The variations of pressure in Bengal and Assam during the week have been of the ordinary oscillatory character, and taking only those stations into consideration from which reports have been received for a series of years, the mean pressure of the province is found to have been about five-thousandths of an inch only in defect of the normal, while in Assam pressure has been almost absolutely normal. In Bengal the western stations generally have been in defect, while the eastern and south-eastern stations have shown slight excess pressures.

Temperature.—Owing to the numerous local storms with rain which have occurred during the week, temperature has been below the normal in all districts except Chutia Nagpur. The defects have been large in North Bengal, North Behar, and Assam, where they average about 5°, while elsewhere they range from about one and a-half to two and a-half degrees. In Chutia Nagpur temperature has been slightly above the normal. In Bengal generally the defect has averaged 2·4°.

Rainfall.—All districts have received fairly good general rain. In East and North Bengal the falls have averaged between three and four inches, in Orissa and North Behar they have averaged from two to two and a-half inches, while in the remaining divisions the falls have ranged from one to one and a-quarter inches. In all districts except South-West Bengal and Orissa the falls have been in excess of the normal, but in these two districts the falls have been in slight defect.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 1st of June 1888:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h. 10h. 16h. and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

DURING the week ending 19th May 1888, the birth and death-rates of the principal Municipalities in Bengal stood at 20 and 24·2 per 1,000 of population, respectively, as opposed to 17·7 and 21 per 1,000, respectively, in the preceding week ending 12th May, indicating a considerable improvement in the registration of both births and deaths.

2. The highest proportions of births and deaths were returned from the undermentioned Municipalities:—

Births.			Deaths.
		Ratio per mille.			Ratio per mille.

Burdwan	...	29·0	Chittagong	...	32·8
			Serampore	...	31·4

3. The following table denotes that, as compared with the outcome of the preceding week, there was an enhancement of mortality from fever and the maladies returned under the head of "Other causes," particularly from the former, and that the casualties from the rest of the death-causes exhibit only fractional differences:—

						Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—

Cholera	4·5	5·2
Small-pox	1	2
Fever	9·9	7·6
Bowel-complaints	2·7	2·3
Injury	6	3
Other causes	6·4	5·4

4. Of the above-mentioned diseases, excluding small-pox and injury, the casualties from which were nowhere noticeably large, and bowel-complaints, which proved conspicuously fatal only in the Serampore town, viz., at the rate of 11·8 per 1,000 of population, cholera, fever and "Other causes" proved most fatal to life in the following Municipalities:—

Cholera.		Fever.		Other causes.

Further particulars regarding the position of the wrecks of the Asocet and Tiddington.

THE following Notice to Mariners, issued by the British Admiralty, London (No. 115 of the year 1888), is re-published with reference to Nos. 51 (1) and 54, dated respectively the 19th August and 15th September 1887, and previous orders on the subject, issued by this Department.

With reference to Notice to Mariners, No. 190 of 1887, on reported sunken rocks northward of Jebel Zukur island :—

Telegraphic information has been received from Lieutenant and Commander T. F. Pullen, H. M.'s. Surveying Vessel Stork, that he has found a small coral patch, with a least depth of 15 feet, situated in lat. $14^{\circ} 22' 8''$ N., long. $42^{\circ} 41' 32''$ E.

This is undoubtedly the danger on which the steam vessels Asocet and Tiddington struck during last year. It lies midway between the two best positions, which, from conflicting evidence, could be assigned to the respective vessels when they struck. The depths around the rock are 28 to 30 fathoms.

The Stork's search is the fourth that has been made by H. M.'s. ships before this small danger has been re-discovered.

Vessels passing down the Red Sea should keep to the westward of this rock, and should remember that irregular lateral currents sometimes set across the sea; and if, when on the homeward voyage, they pass eastward of Abu Ail, care should be taken to steer to the westward after rounding that island, until Jebel Zukur summit bears about S.S.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E.

There is little doubt that the loss of the Avocet was due to one of the lateral currents above mentioned, as not only was the steam vessel St. Oswald in company with the Avocet, also to the eastward of the correct track, but other vessels passed on both sides of the two vessels while stopped to save the crew of the Avocet.

PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT—BENGAL.

DISTRICT ROAD FUND.

NOTIFICATION No. 180.

The 2nd June 1888.

THE subjoined accounts and reports of the Road Cess Committees of the districts of Monghyr, Bhagulpore, Purneah, Maldah and Sonthal Pergunnahs, for the half-year ending the 31st March 1887, together with the remarks thereon of the Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division, are published for general information.

W. B. BESTIC,

Under-Secretary to the Govt of Bengal.

No. 97, dated Monghyr, the 12th July 1887.

From—HERBERT MOSLEY, Esq., C.S., Chairman, District Board, Monghyr,
To—The Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division.

IN compliance with Government Circular No. 6, dated 29th March 1887, I have the honour to submit account and report of the road cess operation in this district during the half-year ending 31st March 1887.

Five meetings were held during the half-year, all of which were attended by sufficient number of members to form a quorum. The attendance of the members on the whole was fair.

As regards the meetings of the Branch Committee, I have to note that no meeting was held in Jamui during the six months which this report appertains. No explanation is forthcoming, the then Sub-divisional Officer being away on leave, but it is conjectured that the failure was due to the illness and mental anxiety the Sub-divisional Officer laboured under.

Two meetings were held in the Begoozerai sub-division, and the attendance of the members was fair. It is reported that the European member could not attend these meetings, for their residence being long distance off from the head-quarters, but most of them have rendered great assistance by undertaking repairs of several district and branch roads.

Separate report has been submitted by the Collector regarding the cess collection. The result was good, the percentage having amounted to 82.

Necessary repairs were carried out to most of the roads and bridges. The roads were maintained in tolerable order, so as to enable the passing of wheeled conveyance during the touring season.

The following is a list of the new works :—

1. Raising and providing waterway on the Jamui to Mullehpur road.
2. Bridging Bucktearpur to Bulhi road.
3. Constructing Khagria to Gogri road.
4. Ditto Koperia to Sonbarsa road.
5. Metalling a portion of Sultangunge road.
6. Converting Tirhoot road into a permanent embankment.
7. Metalling Persanda to Gidhour road.
8. Constructing Jamui to Betya road.
9. Demarcating road lands—

Luckhewerai to Sikandra road.
Patua road.
Kujrah road.
Kharuckpore road.

Bhagalpur road.
Sultangunge road.
Khagria to Gogri road.
Bucktiarpur to Bulhi road.

10. Constructing inspection bungalows at Betya, Billow, and Munsee.

Almost all of the abovementioned works were in progress from the previous years, consequently they do not call for any special mention, most of them having been noticed in the previous reports.

Tree-planting on certain roads is still continued under contract system wherein contracts exist, but no new contract has been let out for this purpose. Two years' extension has been granted to the contractors, whose terms of contract have expired on the 30th September last. Other roads are being planted departmentally, the contract system being objectionable. The following figures show the number of trees maintained by the contractors as also those maintained by the Department :—

Trees maintained by contractors—

Monghyr to Burhya road	729
Sultangunge to Belhar	1,910
Ganges ghât to Basidpur	7,468
Total				10,107

Trees maintained by Department—

Jamui sub-division	4,681
Sheikpura ditto	396
Sudder ditto	4,214
Begoonerai ditto	300
Total				9,591

The accounts have been audited as usual, monthly, by the Standing Audit Sub-Committee. No inspection has been made by the Local Examiner or by his Assistants during the period under report.

The state of the communications, as far as I have seen, was fair. The roads were tolerably well maintained and kept in passable order. I did not approve altogether of the system on which the repairs of roads are carried out in this district. The kutchra roads were kept flat instead of with a gentle rise in the centre, and were never properly rammed and rolled when the earth was damp.

Liberal grants were made to the Branch Committees, and necessary repairs have been carried out to the village roads.

The working of the establishment of the Road Cess Committee in its several branches has been generally good.

C. MURRAY, Major-General,Vice-Chairman, District Board.

HERBERT MOSLEY,

Chairman, District Board.

No. 1624, dated Bhagulpore, the 11th July 1887.

From—A. A. WACE, Esq., c.s., Magistrate and Chairman, Road Cess Committee, Bhagulpore,

To—The Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division and Sonthal Pergunnahs.

WITH reference to your No. 43P.W. of the 25th May 1887, I have the honour to submit the District Road Fund Report for the six months, from 1st October 1886 to the 31st March 1887.

2. The beginning of the year is always largely taken up in making arrangements for works, collection of materials, manufacture of bricks, &c., and in surface repairs to roads. The Committee therefore have very little to lay out. Contractors are paid generally after March. Hence the expenditure shown in the accounts is low in proportion to the budget allotment under head Original Works and Repairs.

3. Original Works.—The works under this head have got fairly forward, excepting the erection of boundary pillars and demarcation of road lands, which is standing over for permission from zemindars to take possession of lands. In South Bhagulpore the Ghogha-Bousee road is still the most important job in hand under this head.

In North Bhagulpore the Committee directed their attention to bridging on the Pecpra-Singhessur road, which will be an important feeder to the Tirhoot State Railway when extended further eastwards. The contractor, however, has been very slow in making bricks. Money has also been spent through the Durbhunga Road Cess Committee on a feeder to the Nirmali station on this railway line. Two new bungalows have been under construction in South Bhagulpore. A bridge has been under re-construction on the Doomka road.

4. Arboriculture.—During the period under report 745 trees were planted out on 6½ mile of roads. From the beginning of the operation up to date, 10,080 trees have been planted out and maintained on six roads. The Branch Road Committees have maintained trees and planted on sides of five roads.

5. Repairs.—First surface repairs to roads were done, and they have been kept in drivable condition. Earthwork, wherever required, is in progress. For pucca roads metal has been collected, and 88,985 cubic feet of metalling, which was collected last year, has been laid down in renewal coats of road No. 1, Bhagulpore to Sonthal Pergunnahs. Twenty-five per cent. of the allotment under the head has been spent.

6. To be done next year.—The projects that have been in progress during the half-year will be carried on. Whether any other work will be originated must depend on the funds placed at the disposal of the District Board in the orders on the budget already submitted.

7. Road Cess Act.—The Road Cess Act has worked fairly. The certificate procedure is cumbersome for the many very petty demands. The estimated annual receipts of provincial rates, "cess on land," is Rs. 1,34,800, of which Rs. 96,169 was due in the December and March kists, including arrears (Rs. 20,073). The actual collections during the six months came to Rs. 84,648-9-2, including arrears (Rs. 12,495). The percentage of collection is Rs. 88, which is a slight improvement on that of the same period of 1885-86; and the improvement has been far more marked in respect of arrears, being 62·3 against 47·8 in the previous year.

8. Committees.—* * * In Banka and Soopool the attendance has improved, and I attribute the slight falling off as regards the District Committee to the knowledge that it was doomed to give way to the District Board.

9. A Sub-Committee of the District Road Cess is charged with preparing budget estimates, auditing accounts, accepting tenders for works, &c. It meets once every month. It was dissolved on the introduction of the Local Self-Government Act on 1st April, and the District Board not having been yet constituted, I have been unable to submit the annual accounts to the usual scrutiny.

10. Village Roads and Branch Road Committees.—The following is a statement of budget allotments and expenditure incurred for the improvement of village communications by the Branch Road Committees, viz. :—

			Allotment.	Expenditure.
			Rs.	Rs.
Head-quarters	3 920	2,008
Banka	2,804	285
Mudhepoorah	2,792	810
Soopool	4,804	1,178
Total			13,820	4,226

In North Bhagulpore much of the katcha road work has always to be done in the rains : but in Banka cold weather repairs stand better, and I have called for an explanation of the very small expenditure.

11. Establishment.—There was no change in the engineering establishment during the year under report.

12. Accounts.—Book and accounts have been kept properly. They were inspected by the Local Auditor in January last, and he had very little to criticise.

13. The accounts for the period herewith submitted include the adjustments made on the 1st April 1887, as per Accountant-General's No. 971 L.F., dated the 25th March 1887.

No. 67, dated Purneah, the 11th June 1887.

From—H. G. COOKE, Esq., Chairman, District Road Cess Committee, Purneah,
To—The Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division.

IN accordance with the instructions contained in the Government's letter No. 2381 of the 21st ultimo, conveyed in your No. 43P.W. of the 25th idem, to the address of the Collector of Purneah, I have the honor to submit a report on the working of the Road Cess Committee for the half-year ending 31st March 1887.

There was no change in the personnel of the Committee during the half-year.

There were four meetings held, and the average attendance of members was fair, being 55.

All the members took great interest in the Road Cess affairs, and displayed independence in discussing matters which came before them.

No meeting had to be postponed for want of a quorum, except one at Kissengunge.

All the planters helped the Committee by looking after the village roads and repairing them, and five of them, including the Vice-Chairman, helped the Committee by auditing the monthly accounts.

Working of the Act and the feelings of the people—The Act worked smoothly throughout the year, and the tax was paid without any murmur.

Working of the Committee.—During the half-year under report, 320 miles of II class, 59 of III class, and 122 of IV class roads were surface repaired. Eighteen bridges also were repaired.

The unusual rains of July and August last greatly damaged many roads and destroyed many bridges. Those roads have been repaired, and the renewal of bridges is in progress.

Some of the roads are badly in want of bridges, and I have allotted a large sum of money for construction of bridges during the current year, estimates for which are under preparation, and some have already been submitted for sanction.

The inspection bungalows on the district roads were kept in repair.

Many village roads in the sudder sub-division and few in the Arrareah and Kissengunge sub-divisions have been repaired. The major part of the amount allotted for village roads has been advanced to gentlemen for repairs of those roads, but some of them have submitted their accounts, but many have not; hence the progress under this head cannot be ascertained, but I presume that most of those roads have been repaired and their accounts are awaited.

Arboriculture.—The operation under this head was confined to the maintenance of 3,226 trees. No new trees were planted during the half-year.

Inspection of district works by the Divisional Superintendent.—Some district works were examined during the half-year by the Divisional Superintendent in December 1886.

Inspection of accounts by the Examiner of Local Accounts, Bengal.—The offices were examined during the half-year in January 1887.

How the different establishments worked during the half-year.—The Accountant attached to the Committee's office has given entire satisfaction.

Mr. R. G. S. Roberts continues to be the District Engineer, is an active officer, and gets about the district a great deal: he possesses a thorough knowledge of the district.

PURNEAH,
The October 1887.

BHOBOTOSH BANERJEE,
Vice-Chairman, District Board.

No. 162, dated Maldah, the 10th September 1887.

From—H. G. SHARP, Esq., Chairman, District Board, Maldah,
To—The Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division.

WITH reference to your endorsement No. 43P.W., dated 25th May last, I have the honour to submit the half-yearly accounts of receipts and expenditure and the administration report of the road cess operations in this district during the half-year ending 31st March last. The accounts were examined and certified by the Sub-Committee of Audit appointed under section 174, Act IX (B.C.) of 1880.

2. Five meetings of the Committee were held during the half-year, of which three were presided over by the Chairman, and the rest by the Vice-Chairman. The regular notice was given before every meeting, and no business was transacted in the absence of a quorum. The proceedings of the Committee were duly recorded in the minute-book, and the orders passed thereon have been carried out. * * * Mr. L. Hare was Chairman from 1st October to 24th November, and myself for the remainder of the half-year.

3. The monthly accounts of the Road Fund offices were examined and audited by a Standing Sub-Committee of Finance, consisting of four members, of whom one was the Vice-Chairman of the Committee.

4. Mr. J. Fraser-Forbes and Mr. George Hennessy, members of the Committee, have assisted in superintending and executing repairs to some of the roads in their neighbourhoods.

5. Demand, collection, remission, and balance of road cess.—The arrears of road cess outstanding at the close of the cess year ending on the 30th September 1886 were Rs. 3,373. The addition of Rs. 14,433, the demand for the half-year under review, made the gross demand Rs. 17,806. Of this sum, Rs. 13,833 (exclusive of the amount collected in advance during previous years, but inclusive of the amount collected in advance during the half-year) was collected within the period, and Rs. 12 was remitted, leaving an outstanding balance of Rs. 4,461, or 25 per cent. on the gross demand. The percentage of the total collections, Rs. 13,833 on the current demand, Rs. 14,433, was Rs. 92·3.

6. Certificate Procedure.—The number of certificates filed during the half year was 355, and 231 were pending at the close of the year ending on 30th September 1886. Of this total of 586 certificates, on 359 the cesses have been fully realized, leaving 227 pending at the close of the half-year. A full report on these operations was submitted in my letter No. 99C (on the revenue side) dated 30th June 1887.

7. The working establishment entertained during the period consisted of—

1 District Engineer.	2 Sub-Overseers.
1 Overseer.	1 Clerk, and
1 Store-Keeper.

An additional sub-overseer is needed as mentioned in previous reports, for the newly made sub-division at Pakuahat, but owing to want of funds could not be employed during the half-year.

8. The working sub-divisions, as in the preceding year, were four in number viz.—

North Maldah,	Chanchal and
South Maldah,	Pakuahat.

As the additional sub-overseer referred to in paragraph 7 was not employed, the Sub-Overseer, Baboo Kunja Behari Kar, in Charge of the South Maldah sub-division, held charge also of the Pakuahat sub-division.

9. The progress of works during the half-year appears to have been considered by the Divisional Superintendent, judging from reports only, as generally satisfactory; but the District Engineer's own work, in dispatch and supervision, was held in several matters, both by Mr. Hare and by myself, to have fallen very short of the proper standard. Much of the work was very badly done, and at extremely inconvenient times. Some of the roads, for instance, were first repaired in March, a few even in April (after the end of the half-year) towards the close of the season when they were most needed for traffic, and shortly before the rains would begin to destroy all the good done. A few roads were on the other hand begun in good time, and kept in very fair order during most of last cold weather, but the District Engineer is not up to managing nearly all that he has to do, and he is especially backward in travelling over the distant parts of the district. He is apt to go again and again over roads near head-quarters, and to leave others to sub-overseers. The matter will shortly be discussed by the District Board. Of the subordinate establishment, Overseer Babu Nilmoni Koar did well; but the two sub-overseers, Babus Kunja Behari Kar and Raj-Coomar Ganguly failed to give satisfaction.

10. Flood damages.—The damages caused on the embanked roads by the excessive flood of September 1886, were mostly repaired during the half-year.

11. Length of Communications.—There are 92 land and 13 river communications, aggregating 951 miles in length, all of which, except 38 miles, were under the District Engineer. The 38 miles are under the members named in paragraph four.

12. Difficulty in getting sufficient labourers and piece-workers for road-work was felt as in the preceding years. In the Barindra the people were so well off after the bumper harvest of December last, that the local labourers would not take up road-work though higher wages were offered.

13. Original works.—No original works of importance were taken up during the half-year.

14. Repairs.—The first class road from Ghorapir to Neemasera, about 1½ miles long, was kept in good order.

15. 2nd class Roads.—English bazar to Nowabgunge.—This road, about 3½ miles in length, was seriously breached during the flood of September 1886. The breaches were repaired, and the road was made driveable early in the cold weather. The repairs to the metalled portions, damaged by the flood, were kept in abeyance till the metal was manufactured (since completed), and till the beginning of the rains, as the proper season for metalling.

English Bazar to Rajnehal.—This road, which also suffered severely from the flood, was repaired at the beginning of the cold weather, and made driveable by December. To facilitate traffic, a tál bridge was made over a deep channel across the road near Manik-Chuck, besides general repairs. The diversion proposed near Inayatpur could not be completed, pending the settlement of the question of land required for the purpose.

Besides the above, there were 166 miles of roads of this class, some of which were put and kept in order during the half-year, and others remained in an extremely bad state.

16. 3rd class Roads.—These roads, measuring about 9½ miles, received surface repairs. The last remarks apply to these also.

17. 4th class Roads.—The District Engineer reports—

"All these roads were rendered fit for cart traffic after the subsidence of flood by surface dressing and petty fillings, and were kept fit for the above purpose throughout the half-year." But from what I saw on tour of several other roads which he described as being in good order (though during the whole of the working season he never went to see them), it is very doubtful whether some of these too were not far worse than here described.

18. Village Roads.—One village road, not in the list, about two miles long, was put in order.

19. Arboriculture.—No allotment for planting new trees on road sides was made by the Committee in their budget for 1886-87, and all that could be done was to keep up the trees, 2,226 in number, planted in previous years.

20. No allotment was made in the budget for the removal of snags from the rivers, and no work could be done in this direction.

No. 6.—Part II.

No. 99PW, dated Dumka, the 29th June 1887.

From—R. CARSTAIRS Esq., C. S. Offg. Deputy Commissioner, Sonthal Pergunnahs,
To—The Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division.

WITH reference to your No. 50P.W. of the 13th instant, I have the honour to submit a report on road works in this district for the half-year ending on the 31st March last.

Original works:—The big bund across Nunhochi stream in mile 19, road No. 2, taken in hand last road year, has been widened to 20 feet, and some minor improving works done to it during the half-year under notice. The parapets and pointing to the bridge undertaken last year on the 57th mile, Bhagulpore and Sury road, have been too completed. The following are the original works provided for in the current year's Budget that have been taken in hand during the half-year under report:—

- (1). Bunding up Ranibohal stream, 86 mile, road No. 1 (Bhagulpore and Sury road), and providing escape bridges and channels at both ends.
- (2). Constructing a stone causeway about 130 feet long across Bilkee stream, 89 miles, Bhagulpore and Sury road.
- (3). Bunding up Masaujore stream, 83 miles, Bhagulpore and Sury road, and providing escape bridges and channels at both ends.
- (4). Constructing a bund across Huripur nala, 28 miles, road No. 2 (Dumka and Rampur-Hat) which is a considerable stream, with escape bridges and channels at both ends.

- (5). Dismantling a timber bridge over Jamunajore stream, 1st mile, Deoghur and Sarath road, and replacing it by a masonry arched bridge of 4 spans of 15 feet each.

The last work has been completed at the end of the half-year under notice. The other four works are now nearing completion, their progress during the half-year has been satisfactory. By the completion of some of the works mentioned above, the Sury and Dumka section of the road No. 1 will be wholly bridged. It traverses in all eight streams, including the river More, and I am glad to say that with the very limited money at our disposal, seven of them could be bridged over by means of bunds, causeways and masonry bridges, and thus avoiding the once difficult and dangerous fordings. Our resources, however, are too small to admit attempting erection of a bridge over the river More, measuring over a quarter of a mile in length or even of a causeway across it.

Repair works :—We have kept in good-repairs all the roads borne in the district statement of roads. Some of them have been improved in the half-year under notice. During this half-year too we have done some works in the construction of three new roads mentioned below :—

1. Palojuri, 15th mile, road No. 20, to Sarath.
2. Surichua, 32nd mile, road No. 2, to Mulhoti.
3. Tinpahar Railway Station to Taljhari.

Adequate attention has been paid towards maintenance of the three village roads in the district. Kumirabad road, No. 19, has been repaired by the Belpata zemindar. In the Damin we did some works on the new road leading from Amrapara to Pakour, 22 miles long, taken in hand last year, from G. E. 1. Fund.

Staging and Inspection Bungalows :—Only some petty and patch repairs have been done to them during the half-year. They are in fair order and quite habitable.

Arboriculture :—We have got a large number of road-side trees, mostly mangoes, amounting over 26,000. They have been all very carefully tended, and are thriving satisfactorily, many of them blossomed during the year.

No. 6.—Part II.

No. 88PW, dated Bhagulpore, the 10th October 1887.

From—JOHN BEAMES, Esq., Commissioner of the Bhagulpore Division and Sonthal Pergunnahs.

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Public Works Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit the reports and accounts of the road cess operations of the several districts in this division for the half-year ending the 31st March 1887.

2. Cess collections.—The percentage of cess collections is given below :—

Monghyr	82.00
Bhagulpore	88.00
Purneah	92.42
Maldah	92.30

3. Working of the Act.—The Act has been reported to work satisfactorily, and the people in general appreciate the roads, especially the village ones constructed under the provisions of the Act.

4. Attendance at meetings of District Road Committees.—The number of meetings held by each District Road Committee is given below, together with the average attendance :—

NAMES OF DISTRICTS.			Number of meetings held.	Number of members.	Average number attending each meeting.	Number who did not attend any meeting.
Monghyr	5	17	6.6	5
Bhagulpore	5	17	6.8	2
Purneah	4	14	5.5	4
Maldah	5	18	5.8	4

5. Branch Committees, Monghyr.—The attendance of the members of the Branch Committee at Beguserai was fair. None of the European members attended the meetings during the half-year under review owing to the distance of their residences from headquarters; but they rendered great assistance by looking after the repairs of the village roads. No meetings were held at Jamui, and no explanation has been given.

Branch Committees, Bhagulpore.—There was an improvement in the attendance of the members of the Branch Road Committees at Banka and Supal. The attendance at the other Branch Committees was fair.

Branch Committees, Purneah.—The average attendance at the Branch Committees at head-quarters and Arrareah is said to have been fair; one meeting had to be postponed at Kissengunge for want of a quorum. All the members, as well as the planters, are reported to have taken great interest in the road cess affairs by undertaking the repairs of village roads.

Branch Committees, Maldah.—There are no Branch Committees in this district, but Messrs. Forbes and Hennessy, members of the District Committee, undertook the repairs of some of the roads in the neighbourhood of their factories.

6. Original Works and Repairs, Monghyr.—The following works were in progress, most of them from previous years :—

- (1) Raising and providing water-way on the Jamui-Mullehpura road.
- (2) Bridging the Buktearpur-Bulhi road.
- (3) Construction of the Khagaria-Gogri road.
- (4) Construction of the Koperia-Sonbarsa road.
- (5) Metalling of a portion of the Sultangunge road.
- (6) Converting the Tihoat Road into a permanent embankment.
- (7) Metalling of the Persanda-Gidhour road.
- (8) Construction of the Jamui-Betya road.
- (9) Demarcating lands on the roads noted below :—
 - (a) Luckeeserai-Secundra Road.
 - (b) Patna road.
 - (c) Kujra road.
 - (d) Kurnuckpur road.
 - (e) Bhagulpore road.
 - (f) Sultangunge road.
 - (g) Khagaria-Gogri road.
 - (h) Buktearpur-Bulhi road.

(10). Construction of the inspection bungalows at Betya, Billow, and Memshi.

Repairs.—Repairs were carried out to most of the roads and bridges, and they are reported to be in fair order.

Original Works and Repairs, Bhagulpur.—The principal works in hand under this head are the Ghoga-Bowsee road, the bridging of the Pipra-Singhessur road, and the erection of boundary pillars and the demarcation of road lands. Two inspection bungalows in south Bhagulpur were in progress, and a bridge on the Doomka road has been reconstructed.

Repairs.—Surface repairs to roads were carried out so as to keep them in driveable order.

Original works and repairs, Purneah.—No original work was in hand during the half-year under report.

Repairs.—The surface and bridge repairs of second, third and fourth class roads were carried out. The damage done to the roads and bridges by the unusually heavy floods of July and August last were repaired. The inspection bungalows were kept in good order.

Original Works and Repairs, Maldah.—No original work of importance was undertaken during the half-year.

Repairs.—Most of the roads were kept in good order and the breaches caused by the floods of September 1886 were repaired. The Chairman reports that while out on tour he found some of the roads in a bad state.

Original Works and Repairs, Sonthal Pergunnahs.—The following are the principal original works in hand:—

(a) Widening the bund across the Nunhoched stream in the 19th mile of the road from Dumka to Rampur Hat.

(b) Bunding up of Rambohah stream in the 86th mile of the Bhagulpur-Suri road, and providing escape bridges and culverts.

(c) Constructing a stone causeway across Bilkee stream in the 89th mile of the Bhagulpur-Suri road.

(d) Bunding up of Musaujore stream in the 83rd mile of the Bhagulpur-Suri road, and providing escape bridges and channels.

(e) Constructing a bund across Haripur nallah in the 28th mile of Doomka-Rampur Hat road.

(f) Dismantling a timber bridge over Jumunagore stream in the 1st mile of the Deo ghar-Sarath road and replacing it by a masonry arched bridge.

Besides the above, the following new roads were partially carried out:—

Palojuri (15th mile, road No. 20) to Sarath.

Sarichna (32nd mile, road No. 2) to Malhota.

Tinpahar Railway Station to Taljhuri.

Repairs.—Most of the roads in this district were repaired and kept in good order. The roads in the Rajmehal Sub-division, however, are bad and require more money to be spent on them.

7. Village Roads, Monghyr.—Repairs to the village roads in this district were carried out, liberal allotments having been made to the Branch Committees for the purpose.

Village Roads, Bhagalpur.—The village roads under the Branch Committees were properly repaired, except in Banka, where a small amount only was spent. Rupees 13,820 were allotted for the village roads of this district.

Village Roads, Purneah.—The repairs of most of the village roads are carried out by members, and their reports and accounts not having been received in time, it is not known whether all of them have been repaired; those under the Sudder and a few in the Kessen-gunge and Arrareah sub-divisions have been repaired.

Village Roads, Maldah and Sonthal Pergunnahs.—There are very few village roads in Maldah and the Sonthal Pergunnahs districts; those in existence were kept up.

8. Tree-planting, Monghyr.—19,698 trees planted in previous years were maintained both departmentally and by contract. Planting is still going on on certain roads both departmentally and by contract.

Tree-planting, Bhagalpur.—745 trees were planted out during the half-year, and 10,080 trees have been planted out and maintained up to date.

Tree-planting, Purneah.—No new trees were planted out during the half-year; 3,226 trees planted out in the previous years were maintained.

Tree-planting, Maldah.—No allotment for planting out new trees was made; 2,228 trees planted out in the previous years were maintained.

Tree-planting, Sonthal Pergunnahs.—The trees planted out in the previous years amount to 26,000. They are stated to be thriving well.

Establishment.—There were no changes in the engineering establishments under the several District Road Committees. Mr. W. H. Nightingale assumed charge of the office of Divisional Superintendent of Works of this division on the 26th of November 1886, and held the appointment up to the 31st of March 1887, when the office was abolished on the introduction of the Local-Self Government Act to this division.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORTS OF THE REFORMATORY SCHOOLS AT ALIPORE AND HAZARIBAGH FOR THE YEAR 1887.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS.

Darjeeling, the 5th June 1888.

READ—

- (1) Letter No. 3310, dated 26th April 1888, from the Inspector-General of Jails forwarding the Report of the Administration of the Alipore Reformatory School for the year 1887.
- (2) Letter No. 2960, dated 16th April 1888, from the Inspector-General of Jails, forwarding the Report of the Administration of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School.

Read also—

The Reports for the year 1886, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

The Alipore School opened 1887 with 109 and closed with 108 boys; 23 were admitted during the year, while 22 were released, 1 died and 1 escaped. There were no serious offences, and the proportion of punishments to the number of boys confined shows a very slight increase. No explanation is given of the increase in the punishments of caning and penal diet coincident with a reduction in the number of fines from 95 to 56. The health of the school was good. Admissions to hospital rose from 1.96 per cent. daily in 1886 to 2.73 per cent. in 1887, owing to the large number of weak and sickly boys admitted during the last two years, many of whom had to be kept in hospital for some time before being sent to work. One boy died from epileptic fits.

2. No change has been made in the way in which the day is divided between school and work. The boys work for seven hours and have also one hour of compulsory school; they can also attend the night school from 6-30 to 8 P.M. It is very satisfactory that as many as 90 boys on an average attend in the evening. The mark system worked well. The number of boys entitled to marks increased slightly, and the average weekly earnings rose from Rs. 1-13-10 in 1886 to Rs. 2-0-4. The total earned during the year was Rs. 222-10-6, including payments for extra work, of which Rs. 177-4 were deposited in the Government Savings Bank.

3. The reports regarding released boys compare favourably with those for last year. Reports were received in the case of 52 boys; 9 only, or 17.3 per cent., of whom 6 were in jail, were said to bear bad characters. 7 only out of the 52 follow the trades they learned at school, out of whom 2 had been only two and three years respectively in the school. The others had been there five years or more.

4. The cost of maintenance fell from Rs. 126-10-9 to Rs. 126-1-10 for each boy. The cost of diet fell from Rs. 3,381-7-9 in 1886 to Rs. 3,156-4-9 in 1887.

5. The manufactory account shows a profit to the school of Rs. 8,521-15-6 against Rs. 9,180-12-11 in 1886. No allowance is made in the account for the value of the labour of the boys employed, or for wear and tear of block; it merely shows the balance of actual receipts over actual expenditure. Book-binding, carpentry, and tinsmith's work showed net profits of Rs. 4,693-13-0½, Rs. 1,470-2-7 and Rs. 1,451-12-8½ respectively. The profits on cane work decreased from Rs. 501-14-7 in 1886 to Rs. 313-5-10 in 1887, owing to the increased cost of raw cane and its inferior quality. The number of boys engaged was very small, as some of the old boys were released, and it is only boys of certain castes that can be put to this work.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to see that Mr. Kirschner's management of the school continues to deserve the praise of the Board of Management and of the Inspector-General of Jails. The acknowledgments of Sir Stuart Bayley are also due to the Board of Management.

7. The number of boys confined in the Hazaribagh School has risen from 227 at the close of 1886 to 232 at the close of 1887. The daily average population was 225 against 209.4 in 1886. The health of the school was good; only one boy died; he had been sickly for several years.

8. There was an improvement in discipline during the year. 124 boys were neither punished nor reported. There were only 570 punishments against 717 last year, showing that the severity of the punishments last year had the desired effect. Whipping and hand-caning were resorted to in 135 cases only against 325 in 1886. On the other hand, marks were forfeited in 310 cases against 123 in 1886. Penal diet was not resorted to. There was one serious case of assault, in which four boys and two of the trade instructors attacked the store-keeper. The trade instructors were dismissed but not prosecuted, as the Deputy Commissioner considered that there was not sufficient evidence to secure a conviction.

9. The daily routine is the same as at Alipore, except that the hours of rising differ slightly, and night school at Hazaribagh lasts from 6 to 8 P.M., while at Alipore it begins at 6-30 P.M. The Inspector-General of Jails was requested in paragraph 9 of last year's Resolution and in paragraph 11 of the Resolution for 1885, to notice specially the question of the assimilation of system at the two schools, but he has not done so. He will be again asked to report on this subject. No figures have been given to show the average attendance at the night school, though this was called for in last year's resolution. This omission should be supplied in the next report. The mark system worked well. The average earning per week rose from Rs. 8-2-4 in 1886 to Rs. 9-15-1 in 1887. The total earnings came to Rs. 517-2-9.

10. Reports were received regarding 54 boys; 42 reports were favourable; in 8 cases the whereabouts of the boys were not known; 4 had been reconvicted and sent to jail. One boy was looked upon with suspicion by the police; only 6 boys continued to work at the trade they learnt in school.

11. The expenditure fell from Rs. 108-10-7 per head in 1886 to Rs. 77-9-5 in 1887. This decrease was mainly due to small outlay required for buildings, and to economies effected in dieting the boys by getting atta from the jail, purchasing animal food at a lower rate, and using a cheaper kind of rice.

12. The manufacture account shows a profit of Rs. 1,698-12-2 only against Rs. 2,314-4-2 in 1886. There is a very limited local market and the cost of carriage to Calcutta and elsewhere absorbs a great part of the profits. These expenses were so great on the work done for the Postal Department that the contract has been discontinued. The trades taught are carpentry, in which there is a profit of Rs. 1,445, ironwork, shoe-making and tinwork. Twenty-two of the younger boys were employed in the garden. It struck the Lieutenant-Governor when visiting the school last March that it might be possible to introduce the manufacture of objects for which a local demand exists, and so save the cost of carriage to Calcutta. The subject has since been considered by the Inspector-General of Jails and the Superintendent of Jail Manufactures, but without any result as yet. Dr. Lethbridge, however, has promised to look carefully into the matter when he visits the school next August.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor notices with pleasure that the school is regularly inspected by the official visitors, who have again very favourably reported on Mr. Hill, the Deputy Superintendent. Dr. Moorhead deserves credit for its excellent condition.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of the Resolution be forwarded to the President of the Board of Management of the Reformatory School at Alipore for information and communication to the Members of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of the Reports, and a copy of the Resolution, be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Jails for information and communication to the Superintendent of the Hazaribagh Reformatory School.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. WARE EDGAR,

Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE ACT IN THE SUBURBS OF CALCUTTA FOR THE YEAR 1887-88.

The 9th June 1888.—The following report is published for general information.

COLMAN MACAULAY,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 28MM, dated Calcutta, the 30th May 1888.

From—A. SMITH, Esq., Commissioner of the Presidency Division,
To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I HAVE the honour to submit herewith, under the provisions of section 30 of the Licensed Warehouse and Fire-Brigade Act, IV (B.C.) of 1883, the annual report, together with the usual statements, on the working of the Act during the year 1887-88.

2. Statement A shows the names of the different hydraulic presses, jute mills, cotton mills, hand screws and warehouses for storage of jute, licensed in the suburbs; B contains in the prescribed form the receipts and disbursements under the Act; and C the details of fires which occurred during the year.

3. The number of hydraulic presses, jute mills, cotton mills and hand screws remained the same as in the last year. That of warehouses for the storage of jute increased from 103 to 108, five such houses having been newly added to the list. The Asiatic Jute Mill, which was unoccupied during the previous year, was worked during the year of report, and one of the two hand screws remained unoccupied. Of the 108 jute warehouses in the list, 32 remained unoccupied, against 28 in the year preceding. The notes in the column of remarks of statement A will show these facts and other necessary particulars connected with the working of the warehouses.

4. The license-fees realized from all classes of warehouses during the year amounted to Rs. 33,975-12, viz., Rs. 21,624-13 from hydraulic presses, Rs. 1,088 from jute mills, Rs. 240 from cotton mills, Rs. 165 from hand screws, and Rs. 10,857-15 from jute warehouses, against a total sum of Rs. 33,912-13, viz., Rs. 21,624-13 from hydraulic presses, Rs. 968 from jute mills, Rs. 240 from cotton mills, Rs. 480 from hand screws, and Rs. 10,600 from jute warehouses, received during the year 1886-87. Thus there has been a net increase of Rs. 62-15 in the license-fees during the year of report, as compared with the result of the preceding year.

5. There were eleven fires during the year as per details in the statement C supplied by the Police, causing a loss to the extent of Rs. 10,250, against six fires and a loss of Rs 7,440 in the year preceding.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVA-TIONS TAKEN IN ASSAM, DURING THE MONTH OF MAY 1888.

THE normal meteorological conditions in Bengal during May are to a considerable extent similar to those of April. There is the steady and increasing difference of temperature between the land and the sea area, and in this month this difference attains almost its maximum. The area of maximum temperature during May includes the western districts of South Behar, the North-West Provinces, Rajputana and Central India. With the increasing temperature of the land surface, the southerly winds blowing from the Bay of Bengal strengthen considerably, and owing to the physical obstacles of the hill systems to the east and north of Bengal, they appear as south-easterly winds in East Bengal, and as easterly winds in North Bengal. At the same time, however, the usual hot, dry westerly winds are blowing over considerable portions of Behar and Chutia Nagpur, and thus during May, as explained in previous monthly reports, conditions are favourable to the production of the local storms called nor'-westers. These, it is probable, are produced by the action of the opposing winds in elevating the moist sea breezes, and by this ascensional motion their water vapour is condensed, and sufficient energy is at the same time liberated to produce the well-known effects of these storms.

The southerly breezes which blow during this month at the head of the Bay are of considerable strength, and in fact at Sangor Island and False Point the wind velocities measured in May are generally greater than those during the actual rainy season, but there is reason to believe that during May the current is of comparatively small depth compared to what it is during the actual monsoon period. These winds, however, carry considerable amounts of moisture into East and North Bengal, and in the neighbourhood of the hills ascensional movement takes place, followed frequently by local storms and by heavy rainfall. This action will account for the large rainfall which occurs during this month in the northern and eastern districts of the province.

During May the distribution of the normal rainfall is simple, and the lines of equal rainfall run nearly north and south through the province, or rather almost parallel to a line joining the Chittagong Hill Tracts, the Tipperah Hills, the Garo Hills, and the Darjeeling Hills, the largest amounts being received in the eastern and northern districts, and smallest amounts in the western districts. Thus the average rainfall of the month is less than 2 inches in the southern parts of the Sarun and Mozufferpore districts, the Gya and Shahabad districts, and the western parts of Chutia Nagpur. To the east of these districts, up to a line running nearly north from the mouth of the Hooghly, the rainfall increases from 2 up to 5 inches. To the east of this, up to a line passing through Rungpore, Jamalpore, Mymensing, Bramunberiah, Comilla, and Cox's Bazar, the average rainfall increases eastwards from 5 to 10 inches. To the east of that line it exceeds 10 inches, and increases rapidly in amount towards the Garo and Khasia Hills and towards the Dooms, and at Buxa in the Western Dooms, the average rainfall in May is no less than 2·93 inches.

The meteorology of May is generally rather important, for about the second or third week, the south-west monsoon makes its appearance in the south of the Bay, and gives heavy rain and fairly strong winds at the South Ceylon stations. The monsoon current gradually creeps up the east of the Bay, and rain sets in along the Arakan coast towards the close of the month, and it afterwards spreads into East and North Bengal early in June.

In the front of the advancing monsoon current frequently cyclonic storms arise, which are sometimes small and feeble, and at other times larger and of considerable intensity. When these cyclonic storms are formed quite in the south of the Bay, they usually advance towards the Madras coast; but when the storms originate rather later, that is, when the monsoon current has advanced well into the centre of the Bay, the storms which then form appear usually to advance either towards the Arakan coast, or towards the South Bengal coast.

Meteorology of the month—The principal features of interest in the meteorology of the past month have been—

1. A mean barometric pressure for the whole province of Bengal which has been almost normal, though at the western and northern stations pressure has been slightly below the normal, and at the south-eastern stations slightly above it. The variation from the normal for the whole province is a defect of only 0·007 inch. In Assam pressure has been below the normal by 0·04 inch.

2. A mean temperature for the whole province which has been slightly (0·6°) in excess of the normal. The northern districts of the province have, however, shown mean temperatures distinctly below the normal, while South Behar, Chutia Nagpur, Orissa, South-West and East Bengal have all shown excess temperatures. In Assam temperature has been below the normal by 0·9°.

3. Rainfall has been below the normal in all the meteorological divisions of the province of Bengal except in North Behar, where the fall has been normal in amount. In Orissa,

East Bengal, and North Bengal the defects are small; in South-West Bengal and South Behar the defects are considerable; while in Chutia Nagpur the defect has been large, and the rainfall has been only 38 per cent. of the usual amount.

4. There were three periods in the month during which weather was disturbed. The first period was short, and on the 1st and 2nd local storms with rain were rather numerous in South-West, East and North Bengal. Again from the 6th to the 10th weather conditions over the same districts became disturbed, and showers accompanying local storms occurred with moderate frequency. The third period of disturbance lasted from the 16th to the end of the month, and at this time all the divisions of Bengal received showers, and for the last three or four days of the month the local storms were rather numerous, and moderately heavy rainfall was received.

5. The first advance of south-west monsoon winds in the south of the Bay took place about the 8th or 9th of the month, and in front of this advance a small cyclonic storm was formed which crossed the Madras coast. This advance, however, does not appear to have progressed very far up the Bay. The second advance commenced about the 17th, and lasted only for five days, and it would appear that in this advance the monsoon winds reached about the centre of the Bay, when they again died away. The third advance of the monsoon current commenced in the south of the Bay on the 27th, and from this date up till the end of the month very strong winds were reported in the south of the Bay. A small storm was subsequently formed in front of this advance, but as it did not form till early in June, its history will be described in the meteorological summary for that month.

At the end of April a distinct low-pressure area had formed over Chutia Nagpur, which also caused comparatively low pressure over the greater part of Orissa, South and South-East Bengal. The wind systems blowing over the province were also somewhat irregular; south-westerly winds prevailed in Orissa and Chutia Nagpur, southerly winds in South and South-East Bengal, and easterly, north-easterly and northerly winds elsewhere. These winds were also at the majority of stations very moist, and, owing to the rainfall which was occurring, temperature was generally considerably below the normal. Under such conditions weather continued disturbed, and local storms with rain were general in South-West, East and North Bengal, and in the southern parts of Chutia Nagpur up to 1st and in many cases up to the 2nd of May, and even over a large part of Behar, rainfall was general on April 30th; but in the Shahabad, Gya and Patna districts in South Behar and in the Hazaribagh and Lohardugga districts of Chutia Nagpur, rainfall was practically absent throughout this period. A slight change, however, commenced in the meteorological conditions of the province on the 1st, inasmuch as the easterly element in the wind directions became less strongly pronounced. These moist easterly winds again diminished in force on the 2nd, and by the 3rd they had practically retired from Bengal, and westerly and south-westerly winds, accompanied by a decided decrease in the humidity, obtained in their place. In Assam, however, moist easterly winds were still reported, and this district continued to receive rain. From the 2nd fairly settled weather obtained over the whole of Bengal, and rainfall was practically absent up to the 5th, though there was a slight re-action noticeable in the wind directions, and an easterly wind current commenced to make itself felt at the eastern and northern stations; while in Chutia Nagpur and at some of the central stations in Behar northerly and north-westerly winds were reported. On the following day winds in Chutia Nagpur became north-westerly, though more or less easterly winds were still blowing at the eastern stations. On the 7th the easterly winds again extended to Chutia Nagpur and parts of Behar, and for some days similar oscillations took place from day to day. These changes in the wind directions and the slight interaction taking place between the wind systems over the province at once caused weather conditions to become slightly disturbed, and local storms with rain became rather more numerous from the 6th, and they continued moderately frequent up to the 10th. The storms only extended over parts of the various districts, and thus the rainfall brought up by them was not general in any part of the province. Rainfall was in fact mainly confined in Orissa to the Balasore district; in South-West Bengal to the Burdwan, Bankoorah, Beerbhoom, Nuddea, Jessore, and Moorshedabad districts; in East Bengal to the Furreedpore, Dacca, Tipperah and Mymensingh districts; in North Bengal to the Rajshahye, Maldah, and Julpigoree districts; in South Behar to the Sonthal Pergunnahs district; and in Chutia Nagpur to the Manbhoom district. Over the whole of North Behar and in the remaining districts of the other meteorological divisions, local storms were very few in number, and rainfall was almost absent.

While, however, the meteorological changes in Bengal at this period were unimportant, in the south of the Bay conditions decidedly altered. From about the 7th or 8th it was clear that the general distribution of pressure over the Bay was favourable for the first advance of south-west monsoon winds in the south of the Bay, and about the 8th or 9th the first feeble advance did take place. The advance was decidedly less powerful than usual, but nevertheless in front of the inrush of moist winds a small cyclonic storm was formed which on the 11th appeared off the South Madras coast, the centre being not far off the land, and apparently to the east-north-east of Negapatam at 8 A.M. of the 11th.

The storm during the night of the 11th advanced across the coast in a westerly or west-north westerly direction, the centre apparently passing near Cuddalore, and on the morning of the 12th the centre was well inland to the north-west of Negapatam. Though the storm was by no means an intense one, yet it gave strong winds, a rough sea, and rather squally weather along the whole of the coast from Madras southwards. On the 13th the small storm had again advanced in a north-westerly direction, but it had rather rapidly filled up, and had practically disappeared. This advance of the monsoon winds was rather a feeble one, and it does not appear to have advanced as a definite moisture bearing current very far up the Bay, but the low pressure, which apparently accompanied its advance in the south of the Bay, afterwards spread in a northerly direction, and a wave, or perhaps two waves of decidedly low pressure, advanced over the Bay into Bengal. The first rapid fall of pressure in the north of the Bay took place on the 13th, and continued on the 14th, when at some stations pressure fell by no less than a fifth of an inch during the two days; on the 15th there was a slight recovery; but on the 16th a further very rapid fall commenced, which was greatest on the Burma coast and in Orissa, and there was again a very large decrease on the 17th off the Arakan and Pegu coasts, the fall in some cases exceeding 0.15 inch. This caused a very distinct low-pressure area to be formed to the south-west of Akyab, and this diffused depression was accompanied by a distinct cyclonic circulation of winds. The depression probably gave somewhat squally weather over the northern half of the Bay on this day; but it did not concentrate or develop into any definite storm, and on the following day the area of low pressure advanced over South Bengal, when the pressure recorded became extremely low, as for instance Balasore registered 29.544 inches a pressure almost as low as is generally recorded at the commencement of the rainy season. Beyond, however, this abnormal pressure and bringing up with it moderately strong, but very moist, winds, and giving rather numerous showers, the depression did not influence the weather in Bengal to any material extent, and it subsequently passed into the interior of the province and afterwards appeared in Behar.

For the period from the 18th to the 25th, weather continued generally slightly disturbed, and local storms with rain were fairly numerous. For the greater part of this period a rather strong moist southerly wind current was blowing at the southern stations, south-easterly and easterly winds were blowing at the eastern stations, and a steady easterly and north-easterly current at the northern stations; while in the west and south-west of the province winds were south-westerly and westerly. There was thus a feeble circulation of winds over the province, which caused local disturbances and rain.

While, therefore, the conditions in Bengal and Assam at this period had not varied to any large extent, more important changes were occurring in the Bay; and a second advance of monsoon winds took place in the south of the Bay, and from the 17th up to the 22nd decidedly strong winds were reported from the Ceylon stations. After this date wind velocities again rapidly decreased. This advance of monsoon winds did not, as in the first case, give rise to any storm in front of it, and it apparently simply advanced up the centre and east of the Bay, and moderate and fairly general rain commenced to fall at the South Burma stations from about the 24th, though it was only on the 28th that very heavy rain (nearly 7 inches) was first reported at Moulmein. It is impossible to say with certainty how far up the centre of the Bay this advance of south-west monsoon winds reached, but it is probable it extended over the whole of the southern half.

For the last week of the month the weather in Bengal remained decidedly disturbed, and there was a distinct tendency to a circulation of winds. In Orissa winds were south-westerly, and in South-Bengal south-westerly and southerly, and the velocity of the winds blowing at the head of the Bay was very large, particularly at the commencement of the week. At the eastern stations winds were south-easterly, and at the northern stations easterly, while in the west of Behar and in Chutia Nagpur winds were in some cases north-westerly and westerly. The result of this interaction and of the strong moist winds pouring into the province was the formation of extremely numerous local storms, generally accompanied by rain, in almost all districts of the province, and thus good general rain was received. This rainfall, however, cannot be said to have been brought up by the true south-west monsoon current, for this had not made its appearance over Bengal up to the close of the month.

The meteorological changes taking place in the Bay were again more important than those over the land area. It has been noticed that the second advance of monsoon winds took place over the south of the Bay, from the 17th up to the 22nd. Winds then fell off in strength at the southern stations, and up to the morning of the 27th they remained of about normal force. From this date, however, an extremely rapid increase took place in the strength of the winds at the Ceylon stations, and exceptionally strong winds were reported from the 28th up to the close of the week. During this period weather must have been more or less stormy generally over the whole of the south of the Bay, but up to June 1st there was no evidence of any distinct storm having formed in front of this rush of monsoon winds, which on this date had reached well into the middle of the Bay, and when it almost appeared as if the advance would continue up the Bay, and bring about the commencement of the true rains in Bengal. The further history of this advance, however, belongs to the meteorology of the following month.

Pressure.—Was slightly in defect of the normal during the first week of the month; in the second week a slight, but decidedly larger, general excess was recorded; in the third week pressure was again in defect; and it remained slightly in defect till the close of the month. Taking into consideration only those stations from which records have been received for a series of years, it is found that the mean pressure for the whole of Bengal for May has been only 0.007 inch in defect of the normal. In South-East Bengal a slight excess pressure, such as 0.013 inch at Chittagong, has been recorded, while larger defects have been registered at the western and northern stations; thus Calcutta has been in defect of the normal by 0.021 inch, and Gya by 0.026 inch. In Assam pressure has been in defect by 0.014 inch.

Temperature.—The temperature variations during the month have to a great extent depended on the distribution of the rainfall, but the general mean temperature of the province has been in excess by 0.6°. North Bengal and North Behar show defects of from one to one and a half degrees; South-West and East Bengal show excess temperatures less than one degree; Orissa and South Behar temperatures from one to one and a half degrees above the normal; while in Chutia Nagpur the excess is three degrees. In Assam a defect of 0.9° has been registered.

Some fairly high maximum temperatures have been recorded during the month. Thus—

At Cuttack	on the 21st	maximum temperature was	114.4°
„ Dehree	„ 23rd	„	113.5°
„ Chyebassa	„ 25th	„	112.3°
„ Gya	„ 22nd	„	112.1°
„ RaneeGUNGE	„ 21st	„	111.0°
„ Midnapore	„ 21st	„	110.4°
„ Arrah	„ 22nd	„	109.4°
„ Bankipore	„ 22nd	„	109.1°

Rainfall.—The periods of rainfall and its general distribution have been already referred to, and it therefore only remains to state the amounts which have been received. The only district which has received a fall in excess of the normal is North Behar, which has received an average fall of 3.29 inches, the normal fall being 3.21 inches. All other districts have received falls in defect, though except in the case of Chutia Nagpur, and to a smaller extent in South-West Bengal and South Behar, the defects have not been very large. East and North Bengal have received a general rainfall of between eight and eight and a half inches, and Orissa has received a fall of three and a half inches, and in all three cases the defects are less than 10 per cent. of the normal fall. In South-West Bengal there has been an average fall of 3.33 inches, which is equal to about 60 per cent. of the normal fall; while in South Behar the fall has averaged 1.42 inches, which is also nearly 60 per cent. of the usual fall. In Chutia Nagpur, however, the fall has only averaged a little more than an inch, and this is only 34 per cent. of the normal fall in May.

When the rainfall variations are charted, it is seen that there are three small districts where the falls have been in excess of the normal. First an area running in a north-easterly direction from East Bengal through North Bengal into North Behar, and comprising parts of the following districts—Tipperah, Mymensingh, Bogra, Dinagepore, Purneah, Bhagulpore, and Durbhunga; a second area comprising part of the Burdwan and Beerbhoom districts; and a third area comprising the Balasore and part of the Midnapore district. All the remainder of the province shows a defective rainfall, but it is only in parts of South and South-East Bengal, and in the districts close to the hills of North Bengal, that the defects exceed three inches.

The following table gives full data for the comparison of the actual and the normal rainfall of the month of May in all districts of the province. The figures are derived from the average and actual rainfall of the rain-recording stations in each district, due allowance or weight being made for the area which each station represents. This gives a more accurate average than the arithmetical means given in the weekly and monthly meteorological tables. The first column gives the normal or average district rainfall as determined from the rainfall observations of the past 15 years. The second column gives the actual district rainfall as determined from the weighted actual rainfalls of the month at the reporting stations in each district. The third column expresses the ratio of the actual district rainfall of the past month to the normal rainfall as a percentage. The fourth column gives the same information as the third column in a slightly different form. It states as a percentage how much the district rainfall of the month varied in excess or defect from the normal rainfall, and is hence the difference between the numbers in the third column and 100:—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.
 The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation. Summary.—The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetic averages or means of the readings during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The number are the numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the return sent in by the sub-divisional station for the period in question during the past 10 stations in the district sending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

variations are negative when the mean for the week is less than the corresponding normal mean, and positive when greater.
 The means of the districts are the numerical average of the rainfall return received in the district, i.e., from total rainfall at the sub-divisional stations.

CALCUTTA, the 8th June 1888.

SUMMARY OF METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 8TH OF JUNE 1888.

At the close of the previous week the meteorological conditions generally were normal for the period just previous to the commencement of the monsoon rains in Bengal. Hot weather conditions but with rather moist winds, and frequent local storms with rain, obtained in Bengal, and over the south and centre of the Bay the monsoon winds had made good progress. The monsoon current then blowing over this area represented the third strong advance of these winds which had taken place this year from the south of the Bay, and this advance was decidedly the most powerful and pronounced of the three. This advance had been shown from the 27th of May by the very strong winds which had been blowing at the Ceylon stations, and on June 1st, or the last day of the previous week, the advance had reached well into the centre of the Bay, and there were no indications of any definite storm having formed in front of the advance. On the 2nd of June, however, there was a decided fall of pressure at the central stations on the east coast of the Bay, while wind directions showed rather strong indraught towards the sea area. It was clear on this day that a small cyclonic storm was forming to the north-west of the Andaman Islands. On the morning of the 3rd the small storm had developed somewhat rapidly, and it existed as a well-defined, though rather small, storm off the Pegu Coast. On this day weather was probably rather stormy to the east of the centre of the Bay, and strong winds were reported in Burma at the neighbouring stations of Diamond Island and Bassein. The small storm then commenced to move in a north-westerly direction, and on the 4th of June it was in the centre of the Bay, and apparently advancing towards the Orissa coast. On this day also it is probable that the storm was of moderate intensity, though there were indications that it was even then of less intensity than it had been on the previous day. The special four-hourly observations made at some of the principal stations at the head of the Bay, which had been called for, showed that from 8 A.M. of the 4th, and particularly during the night of this day, the storm gradually became more and more feeble till, on approaching the coast on the morning of the 5th, it had ceased to exist as a definite storm, and its place was taken by a diffused disturbance of little importance, which gradually drifted over Orissa and the head of the Bay, giving moderate rain only. On the 6th, pressure continued to fall over South-West Bengal and Orissa, owing probably to the continued feeble existence of the depression, but after this date it disappeared, and ceased to affect the weather of the province. With its disappearance a moderately strong south-easterly current set in over the greater part of the province, and moderate rain fell in all districts except South Behar and Chutia Nagpur. Even up to the close of the week, however, the true rains cannot be said to have broken in Bengal, for the rainfall brought up by the moist wind current blowing has generally accompanied local storms; and though south-easterly and easterly winds have been reported over a large part of the province, still north-westerly and westerly winds have been blowing at the western stations in Behar and Chutia Nagpur. By the actions above described, however, fairly frequent rain showers have been received in all districts of the province except parts of Chutia Nagpur and South Behar. In the Bay during the week weather has probably been squally, and for one or two days perhaps stormy in the central and eastern parts.

Pressure.—From the preceding description of the meteorology of the week, it will be seen that pressure has been necessarily low in the districts of Orissa and South-West Bengal. At False Point indeed the mean pressure for the week has been below the normal by 0·043 inch, and at Saugor Island by 0·040 inch, but the general defect of pressure over the whole province has been 0·019 inch, and at such stations as Durbhanga the mean pressure for the week has been actually above the normal. In Assam, pressure has been below the normal by 0·023 inch.

Temperature.—Has been above the normal in East Bengal, and elsewhere it has been below it; the defect equalling 2° in South Behar and nearly 4° in North Behar. For the whole province temperature has been below the normal by 1·2°. In Assam the defect has only been 0·7°.

Rainfall.—Has been slightly above the usual fall for the period in South-West Bengal and in Behar; it has been below it by moderate amounts in Orissa, North Bengal and Chutia Nagpur; while in East Bengal the defect has been rather large. The general rainfall in South-West and North Bengal has averaged between two and three inches; in East Bengal and North Behar it has averaged from one to two inches; while in Orissa, South Behar and Chutia Nagpur it has varied from about half an inch to an inch.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 8th of June 1888 :—

MEMORANDUM.

THE subjoined table presents the vital statistics of the principal Municipalities in Bengal for the week ending 26th May 1888. The results to be gathered from it, contrasted with those of the preceding week ending 19th May, are the following:—

1. Births and deaths were registered at the following rates:—

						Ratio per mille for weeks ending—
						26th May 1888.	19th May 1888.
Births	18·4	20·0
Deaths	22·6	24·2

indicating a retrogression in the registration of both the casualties.

2. In the following Municipalities births and deaths occurred at the highest rates:—

Births.				Deaths.
			Ratio per mille .				Ratio per mille .
Narainganj	45·6	Utterpara	37·7

Comillah	30·8	Bhagulpore	32·6
				Durbhanga	32·3
				Chittagong	30·5

3. From the figures in the following table it appears that during the week under notice, the mortality from cholera and fever had declined sensibly, and that there were no marked differences in fatal results from the rest of the death-causes:—

						Ratio per mille during the weeks ending—
						26th May 1888.	19th May 1888.
Cholera	3·6	4·5
Small-pox	·03	1
Fever	8·7	9·9
Bowel-complaints	3·0	2·7
Injury	·7	·6
Other causes	6·5	6·4

4. Of the diseases mentioned above, while fever proved noticeably fatal in the Kishnaghur Municipality, viz., at the rate of 24·6 per 1,000 of population, and small-pox, bowel-complaints and injury exhibited only normal fatality, cholera and the maladies recorded under the head of "Other causes" caused the highest mortality in the following Municipalities:—

Cholera.				Other causes.
			Ratio per mille .				Ratio per mille .
Suburbs of Calcutta	9·5	Utterpara	28·3
Chittagong	7·0	Mozufferpore	14·6

* A special census of the Europeans in the Darling Municipality was recently taken, as the census of this section of the community, based on February 1961, was not reliable owing to the Europeans being at a minimum in that month. The number of the natives remains as before. It was necessary to re-census them, as the ratios have consequently been calculated in the census for white and coloured adults in the above table, except "Age," the ratios under which have been omitted, inasmuch as the census of the Europeans was not allowed to compare the population of the two age groups, substituted for the 1961 census.

General remarks on the fluctuation of principal staples carried over the East Indian Railway during five weeks ended 28th April 1888.

INCREASES.

Coal and coke.—There was an increase in both the upward and downward traffic; the former was inconsiderable, and the latter was due to facilities afforded by the opening of the Jubilee Bridge.

Piece-goods.—The increase under this head was due to the large number of Hindu marriage ceremonies taking place during the period.

Gunny bags.—Due to larger despatches to the North-Western Provinces and Punjab in the knowledge that crop in those provinces were fuller than in 1887.

Other fibres, raw.—Due chiefly to despatches from Allahabad.

Minerals.—This large increase was principally due to heavy despatches of lime from Raneerunje and Ondal for the Kidderpore Dock-works.

Iron.—Due principally to large consignments of pig iron from Howrah to Peshawar and of machinery for cotton mills to Cawnpore.

Seeds.—The increase was principally in linseed and mustard and rape seed; the former for export, and the latter for both export and local consumption.

Spices.—This was chiefly in chillies from Mokameh, Mokameh Ghât and vid Mokameh Ghât.

Tobacco.—This was in despatches from the Tirhoot State and the Bengal and North-Western Railways, and also from Barh and Patna, owing to the crops this season having been abundant.

DECREASES.

Cotton.—Due to bad crops last season.

Wheat.—No demand for export owing to home market being dull.

Gram and pulses.—Due to absence of demand in Calcutta for shipment to Madras and Burmah.

Rice (husked and unhusked).—There was an increase in the upward traffic, but a greater decrease in the downward despatches, resulting in a considerable falling off in the weight carried attended with a smaller decrease in earnings; and this was due to the Calcutta market not being able to compete on equal terms with up-country purchasers.

Other grains.—The small decrease under this head appears to be due to there having been fair crops at all stations.

Brass and copper.—Due to despatches being still restricted by high prices.

Opium.—Increase in weight carried, but a decrease in earnings. The despatches in crude opium increased; but there were smaller despatches of the manufactured article to Calcutta than in the corresponding period of 1887.

Railway material, Foreign.—The decrease was in consequence of heavy despatches last year from Howrah and vid Jubbulpore for the Indian Midland Railway.

Salt.—Due to high prices still ruling in the Calcutta market.

Stone.—Due to absence of demand for Mirzapore stone.

Sugar and jaggery.—Increase in weight attended with decrease in earnings, and the fluctuations are due to the same causes as reported for March 1888.

"A canvas screen, oiled or tarred, and capable of being securely fastened in its place when let down and rolled up when not required, shall be fitted to the front of the above frame, and shall hang from under the projected roof above to about 18 inches of the deck, so as to form, when let down, a sheltered passage to the closets that are behind and entirely covered by it. No. 1963.—In exercise of the power conferred by Act I of 1870, the following Rules for Quarantine against Cholera have been made by the Government of Bombay, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council: they have effect from the 5th instant in the Port of Aden and at Perim as a temporary measure:—

- I.—The Commander of every vessel, including huggalows or other native craft arriving from Singkel Islands off Sumatra shall, before entering the harbour, indicate by signal the port from which such vessel has come.
- II.—Such Commander shall not, except as hereinafter provided, allow any communication, either with the pilot boat, except orally, or with the shore, or with any other vessel or boat in the harbour.
- III.—Immediately on arrival, the Commander shall cause the letter R of the Commercial Signal Code to be hoisted, and shall keep the said flag flying during his stay in port, or until authorised by the Health Officer to haul it down. If communication with the shore is not desired, the vessel shall anchor at such place as may be pointed out by the Port authorities, having regard to the season of the year. If communication with the shore is desired, the Health Officer shall go alongside the vessel, and, after all necessary enquiries, shall direct the Commander to take the vessel to the quarantine anchorage duly appointed and notified in that behalf by the Resident, there to remain for a period of seven days from the date of arrival, or for the shorter period prescribed in Rule IV, and undergo disinfection, which should apply as well to crew, passengers, effects, and susceptible goods.

IV.—If the Health Officer of the Port has sufficient evidence that no cases of a suspicious nature have taken place on board during the voyage, and if the vessel is besides in good hygienic condition, the duration of the quarantine will be diminished according to the following scale:—

After eight days of voyage	six days of quarantine.

VI.—When any vessel has been placed in quarantine as aforesaid, the Health Officer may direct the removal of so many of the passengers and crew as may not be suffering from illness, and whose services may not be required on board the vessel, to such particular spots as may from time to time be selected by the Resident as places of quarantine, there to remain for a period of seven days. If a case of cholera occurs among such passengers and crew during any such period, they shall remain in a place of quarantine for a period of fifteen days from the date of the occurrence of the last case of such illness.

VII.—Any mails or cargo which may be brought by any vessel so arriving shall be landed under such precautions as the Health Officer may deem necessary to prevent the spread of the disease.

VIII.—It will be the duty of the Port Officer to facilitate the conveyance to all vessels in quarantine of such supplies of provisions, stores and other articles as may be required by those on board. Such supplies will be placed on the boats of the vessels in quarantine to be subsequently removed by members of their crews.

IX.—All vessels arriving at Aden and Perim, which may have communicated with vessels coming from Singkel Islands off Sumatra, shall be subjected to the same quarantine as vessels arriving at Aden and Perim from that Port.

NOTICE TO MARINERS—(No. 25).

BAY OF BENGAL.

ANDAMAN ISLANDS.

Depth of water on the three Coral Banks off the West Coast.

The following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., and is the result of a late Survey by H. M. I. M. S. Investigator, variation 2° E. See Admiralty Charts 825, 514, 70, 830; also Bay of Bengal Pilot, 1887:—

The Coral Banks—The three large banks off the west coast of the Andaman Islands are composed of dead Coral and Sand. On West Coral Bank, the northern one, the least depth is 6 fathoms near the centre; on Middle Coral Bank the least depth is 23 feet rock where the rocky strata crops up through the Sand and Coral; also near the centre of the bank; and on South Coral Bank the least water is 6 fathoms.

The banks are safe to cross in fine weather; the water is very clear and looks much shoaler than it really is.

PORT BLAIR.

Northern Red Buoy has been moved one cable west of its old position.

The northern red buoy limiting the reef off the Port Officer's Jetty has been moved one cable west of its old position, and now lies 4 cables N. N.-W. $\frac{1}{4}$ W. of the wooden pier end.

BURMA COAST.

KYOUNK-PHYOU HARBOUR—ARRACAN.

Two dangerous shoals, a mile west of Saddie Island.

From comparison of old charts, and by information lately gathered, there appear to be two dangerous shoals which break in heavy weather a full mile west of Saddie Island. H. M. I. M. S. Investigator struck shoal water 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms, hereabouts in 1885, as she was leaving Kyounk-Phyou, after finishing the survey of the actual harbour. Vessels should not pass eastward of the Irrawaddy shoal.

BASSEIN RIVER—GULF OF MARTABAN.

Placing of a red tripod beacon with white cage on the Wolf Rocks near the entrance of the river; and erection of a tripod beacon on Cockatoo Rock; also regarding Long Sand, Ridge Shoal; Pariah Rock; Pannawaddi Flats and Elbow Shoal.

The Port Officer of Bassien reports as follows:—

A tripod beacon, red, with white cage, 16 feet above high-water, has been placed on the Wolf Rocks near the entrance of the river. It should not be approached from the eastward within 3 cables.

The Long Sand is now an island with trees on it.

The channel north of Ridge Shoal has closed, except for very small vessels. The two ends of this shoal are marked by red buoys.

Pariah Rock has been marked by a conical red buoy.

The Pannawaddi Flats extend right across the river, and there is only 3 fathoms water over the deepest part at low-water.

A tripod beacon has been erected on Cockatoo Rocks to act as a tide-gauge showing the water on the flats.

The Elbow Shoal is now a middle ground.

Its western edge is marked with a conical black buoy.

See Admiralty Charts 821, 831, 834; variation 3° E.

MALABAR COAST.

Regarding Jali Kund or Hog Island, Dart Rock, and Hawkin's Reef.

The following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., in charge of the Marine Survey of India:—

Jali Kund or Hog Island is shown on the present Admiralty Chart 744 one mile west of its true position with regard to Pigeon Island and the neighbouring peaks.

Dart Rock, the position of which depended on Hog Island, has been lately examined by Her Majesty's Indian Marine Steamer Investigator and found to be one mile nearer the shore than formerly stated. It lies with the following bearings and distances:—

Modeshwar Point	...	E by N 2 miles.
Hog Island	...	S S E $5\frac{1}{2}$ miles.
Pigeon Island	...	S W by W $\frac{1}{2}$ W $8\frac{1}{10}$ miles.

Depths of 6 to $6\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms are found round it.

Hawkin's Reef is the extension of a rocky patch a mile north of Modeshwar Point. From the extreme of the patch Modeshwar Point bears S E $\frac{1}{2}$ S distant $1\frac{1}{10}$ miles. It can be cleared by keeping Hog Island open to westward of the largest rocky islet S W of Modeshwar.

All bearings are magnetic; variation nil; see Admiralty Charts 744, 827, 2,737.

Resolution No. 1459R.A., dated 29th June 1887.

Observations.—On the 1st April 1887, the Eastern Bengal State Railway came under the control of this Government, and for special and economical reasons the Northern Bengal, Kaunia and Dhurlla and Dacca State Railways were placed under the management of the Eastern Bengal State Railway. Later on the portion of the Assam-Bihar Section of the Assam-Bihar State Railway was also placed under the same management, the whole being considered as one Railway system, and the review of the Fine Fund of the Eastern Bengal State Railway System comprises therefore the transactions on all the Railways mentioned above.

2. The review for all lines for the year 1887-88 have been received, and are summarized in the following table:—

RAILWAYS.	RECEIPTS.				EXPENDITURE.			Balance at end of 1887-88.

3. Under the head of Expenditure the principal disbursements were as follows:—

Eastern Bengal State Railway.—Institute Rs. 1,580 ; Schools Rs. 2,050 ; Volunteering Rs. 1,270-11-3 ; Amusements Rs. 450 ; Assistance to employes Rs. 2,334-6.

Tirhoot State Railway.—Institute Rs. 610 ; Compensation Rs. 252 ; Amusements Rs. 150 ; Schools Rs. 25 ; Medicines Rs. 48-6 ; Volunteering Rs. 200.

Nalhati State Railway.—Schools Rs. 77 ; Institute Rs. 52 ; Dispensary Re. 0-9-3.

RESOLUTION.—The reduction of the balances of the funds still continues, it being borne in mind that the present employes should benefit, as far as possible, from the receipts that have accrued during their term of service. The balance of the fund on the Eastern Bengal State Railway System still seems, however, unnecessarily high. Rupees 1,078-8-6 was expended on the Eastern Bengal State Railway in supplying menial and line staff employed on out-door work, and who have consequently to undergo exposure, with blankets ; Rs. 356-4 have been advanced on loan to employes to assist them in sending their children to school ; and Rs. 142 have been advanced to the Volunteer Prize Fund : the two latter amounts are recoverable.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Government of India, in the Public Works Department, and to the Managers of the Bengal Provincial Railways for information, and that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

E. J. MARTIN,

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph, and from observations made at 6h. 10h. 16h. and 22h.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

Explanation. Summary. The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetic average or means of the readings during the same period for the last 30 years. The normal means of the wind velocity is expressed in percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The normal means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the reports sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the 30 years in the district ending in returns divided by the number of stations. A rainy day is one on which at least hundredth of an inch fell.

CALCUTTA, the 19th June 1888.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL AND METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 15TH OF JUNE 1888.

The meteorological conditions obtaining over the province at the close of the previous week were those which characterise the hot weather in Bengal, though the winds blowing were decidedly more moist than usual. Moderate and fairly general rain had been received in the week ending the 8th instant, but the rainfall can scarcely be said to have been brought up by the true south-west monsoon current; for the wind systems had been more like the hot weather distribution, than that characteristic of the true rainy season. On the first day of the present week pressure fell rapidly in South-East Bengal, and there was a distinct tendency to cyclonic circulation of winds. A moist south-easterly wind current however prevailed over a large part of the province, though northerly winds were reported at some of the stations in Behar, Chutia Nagpur and West Bengal. Showers on this day were received generally over the whole of Bengal and Assam. On the following day conditions had not changed very largely, but the low pressure of the previous day in South-East Bengal had developed into a distinct barometric depression, the centre of which was probably over the Sunderbans, and which was accompanied by a distinct cyclonic circulation of winds, though their velocities were small. On this day also showers were reported, but they were far less numerous than on the preceding day, and they were to a considerable extent confined to South East Bengal and Orissa. On Monday, the 11th, the very feeble depression had advanced inland and was near Jessore; on this day rainfall was to a great extent absent over the province, and temperature commenced to rise rapidly. On the 13th pressure continued low over the central parts of the province, and there was a fairly distinct circulation of winds round it. Dry westerly winds set in at the western stations, though they were north-westerly at the northern stations and south-westerly at the southern stations; while elsewhere winds were south-easterly and easterly. With the setting in of these westerly winds, temperature again rose rapidly at the western stations, and the mean temperature varied from 5° to 10° above the normal at many of the western stations. On the 14th a very distinct area of low pressure existed in Central Bengal, and the lowest pressure in the whole province was reported from Krishnaghur, while winds showed a distinct cyclonic circulation round it. Again, the western and south-western stations were affected by the hot dry winds blowing in a westerly and north-westerly direction, and on this day most excessive temperatures were recorded, the mean temperatures at the western stations being about 8° to 10° above the normal for the day. On the 15th the area of low pressure had moved a little in a westerly direction, and it was near Burdwan, and with the similar wind distribution which obtained again, most excessive temperatures were reported. With the formation of the feeble depression over the centre of the province, moist southerly winds continued to flow in over the east of the province, and fairly general rain set in on the 13th and 14th in East and North Bengal, though the remainder of the province was practically rainless from about the 10th.

The principal facts of the meteorology of the past week have therefore been a most excessive temperature over the greater part of the province, particularly in the western and south-western districts, unusually low pressure, and absence of rain from most districts. The weather has been in fact of a most unusual character, and instead of the south-west monsoon current flowing over Bengal at this time and giving abundant rain as it normally should do, the greater part of the strength of the monsoon seems to have been deflected in an easterly direction, and it has thus given exceptionally heavy rain at many of the stations in Burma.

Pressure.—Has been generally below the normal and, as stated above, a low-pressure area has existed over the south of the province for some days. In fact the mean pressure for the week at many of the southern stations has been nearly a tenth of an inch below the normal, and thus at Saugor Island the defect has been 0.099 inch, at Chittagong 0.095 inch, and at Dacca 0.096 inch. At the inland stations the defects have generally been considerably smaller than this, and for the whole province the mean pressure has been in defect of the normal by only 0.064 inch. In Assam, pressure has been below the normal by 0.089 inch.

Temperature.—As stated before, the past week has been noticeable on account of the high temperature registered on some days. The temperature generally was highest on Thursday, the 14th, and the mean temperature of the 24 hours from 10 A.M. of the 14th to 10 A.M. of the 15th was above the normal of the day by the following amounts: at Balasore 16.1° , at Midnapore 13.9° , at Calcutta 10.5° , and at Burdwan 10.1° . The maximum temperature recorded at the Alipore Observatory (Calcutta) on the 14th was 106.8° . The highest previously recorded temperature since the establishment of the observatory in 1874 has been 105.6° on April 14th, 1884, the next highest was 105.5° on April 15th, 1885, so that the temperature on this day was certainly 1.2° higher than any in Calcutta of which there are thoroughly reliable records, or rather records comparable with those made at the present time. A higher temperature than this even was recorded on this day, the 14th of June 1883 at the Chowringhee Observatory, and the maximum thermometer indicated no less than 107.2° . Very high maximum temperatures were also recorded at other stations:—thus Delree registered 114.5° on the 14th, Gya 113.6° on the 14th, Balasore 113° on the 15th, Midnapore 112.4° on the 14th and several other stations temperatures above 110° . The mean temperature for the whole week has been nearly 4° in excess of the normal in Chutia Nagpur, Orissa, and South-West Bengal, about 2° above it in East Bengal and South Behar, while temperature has been nearly normal in North Bengal and North Behar. For the whole province of Bengal temperature has been more than 2° above the normal. In Assam temperature has been 0.4° in excess of the normal.

Rainfall.—The only rainfall of importance has been in East and North Bengal, which have received an average of about one and-a-half inches; North Behar and Orissa have received an average fall of half an inch; and South-West Bengal about a third of an inch. South Behar and Chutia Nagpur have received average falls of less than two-tenths of an inch. In all cases, therefore, rainfall has been very largely below the normal.

In Assam the following rainfalls have been recorded during the week:—Silohar 4.79 inches, Sibsagar 1.03 inches, and Dhubri 0.05 inch.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 15th of June 1888:—

Extract of a letter No. J. & P. 579-88, dated the 20th April, 1888, with enclosure, from the Secretary to the Trustees of the Gilchrist Educational Trust.

THE time for the withdrawal of the Scholarship has now expired, but the Gilchrist Trustees not desiring to sever their connection with the Educational advancement of India as expressed in the communication referred to, have just decided (pending further possible consideration and also the possible receipt of important information from India which might guide them to such alteration in the terms of the Scholarship as might increase its popularity and usefulness) to continue the same for the present and until further notice on the same conditions as heretofore (copies of which conditions I forward herewith). The Scholarship will therefore be offered again on the result of the Matriculation Examination of the University of London, which, I presume, will be held as usual in India in January next 1889, and I have to request that you will cause this information to be forwarded to the Government of India with the least possible delay that candidates for the Scholarship may have time to prepare for that examination.

Conditions for Scholarships instituted by the Gilchrist Educational Trust for the benefit of Natives of India and Ceylon.

[These scholarships, like the degrees and other Academical Rewards of the University of London, are open to women upon exactly the same conditions as to men.]

A Scholarship of the value of £150 per annum, and tenable for four years, will be annually awarded to a Candidate born in India or Ceylon who shall become eligible by

Competitive Examination; and shall be desirous of prosecuting a Course of Academical Study in Great Britain, with a view to graduation in one of the Faculties of Arts, Science, Law, or Medicine in the University of London, under the following conditions:—

1. Of the parents of each Candidate, one at least shall not be of pure European descent.
2. Every Candidate must furnish proof satisfactory to the Local Authorities that he has completed his sixteenth year, and that his age does not exceed twenty-two years.
3. Every Candidate must furnish proof satisfactory to the Local Authorities that in regard to personal character and social position he is qualified to be admitted to competition for a scholarship.

4. Candidates approved by the Local Authorities shall present themselves at the January Matriculation Examination of the University of London, which will be held simultaneously under the direction of Government Sub-Examiners at the three Presidential Capitals of India, and at the Royal College, Colombo, commencing on the second Monday in January.

5. The answers of the Candidates, approved as aforesaid, will be forwarded, through the Governments of India and Ceylon respectively, to the Registrar of the University, who will cause them to be reviewed by the Examiners, and who will forward their Report to those Governments, to be by them announced to the Candidates.

6. The Scholarship shall be awarded to the Candidate whose aggregate of marks stands highest; provided that he passes either in the Honours or in the First Division. Such Candidate shall have his choice whether he will pursue his curriculum of study in the University of Edinburgh, or in University College, London.

7. The successful Candidate will be expected to arrive in London, and to present himself to the Secretary of the Gulchrist Trust, not later than the first week in the October following his appointment. If a Native of India, he will be provided by the Government of India with a free passage to England.

8. The Scholarship shall be considered as commencing from the 1st of July following the award of the Examiners; and shall be payable in quarterly instalments on the first days of October, January, April and July.

9. Each Scholar shall attend in every Session at least Three Courses of Lectures at the Institution in which he studies; and shall transmit to the Secretary of the Gulchrist Trust at the conclusion of each Session, a Certificate from each of the Professors whose Lectures he has attended, stating that his diligence and conduct have been satisfactory. Should he not be able to produce such a Certificate, or should he be proved guilty of discreditable conduct elsewhere, he shall be considered to have forfeited his claim to the remaining instalments of his Scholarship.

10. Each Scholar shall be expected to present himself at the Intermediate Examination in one of the Faculties of Arts, Science, or Law, or at the Preliminary Scientific M.B. Examination in the University of London, before the termination of the Second (Academical) Year* from the commencement of his Scholarship, unless excused from doing so by the Trustees; and if he do not so present himself (unless by permission of the Trustees), or if he fail to pass, he shall be considered as forfeiting his claim to the remaining instalments of his Scholarship. After having passed this first Examination, he will be expected to pursue his studies with the view of presenting himself at the next Examination within Two (Academical) Years.

11. The Trustees will provide for the return passage of every Indian Scholar who shall succeed in obtaining his degree in the University of London. For every Indian Scholar who may fail to obtain his degree, a return passage will be provided by the Government of India.

12. The foregoing scheme shall be subject to revision from time to time; the Trustees reserving to themselves the power of altering the conditions of the Scholarships, or of altogether withdrawing them, if they deem it expedient to do either. But no change will be made in such a manner as to affect the interests of Candidates already appointed to scholarships.

*Thus a candidate whose scholarship commences on the 1st of July 1884 would be considered as having fulfilled this condition if he pass the Intermediate LL.B. Examination in January 1886, or the Intermediate B.A., the Intermediate B.Sc., or the Preliminary Scientific M. B. Examination in the following July.

NOTICE TO MARINERS—(No. 27.)

INDIA—SOUTH COAST.

CEYLON—SOUTH-EAST COAST.

Attention called to the new editions of certain Admiralty Charts.

The following Notice to Mariners (No. 139 of the year 1888), issued by the British Admiralty, is republished:—

The attention of Mariners is called to the new editions of Admiralty Charts Nos. 813 and 2031, giving the results of the re-survey of the south-eastern coasts of Ceylon from the Little Basses to Trincomali by the Officers of H. M. S. Egeria, under the command of Captain P. Aldrich, 1887.

The offshore soundings now given are of such a nature as to render navigation perfectly safe in the thickest weather, if the lead is attended to, and the ship is not allowed to come into less than 20 fathoms of water.

The disasters which have taken place from time to time on this coast, supposed to have been on dangers situated some miles from the shore, were probably due to difficulties in fixing the true position; difficulties caused by the absence of soundings, and also by the fact that some of the mountain peaks in the interior, used as landmarks, were not in their true positions on the former charts, an inaccuracy now remedied from the trigonometrical survey of Ceylon, carried out by the Surveyor-General of that Colony.

Charts Nos. 828 and 70 will be shortly corrected for this new information.

Note.—Mariners navigating on the coast of Ceylon should consult the Bay of Bengal Pilot, 1887, pages 378—390, wherein is contained a monthly statement of Currents and Winds on the coasts of Ceylon, as experienced in 100 voyages round that island by Mr. Thomas Robson, Commander of the Colonial Government Steamer Serendib, during the five years, July 1881 to September 1886.

BAY OF BENGAL.

ANDAMAN ISLANDS.

Depth of water on the three Coral Banks off the West Coast.

THE following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R. N., and is the result of a late Survey by H. M. I. M. S. Investigator, variation 2° E. See Admiralty Charts 525, 511, 70, 830; also Bay of Bengal Pilot, 1887:—

The Coral Banks—The three large banks off the west coast of the Andaman Islands are composed of dead Coral and Sand. On West Coral Bank, the northern one, the least depth is 6 fathoms near the centre; on Middle Coral Bank the least depth is 23 feet rock where the rocky strata crops up through the Sand and Coral; also near the centre of the bank; and on South Coral Bank the least water is 6 fathoms.

The banks are safe to cross in fine weather; the water is very clear and looks much shoaler than it really is.

PORT BLAIR.

Northern Red Buoy has been moved one cable west of its old position.

The northern red buoy limiting the reef off the Port Officer's Jetty has been moved one cable west of its old position, and now lies 4 cables N. N.-W. $\frac{1}{2}$ W. of the wooden pier end.

BURMA COAST.

KYOUK-PHYOU HARBOUR—ARRACAN.

Two dangerous shoals, a mile west of Saddle Island.

From comparison of old charts, and by information lately gathered, there appear to be two dangerous shoals which break in heavy weather a full mile west of Saddle Island. H. M. I. M. S. Investigator struck shoal water 4 $\frac{1}{2}$ fathoms, hereabouts in 1885, as she was leaving Kyouk-Phyou, after finishing the survey of the actual harbour. Vessels should not pass eastward of the Inrawaddy shoal.

BASSEIN RIVER—GULF OF MARTABAN.

Placing of a red tripod beacon with white cage on the Wolf Rocks near the entrance of the river; and erection of a tripod beacon on Cockatoo Rock; also regarding Long Sand; Ridge Shoal; Pariah Rock; Panmawaddy Flats and Elbow Shoal.
 The Port Officer of Bassein reports as follows:—

A tripod beacon, red, with white cage, 16 feet above high-water, has been placed on the Wolf Rocks near the entrance of the river. It should not be approached from the eastward within 8 cables.

The Long Sand is now an island with trees on it.

The channel north of Ridge Shoal has closed, except for very small vessels. The two ends of this shoal are marked by red buoys.

Pariah Rock has been marked by a conical red buoy.

The Panmawaddi Flats extend right across the river, and there is only 8 fathoms water over the deepest part at low-water.

A tripod beacon has been erected on Cockatoo Rocks to act as a tide-gauge showing the water on the flats.

The Elbow Shoal is now a middle ground.

Its western edge is marked with a conical black buoy.

Regarding Jali Kund or Hog Island, Dart Rock, and Hawkin's Reef.

THE following information has been received from Commander Alfred Carpenter, R.N., in charge of the Marine Survey of India:—

Jali Kund or Hog Island is shown on the present Admiralty Chart 744 one mile west of its true position with regard to Pigeon Island and the neighbouring peaks.

Dart Rock, the position of which depended on Hog Island, has been lately examined by Her Majesty's Indian Marine Steamer Investigator and found to be one mile nearer the shore than formerly stated. It lies with the following bearings and distances:—

Modeshwar Point	E by N 2 miles.
Hog Island	S S E 5½ miles.
Pigeon Island	S W by W ¼ W 8¼ miles.

Depths of 6 to 6½ fathoms are found round it.

Hawkin's Reef is the extension of a rocky patch a mile north of Modeshwar Point. From the extreme of the patch Modeshwar Point bears S E ½ S distant 1½ miles. It can be cleared by keeping Hog Island open to westward of the largest rocky islet S W of Modeshwar.

All bearings are magnetic; variation nil; see Admiralty Charts 744, 827, 2,737.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE JAIL DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1887.

RESOLUTION.

JAILS.

Dated Daryjeeling, the 16th June 1888.

READ—

The Report on the Administration of the Jail Department for the year 1887.

Read also—

The Reports for the years 1885 and 1886, and the orders of Government recorded thereon.

Dr. Lethbridge was in charge of the Department throughout the year. The annual report has again been submitted with commendable promptitude. Dr. Lethbridge has also considerably cut down the dimensions of the report by careful attention to the orders of Government. The report for 1887 only fills 35 pages, while that for 1884 required 81 pages. The report for 1886 filled 44 pages.

The general results are very satisfactory. It must, however, be borne in mind that all the statistics are affected by the releases and remissions granted on the celebration of the Jubilee, and to a certain extent this fact affects all comparisons with the figures of previous years. The death-rate fell to 33·1 per mille, the lowest on record, against 37·2 in 1886, and an average of 59·2 since 1863. The number of whippings was only 266 against 396 in 1886 and a yearly average of 364·25 from 1882 to 1885. The number of escapes fell to 13 against 17 in 1886, and a yearly average of 25·4 from 1881 to 1885. The number of whippings and escapes are the lowest on record. Making every allowance for the effect on these figures of the Jubilee releases, they testify to the excellent administration of the Department.

2. Judicial Statistics.—The total jail population at the beginning of the year (14,629) was reduced by the 31st December to 13,210, the lowest figure on record, and in great measure the result of remissions granted on the Jubilee day. The daily average population of all classes of prisoners decreased from 14,805·90 in 1886 to 12,250·36 in 1887. This decrease is confined to convicts and civil prisoners, there being an increase of 63·63 in the daily average of under-trial prisoners, due to the unsatisfactory fact of their longer detention under trial. The number admitted was actually less than in 1886. The following table shows the figures for convicts only for the last ten years :—

The number of direct admissions (29,942) is lower than in any year except 1883 (29,763), and is a satisfactory proof that there was no appreciable increase of crime in consequence of the Jubilee releases. The balance at the end of the year (11,950) and the daily average number (10,908) are the lowest on record, owing to the releases and the small number of admissions. The proportion of the population confined in central jails rose from 53·38 to 59·55 per cent., a very satisfactory increase, as the conditions of jail life are more penal and the prisoner's labour is more valuable from an industrial point of view in central than in district jails. District jails held 37·61 per cent. of the population, and subsidiary jails 2·84 per cent. The corresponding figures for 1886 are 53·38, 44·60 and 2·00.

3. 30,760 prisoners were released against 30,696 in 1886. While in 1886, 27,125 persons were released on expiry of sentence, the figures for 1887 are 21,328. On the other hand the number released on other grounds rose from 27 to 6,444. These figures are accounted for by the releases at the time of the Jubilee. The number released on appeal has steadily increased from 1,384 in 1882 to 1,903 in 1887. This point will be dealt with in considering the crime report. The decrease in the number of releases under the head "remission rules," 1,017 against 1,674 in 1886, is due to the fact that a large number of prisoners who would otherwise have been released under the mark system, some time in 1887, were set free on the Jubilee day.

4. The number of convicts transported beyond seas rose from 468 in 1885 and 668 in 1886 to 797 in 1887. The attention of the Government of India has been drawn to the fact that some of the Local Governments have relaxed too far the new rules of selection. In one case from another province the prisoner was almost blind of both eyes. The number of Bengal prisoners transported was 168. The corresponding figures for 1885 and 1886 were 78 and 137 respectively. Executions rose from 17 in 1886 to 30 in 1887.

5. The number of Burmese prisoners confined in Bengal Jails was increased by 20 during 1887, bringing the total to 284. The Government of India has now under consideration a scheme for granting tickets-of-leave to this class of prisoners. Some such scheme is required, as they will otherwise become a source of danger from their increasing numbers in the less secure district jails. They mostly enjoy excellent health in Bengal. Their conduct was generally good, but the number of offences increased from 174 to 450, of which 178 related to work. This is still far below the average reported in the case of other prisoners. One of them committed a very serious assault on a convict officer. Two Burmese prisoners escaped through the carelessness of the Pubna Jail officials. Of the three men who escaped in 1886, one was recaptured. He states that his companions both died on the way back to Burina, one was drowned, and the other killed in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

6. The figures given by the Inspector-General show that 57·34 per cent. of the persons admitted in 1887 were Hindoos, 38·61 per cent. Mahomedans, and 1·27 per cent. Christians. There were also 168 Buddhists and 665 of other religions. The figures differ very little from those for last year. The percentage of Christians fell from 1·89 in 1886 to 1·27 per cent. in 1887. The number of juveniles admitted rose to 296 from 273 in 1886. The Reformatory Schools at Hazaribagh and Alipore continue to do excellent work.

7. Of the prisoners admitted 18,686, or 62·40 per cent., were sentenced to imprisonment for three months and less. The corresponding figures for 1886 were 19,729, or 64·3 per cent. The number sentenced to simple imprisonment fell from 2,340 to 2,216. The number of juvenile offenders sentenced to whipping fell to 377 from 448 in 1886. The number of other judicial whippings has fallen continuously from 1,965 in 1885 to 1,373 in 1887.

8. The number of female prisoners admitted into jail fell from 1,573 in 1885 to 1,391 in 1886 and 1,280 in 1887. The rules to prevent solitary confinement where there happens to be only one female in jail proved successful. 351 women were released on the Jubilee day, leaving only 78 women in the Bengal Jails. A female ward has been opened in the Presidency Jail to obviate legal difficulties connected with the jurisdiction of the High Court.

9. The number of reconvicted prisoners admitted into jail decreased from 3,589, or 11·70 per cent. of admission, in 1886, to 3,472, or 11·60 per cent., in 1887. New rules were introduced in February 1887 regarding the identification and classification of habitual offenders, and until they have been working some time it will be impossible to draw comparisons of any value with the figures of previous years. The jails showing the largest number of reconvictions were Calcutta 402 or 22·56, Monghyr 149 or 22·10 and Alipore 139 or 12·16 per cent. In Monghyr the percentage rose from 19·59 in 1886 to 22·10 in 1887. The District Magistrate attributes the increase in Monghyr to the exertions made in tracing the previous history of convicts by the District Superintendent of Police, Colonel Ramsay, to whom these results are very creditable. It is probable that similar exertions in other districts would lead to more accurate results than are now obtained. The number of persons imprisoned for failing to give security for good behaviour rose to 838. Of the prisoners admitted, 86·92 were unable to read and write; 9·66 per cent. were able to read and write a little, and the remainder could read and write well. The figures differ little from those for 1886.

10. The number of under-trial prisoners admitted during the year was 26,240, the lowest number admitted since 1883. The average period of detention was 17·75 days, a longer time than in any other year of this decade. It is impossible to compare the figures for different subsidiary jails, as at present the figures do not distinguish between prisoners in Sessions cases, where the delay is more or less unavoidable, and in Magistrate's cases. Sir Stuart Bayley approves of the proposal of the Inspector-General of Jails to show such cases separately in future. The Lieutenant-Governor has recently given orders that under-trial prisoners in central, district and intermediate jails shall be placed on full diet from the date of their admission, and it is hoped this will have some effect on the health of convicts during the first few months of their confinement. That the health of under-trial prisoners at the time of admission is very bad appears to be proved by the fact that out of 27,120 individuals who spent on an average 17·75 days in jail, 36 should have died. It is scarcely possible to suppose that the death-rate in these cases should have been affected by the treatment the prisoners received in the subsidiary jails. The accommodation for under-trial prisoners is good and sufficient, except in the Presidency and Gya Jails, where, owing to want of funds, it has hitherto been impossible to deal with this question. The Lieutenant-Governor hopes it may be taken up during the current year. 6 under-trial prisoners escaped during the year (excluding 5 prisoners who escaped and were recaptured during the year), the same number as in 1885 and 1886. 3,054 civil prisoners were admitted during the year against 3 410 in 1886. Out of this number 62 were released on the Jubilee day, the Imperial Government paying their debts to the amount of Rs. 3,632.

11. Jail buildings.—Six new subsidiary jails were built at a cost of Rs. 28,953. A female ward, new guard-house and new workshop was provided in the Alipore Jail at a cost of Rs. 33,691. In the Presidency Jail solitary cells and an inner wall were built, costing Rs. 7,383. In Dacca Rs. 18,691 were expended on the new Central Jail. In Buxar Central Jail an upper story to the factory cost Rs. 9,349. The daily average number of prisoners employed on jail buildings was 1,124. The estimated earnings of the prisoners so employed is not shown in any of the financial statistics of this report.

12. Guards and Escapes.—The Jail establishment of Bengal was organised in 1878 for a jail population which averaged for 1874, 1875 and 1876 over 21,500 prisoners of all classes, the jail population having steadily since then decreased to its daily average of 12,250 in 1887. On the proposal of the Inspector-General of Jails, the Bhagulpore District Jail was abolished last year, and the reserve guards of 14 district jails, containing less than 160 prisoners, were dispensed with. Towards the close of the year Government sanctioned the reduction of 4 district jails to the new grade of intermediate jails. The result is a net saving of Rs. 41,958 per annum. The Inspector-General of Jails states that, should the jail population not increase, he will recommend a reduction of three more district jails to the intermediate grade.

13. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that Dr. Lethbridge is able to report a further improvement in the paid warder establishment, especially marked by the improvement in their military training and manner of carrying out their routine duties. Formerly many men resigned on the slightest occasion; now, if a warder is dismissed, he does not hesitate to come all the way to Calcutta to lay his case before the Inspector-General if he sees the least chance of being reinstated. The total number of warders employed in jails and subsidiary jails during the year was 1,707. The number of offences decreased from 3,123 in 1885 and 2,715 in 1886 to 2,359 in 1887. Petty offences were met in 875 cases by warning and extra drill. 405 offences were connected with drill. The number dismissed fell from 216 in 1885 and 128 in 1886 to 103 in 1887. The imposition of small fines is the most common form of punishment, and was adopted in 1,276 cases. Excluding warnings and extra drill, there was barely one punishment per head. It is only by noticing every petty offence that the discipline of men of the class enlisted in the warder establishment can be improved. Where jails are guarded by police whose punishments are not shown in the jail returns, the number of punishments recorded should of course be much smaller. The number of escapes fell to 13, the lowest figure on record. The proportion of escapes to admissions was in 1886 lower in Bengal than in any other province excepting the North-Western Provinces, and it must be borne in mind that the very large number of minor jails greatly increases the difficulty of preventing escapes as compared with other provinces where there are no subsidiary jails. In 1870, 1871 and 1872, when guarding was done by police constables, there were 477 escapes.

Two Burmese prisoners escaped from the Pubna Jail through the discreditable laxity of the Jailer and his subordinates as regards the night-guarding arrangements and the over-confidence reposed in well-behaved, useful prisoners, which enabled one of the Burmese unobserved to file the bar of one of the gratings of a door in his ward and in the ward in which the other Burman slept. The escape from the Dacca Jail was not due to any defect in the system of guarding, as the prisoner passed out with the men released on the Jubilee day in the place of a man bearing the same name as himself. The small number of escapes testifies to the improvement in discipline of the warder establishment, and is highly creditable to Dr. Lethbridge and his subordinates.

14. Prison discipline.—The new rules requiring that the classification of habitual prisoners shall be made by the Court or District Magistrate were in force for some months last year. In some cases the orders were not understood by the Magistrates. In Dinagepore, for instance, 80 persons convicted for the first time were classed as habituals. Again in Bhagulpore, on reclassifying the prisoners of the Bhagulpore Jail, 140 prisoners who had been once convicted were transferred by the Magistrate from the A to the B class, under the idea apparently that all prisoners sentenced for dacoity, robbery, or house-breaking to three years' imprisonment and upwards must be hardened and dangerous criminals, even though never convicted before. In another place, 3 prisoners, sentenced to 20 days for hurt and not convicted before, were classed B. On the other hand, in Monghyr, 8 prisoners, sentenced to six months' imprisonment in default of security to be of good behaviour, were classed as A. Except in these and a few minor cases the rules worked well. The Inspector-General proposes to call shortly for a further report on this subject from Superintendents of Jails. He is requested to bring to the notice of Government any case in which the rules appear to have been flagrantly misapplied. A decrease in the number of habituals was foretold by the Inspector-General in his Administration Report in 1885 as a result of the new rules. It is difficult, however, at present to say whether the slight decrease in their number, noticed in paragraph 9, is due to this cause.

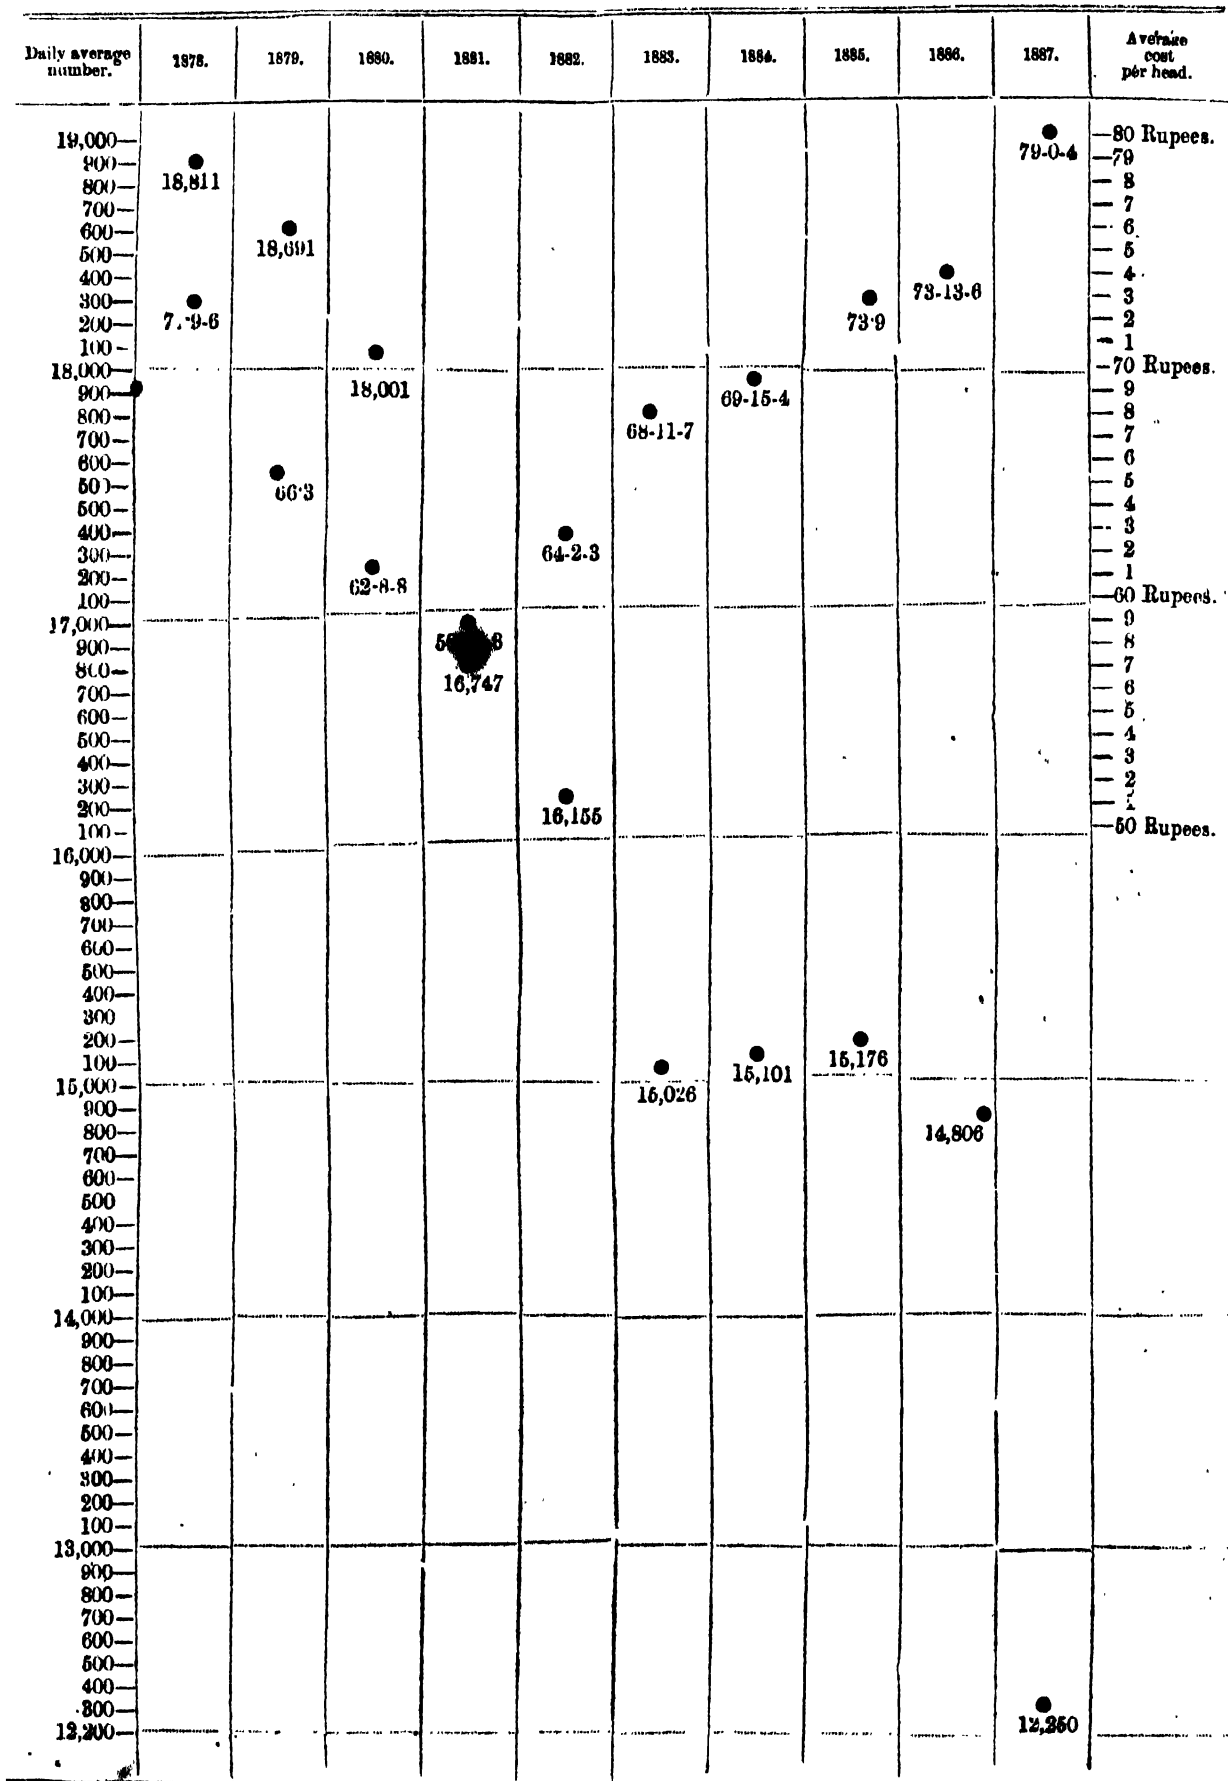

15. The number of offences by convicts fell to 35,824 from 40,512 in 1886. The percentage of offences to the daily average population rose to 328.4 from 299.9 in 1886. On the other hand, only 59.8 of the whole number of individual prisoners committed offences as against 65.5 the year before. As the Lieutenant-Governor lately addressed the Government of India on this subject, it is unnecessary here to deal at length with the subject of the recording of jail offences. The number of serious offences keeps extremely low. There were only 44 punishments by Criminal Courts against 85 in 1884, 71 in 1885, and 44 in 1886. The number of corporal punishments is a third less than in 1886, namely, 266 against 396, another indication of the small number of serious offences. In 21 cases only were less than 10 stripes given and in 42 cases between 10 and 15. During the last two quarters of the year there was no case in which less than 10 stripes were given. The six cases in which illness is reported to have followed after corporal punishment were all cases of ulcers caused by whipping. Reduced diet was only given in 820 cases against 4,495 in 1884, 2,958 in 1885, and 1,514 in 1886. Fetters were imposed in 11,640 cases as a punishment. In 10,232 cases the prisoners had them on for less than a month. Only 119 men were kept in fetters for safe custody—a very small number, considering that there were 284 Burmese prisoners in the Bengal jails.

16. Of the whole male jail population, only 4.84 per cent. were employed as convict officers, against 6.89 in 1886. This large reduction is due to the fact that convict warders, who take the place of paid warders, are not shown this year in Statement VIII, and to the large number released on account of the Jubilee, whom it was impossible to replace from those left in jail. As convict officers are not to be appointed in intermediate jails, the number for future years will be low though, as the Government of India pointed out in its review of the Administration Reports of the Jails of the several provinces of British India for 1886, they cannot be dispensed with altogether. The number of convict officers punished was 1,368 as against 1,868 in 1886. This shows that they worked well on the whole, as 1,543 convict officers were employed during the year. It requires constant warnings and corrections to make them efficient disciplinarians, and it is not found in practice in Bengal that minor corrections, if awarded at the special parades of convict officers, lower their position in the eyes of the prisoners.

17. The new mark rules were in force throughout the year, but the statistics are vitiated by the large number of convicts on the mark system released at the Jubilee. The Inspector-General's opinion is that the new system as now worked is a complete success.

18. Expenditure.—The gross expenditure for all classes of jails fell from Rs. 10,93,361 to Rs. 9,68,033, the lowest figure ever reached. The decrease is spread over all items, excepting Medical Stores, which shows an increase of Rs. 607. Owing to the fall in daily population from 14,806 to 12,250, the cost per prisoner has risen from Rs. 73-13-6 to Rs. 79-0-4. The following diagram shows the fluctuation in the daily average number of prisoners and the average cost of each prisoner during the last 10 years:—

The cost per head fell in 1881, owing to a marked decrease in the price of rice, but since 1882 it has continuously risen, while the average number confined has simultaneously greatly diminished. This is a necessary result of the fact that the scales of establishments were adapted to a jail population of 20,000. The Inspector-General's scheme, by which 14 district jails were reduced to the intermediate grade, will result in a large saving this year, and if the jail population does not increase, further reductions will be possible.

19. The expenditure in Central and District Jails shows a decrease under every head, and a total of Rs. 8,12,576 against Rs. 9,39,472 last year. The reduction in the daily average population, however, has raised the cost per prisoner from Rs. 66-9-11 to Rs. 70-12-3. There is a decided saving in all items of expenditure which are in the power of Superintendents to control. Thus, allowing for the smaller daily average number of prisoners, there has been a saving of Rs. 38,219 under the head of diet, or, in other words, the average annual expenditure for diet per prisoner has fallen from Rs. 22-15-4 to Rs. 20-4; while the annual cost of clothing a prisoner has fallen to Rs. 3-14-6 from Rs. 4-14-3 in 1885 and Rs. 4-4-10 in 1886. Taking together the heads diet, hospital charges, and clothing, the average annual expenditure per prisoner has fallen from Rs. 30-4-6 in 1886 to Rs. 27-4-3 in 1887.

20. These economies have been effected by the lower prices paid for articles of food, especially rice and wheat, and economy in management. The average price of rice per maund was Rs. 1-12-8 against Rs. 2-1-8 in 1886. Wheat in like manner fell from Rs. 3-15-8 per maund to Rs. 3-5-4. These are below the market rates, and have been got by such economical measures as storing grain at the cheapest season, husking rice and dall, buying cattle and goats and having the meat prepared on the jail premises. The following jails showed the most remarkable reductions in average diet expenditure:—

			1887.			1886.
			Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
Bogra	13	15	9	18	9	1
Burdwan	18	14	8	23	11	8
Mozufferpore	18	4	9	23	1	9
Furzedpore	17	6	4	23	2	2
Dacca	22	11	6	29	7	0
Monghyr	13	10	6	20	1	4
Hazaribagh	17	2	7	24	10	9

The extraordinary reduction in Monghyr is due to “(1) an improvement in the method of cooking of Indian-corn, which made it possible to give this cheap grain all the year round; (2) by the growing of 47 maunds of Indian-corn on jail land; (3) purchase of paddy at the cheap season and husking it in the jail, which resulted in a saving of 9 annas a maund, as compared with bazar rates for rice; and (4) purchase of cereals in the interior of the district.” These results are highly creditable to the jailor, who is reported to be most careful as regards the health of the prisoners. The least satisfactory results are given by Nuddea, Gya, and Shahabad. In the first named jail, the average expenditure on diet rose from Rs. 23-3-9 in 1886 to Rs. 23-4-8. In Gya the increase was from Rs. 23-9 to Rs. 23-10-7. In Shahabad the increase was from Rs. 18-8-8 to Rs. 19-2-2. The Inspector-General is unable to supply figures showing the amount of cereals produced from jail gardens and used for rations, as required in the Government of India's Resolution on the Jail Report for 1886. Superintendents have been directed to keep careful accounts for the current year. All the vegetables required for jail use were grown in the jails, except in the Khoolna Jail, where the garden was taken up for building purposes. The expenditure on bazar vegetables was only Rs. 17 against Rs. 173 in 1886 and Rs. 643 in 1885.

The following table gives very interesting results:—

	Number of deaths per mille in 1887.	Number of deaths per mille in 1886.
Jails where the cost of dieting decreased by Rs. 2 or more a head in 1887 as compared with 1886 ...	31.27	37.16
Jails where the cost of dieting decreased by less than Rs. 2 a head in 1887 as compared with 1886 ...	37.93	39.78
Jails where the cost of dieting increased in 1887 as compared with 1886 ...	36.30	39.75

These figures show that economy in dieting is not necessarily accompanied by any increase in sickness and mortality.

21. The total expenditure on establishment fell from Rs. 4,07,898 in 1886 to Rs. 4,00,611 in 1887, owing to the abolition of the warder reserve guard of the jails which have since been reduced to the status of intermediate jails. Hospital charges fell to Rs. 35,750 from Rs. 42,704 in 1886, while at the same time the average cost per head of sick shows a rise from Rs. 67-5-1 to Rs. 68-3-11. The average expenditure on clothing fell to Rs. 3-14-6 from Rs. 4-4-10. Dinagapore, Nuddea, Burdwan, Furreedpore, Mymensingh, Lohardugga and Singbhoom were the most expensive, the average expenditure varying from Rs. 8-4-8 at Dinagapore to Rs. 5-7-8 at Singbhoom. The Superintendents of these jails will be asked to exercise more control over this item of expenditure. Under contingencies there was a saving of Rs. 5,820 as compared with last year. The charges under the head of diet of defendants (which includes railway fare and subsistence allowance given to released prisoners) and transfer charges show an increase in consequence of the large number of prisoners released on the Jubilee day, and frequent transfer from district to central jails owing to the demand in central jails for prisoners. On petty constructions and repairs the expenditure fell from Rs. 22,831 to Rs. 22,543.

22. Employment of prisoners and manufactures.—The total average number of prisoners sentenced to labour fell from 13,339·53 in 1886 to 10,698·30 in 1887. The ratio per cent. of the daily average sick, 4·9, was lower than in any year since 1880, excepting 1886, when it was 4·8. The average number employed under all heads of prison service fell from 4,078·01 to 2,993·93. The number employed on manufactures was 4,925·29 against 5,971·72 in 1886. The proportion per cent. of convicts employed on manufactures to total number sentenced to labour was 46·03. The total profits on the year's workings came to Rs. 2,42,741, or an average profit of Rs. 22-11 per head sentenced to labour. The corresponding figures for 1886 were Rs. 3,10,099 and Rs. 23-4. The falling off is fully accounted for by the Jubilee remissions. In the Presidency Central Jail alone the profits fell from Rs. 91,557 in 1886 to Rs. 69,591-12, or an average of Rs. 61-6 per prisoner sentenced to labour against the previous year's average of Rs. 75-13. The lower earnings in this case were entirely due to the loss of skilled labour by the Jubilee remissions; this cause affected more or less the working throughout the Department.

The average earnings of each prisoner in central jails are shown in the following table:—

		Average earning per prisoner, 1887.		Average earning per prisoner, 1886
		Rs.		Rs.
Presidency Central Jail	...	58·3		72·0
Alipore	...	42·7		36·4
Buxar	...	41·2		47·6
Midnapore	...	30·8		18·4
Rajshahye	...	21·2		24·6
Dacca	...	3·0		2·4

The Marine, Telegraph, and Army Clothing Departments continued to indent on the Alipore Central Jail, and it supplied opium chest-covers to the value of Rs. 74,134 to the agencies of Benares and Behar. In Buxar the tent industry is rapidly extending. In Rajshahye the earnings were reduced by Rs. 4,877-9 owing to the settlement of a claim against the jail in respect of the refraction of the seed supplied in 1886-87. In Dacca Central Jail only 27·22 per cent. of the prisoners sentenced to labour were employed on manufactures—a lower figure than in any other Central Jail. The average profits, Rs. 3-3 per head, though very low, are higher than in any previous year since 1881, excepting 1884 and 1885. Till towards the end of 1884 most of the labourers were employed by the Public Works Department, and the efforts to develop a staple industry have not hitherto been very successful. A Commissariat order for durrees has been obtained by the Jail. Special attention will doubtless be given by Dr. Lethbridge to this matter. The Bhagulpore Central Jail made a loss of Rs. 15,055 on its manufacturing operations. It lost in 1885 the Army contracts for woollen goods. The Inspector-General of Jails made an enquiry on the spot, and he is satisfied that all that is possible is being done to work the mill profitably. It is hoped that the Ordnance Department will be able to help with small orders, which will give a small profit until it again receives a portion of the Army contracts. Darjeeling again heads the list of district jails with an average earning of Rs. 87-8 as compared with Rs. 79-15, the figure for last year. The stock of manufactured articles is still somewhat large, but it is satisfactory to note that it has steadily diminished from Rs. 3,41,100 at the close of 1884 to Rs. 2,76,416 at the close of 1887. The outstandings at the end of the year were very large, and it is unsatisfactory that they are showing a tendency to increase.

23. Subsidiary Jails.—A subsidiary jail was opened during the year at Thakurgaon in the Dinagepore district, bringing the total number up to 85. The average number of inspections by Superintendents was 70 and in 8 cases only were fewer inspections made. Atia, Kishoregunge, Kissen-gunge, Serajgunge, Arrareah and Brahmanbariah were overcrowded. The special report promised by the Inspector-General, after having the capacity of the wards and enclosures re-measured, is awaited. The condition of warder guards attached to subsidiary jails continues to improve. There were only 17 escapes from subsidiary jails, the lowest number on record during the last 10 years. Of those who escaped, 7 were convicts and 10 under-trial prisoners. At Moonshi-gunge a convict escaped who had, by the order of the Deputy Superintendent, been taken out of the subsidiary jail, contrary to rules, to work in his dwelling-house. The Deputy Superintendent (a Civil Hospital Assistant) has been fined one month's pay, removed from the Jail Department, and transferred. The average detention of convicts rose to 8·05 days, the highest figure since 1880. At Palamow convicts sentenced to three months and under are detained in the subsidiary jail. The Inspector-General's proposal to establish an intermediate jail there is under the consideration of Government. Convicts were detained in the Bhola, Arrareah, Atia and Kishoregunge subsidiary jails owing to their being employed in building the enclosure walls under the Public Works Department. The average cost of each prisoner fell from Rs. 189-10-2 to Rs. 178-1-8. The average number of prisoners, however, rose from 271·41 in 1886 to 310·04 in 1887; so that the total expenditure increased from Rs. 1,33,648 to Rs. 1,36,854. This includes an increase of Rs. 1,805 in the amount spent by the Public Works Department. The average detention of under-trial prisoners was 13·48 days. In Jamui, Fenny, Nowgong, Satkhira and Oolooberiah the detention of under-trial prisoners exceeded 20·50 days. This matter will be dealt with in the Judicial Department

24. Vital Statistics.—There was ample room during the past year in the Bengal jails for the convict population. In a few jails the number of under-trial prisoners exceeded the capacity of the under-trial wards, but in those cases the excess number was invariably removed to empty convict wards. The filtered water of the Bhagulpore water-works was introduced into the Bhagul-pore Central Jail in August 1887. The health of the prisoners in the Midna-pore Central Jail has much improved since river water has been used all the year round for drinking purposes. Filtered water from the Calcutta supply will shortly be introduced into the Presidency Jail. The rules regulating labour and the weight test have been strictly carried out. The dry-earth system is in force in every jail, and Dr. Warden, by an examination of the soils from different parts of the Presidency Jail garden, has shown that the growing of a rapid succession of crops completely removes all trace of chemical products likely to prove dangerous to health.

25. The sickness and mortality of convicts and under-trial prisoners in all classes of jails for the last ten years is compared in the following statement:—

YEARS.	Daily average number of prisoners.	Daily average sick.	Ratio p-r mille of daily average sick.	NUMBER OF DEATHS.			DEATH-RATES PER MILLE OF AVERAGE STRENGTH.
				From cholera.	From all other causes.	Total number of deaths.	From cholera.	From all other causes.	From all causes.
1878	18,611	803	43·1	215	1,073	1,287	11·5	57·6	69·1
1879	18,485	947	51·3	341	1,411	1,752	18·4	76·4	94·8
1880	17,402	941	53·8	31	1,100	1,131	1·7	61·4	63·1

1883	11,778	739	62·3	61	701	762	4·1	45·6	49·7
1884	14,808	724	48·8	63	678	740	10·5	45·7	56·2
1885	14,926	773	51·7	187	748	935	9·7	54·5	64·2
1886	14,579	648	44·4	40	543	583	1·7	31·4	33·1
1887	12,047	589	49·7	20	579	600	1·7	31·4	33·1
Total	1,08,514	7,826	49·3	1,163	8,519	9,682	7·3	53·7	61·0
Average	10,851	783	49·3	116	851	968	7·3	53·7	61·0

The death-rate from all causes is the smallest on record, while the death-rate from cholera is lower than in any year since 1880. Khoorna, Chumparun and Maldah show the largest proportion of admissions into hospital per mille of average strength. Khoorna is practically a hospital, only the sick and feeble being retained there, while healthy prisoners are passed on to Jessore. The Chumparun Jail is said to be on an unhealthy site; the warders and jail subordinates suffered severely. That the mortality did not exceed 33·5 per mille is to Dr. Bovill's credit. All the drinking and cooking water is carted from the river, six and a half miles away. In Maldah, also, there was much malarious fever, and the warder guard suffered as well as the prisoners, two of them dying. In Lohardugga there were 11 deaths among convicts, giving an annual death-rate of 98·8 per mille. It is reported by the Medical Officer that fully 45 per cent. of those admitted during 1887 were in bad health, and all more or less showed signs of scurvy. None of the prisoners who had passed any length of time in jail were attacked with it.

The following table gives the rates of admissions to hospital and deaths per mille from dysentery and diarrhoea for the years 1883 to 1887:—

			Rate of admission per mille.	Rate of death per mille.
1883	499·5	21·8
1884	515·5	19·7
1885	564·3	23·1
1886	444·4	14·1
1887	429·3	12·6

These are diseases considered to be preventible, and the table shows that they were combated with increased success in 1887. The number of deaths from anæmia and general debility show a remarkable falling off; and as the number of admissions into hospital under this head has not diminished proportionately, there appears to be no doubt that this is due, as suggested by the Inspector-General, to the working of the weight test and the stringent rules for the segregation and treatment of all these cases in their earliest stages. The following table gives figures from 1883:—

			Admissions into hospital.	Deaths.
1883	798	62
1884	693	70
1885	694	74
1886	565	47

The number of admissions and deaths from respiratory diseases diminished. Cerebro-spinal fever continued in the Alipore Jail, notwithstanding that all the recommendations of the Medical Committee on the subject were carried out. There was no overcrowding last year, and arrangements were made by which better ventilation was provided in the wards and workshops. The disease appears to be hardly amenable to treatment. There were 13 cases and 8 deaths in 1887 against 15 cases and 10 deaths in 1886. There were only 18 deaths from cholera, the largest number occurring at Rungpore Jail, at a time when it was very prevalent in the district.

26. The total number of deaths among convicts was 363, or 33·2 per mille, against 38·2 per mille in 1886. Of this number, 354 died in jails, of whom only 95, or 26·83 per cent., were received in good health, 148, or 41·81, in indifferent health, and 111, or 31·36, in bad health. 179 men died within six months of their admission to jail. The following are some of the precautions taken in regard to prisoners admitted into jail in indifferent health. Special gangs are formed, watched by all the jail authorities; tonics are administered; very light work, if any, is given; there is a special diet and mid-day rest of two hours; oil is also allowed to anoint their bodies. The following statement shows the extent to which prisoners discharged from jails in 1887 improved in health during their residence in jail:—

	1				2
	State of health on admission of those who were discharged from jail, as per column 2.				State of health on discharge of those who were discharged from jail, as per column 1.
	Good.	Indifferent.	Bad.	Total.	Good.	Indifferent.	Bad.	Total.
In 1887	23,053	7,978	2,390	33,421	23,479	6,411	1,520	31,410
Ratio per cent. to total number discharged from the jail	68·97	23·86	7·17	100·00	74·73	19·18	4·59	100·00

27. The death-rate for 1887 shown in the report has to some extent been affected by the Jubilee remissions. During January, September, October, November and December 1887, the average convict jail population was 11,711, and there were 209 deaths, giving an annual death-rate per mille of 42·8. The average convict jail population during the other seven months of the year came to 9,843, and there were 145 deaths, giving an annual death-rate per mille of 25·2. The death-rate, however, is very satisfactory compared with previous years. This is in some measure attributable to the fact that fever has not of late been so prevalent in a very fatal form as was the case some years ago, and that the general health of the population has appreciably improved. It is still, however, considerably higher than in some other provinces. The report shows clearly the strenuous efforts made to improve the health of the prisoners confined in Bengal Jails, and the marked success which has crowned these measures. Where deaths were due to diseases in any measure preventible and amenable to treatment, either the number of cases diminished, or the virulence of the disease was checked. Thus, though cases of intermittent fever increased, the rate of deaths to admissions into hospital fell from 6·7 in 1886 to 4·7 per cent. Another test of the efforts made and their success is given by the weightment results. In 1886 (the figures for 1887 are not available), of the prisoners discharged from the North-West Provinces Jails, 6,792 neither gained nor lost weight; 21,558 gained and 13,275 lost weight. In 1887 in Bengal 10,120 of those discharged had neither gained nor lost weight; 16,844 had gained and 6,461 had lost weight. In other words, in Bengal, 19·3 per cent. only lost weight against 31·8 per cent. in the North-West. Again, in Bengal, only 2·86 per cent. lost over five pounds, while the percentage in the North-West was 7·21. No measures, however, whatever room there may still be for improvement, appear to be capable of bringing the mortality of the Bengal Jails down to the standard of the North-West. While in Bengal Jails in 1887 no less than 54 deaths out of 399 were due to fever, and in 1886, 92 deaths out of 543; in the North-West Jails in 1886, only 32 deaths out of 463 were due to that cause, one proof among others that, unhealthy as parts of the North-West Provinces may be, the proportion of the population with constitutions broken down by repeated attacks of malarious fever is much smaller than in Bengal. Great credit is due to Dr. Lethbridge for what he has already done, and no doubt even better results will be obtained in the future, as the Superintendents of Jails learn thoroughly to make use of all the precautions prescribed by him in order that illness may be discovered and combated on its first showing itself.

28. Inspection.—Dr. Lethbridge visited 36 central and district jails; also 8 subsidiary jails. The official visitors continued to visit the jails regularly. A number of non-officials have lately been added to the list of visitors.

29. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the Inspector-General is able to report favourably on the work of almost all his officers. His special commendation of certain officers will be noted in the Appointment Department. Dr. Lethbridge has again earned the thanks of Government for the ability and good judgment he has shown in the administration of a difficult and important department.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

J. WAKE EDGAR,

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

REPORT ON THE WORKING OF THE LICENSED WAREHOUSE AND FIRE-BRIGADE ACT, 1883, IN THE TOWN OF CALCUTTA DURING THE YEAR 1887-88.

The 25th June 1888.—The following report is published for general information.

COLMAN MACAULAY,
Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 19, dated Calcutta, the 21st June 1898.

From—The Hon'ble SIR HENRY HARRISON, KT., Chairman of the Corporation of the Town of Calcutta,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Municipal Department.

I HAVE the honor to submit the following report, under section 30 of Act IV (B.C.) of 1883, of the jute screw and warehouses in the Town of Calcutta for the year ended 31st March 1888.

2. At the close of last year there were 69 sanctioned warehouses on the register within the limits of the Town. Four new licenses were issued during the year. These make up the total number of warehouses to 73. Of these, the licenses of three warehouses were cancelled during the year for default of payment of license fee, &c.; thus reducing the number at the end of the year to 70, of which a complete list, arranged according to the Acts under which they were originally licensed, is appended to this report.

3. Five applications were received during the year for licensing existing godowns for storage of jute. Of these, two have been sanctioned and three are under consideration.

4. Of the two applications which were mentioned in the last year's report as under consideration, the license for No. 135, Durmahatta Street, was sanctioned, and the application for No. 13-5, Hurro Chunder Mullick's Street, was refused by the Commissioners. Explanation. - Summary. - The normal means of air pressure and temperature are the arithmetical average or means of the readings during the same period for the last ten years. The humidity of the atmosphere is expressed as percentage, saturated air being represented by 100. A clear sky is denoted by 0 and an overcast sky by 10. The sun is denoted by 1. The numerical means or average of the rainfall in that district determined from the returns sent in by the sub-divisional stations for the period in question during the past year.

for the week ending Friday, the 22nd of June 1888.

CALCUTTA, the 26th June 1888.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL AND RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS
TAKEN IN ASSAM, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY, THE 22ND OF JUNE 1888.

The general meteorological conditions which had obtained over the province during the previous week have continued throughout the present week. Temperature has been excessive, pressure has been unusually low, humidity has been generally high, while except in North Bengal and Assam heavy rainfall has been almost absent, though a few light showers have been reported in all divisions except South Behar and Chutia Nagpur. The changes of meteorological conditions from day to day have been small, and have in no way altered the general character of the weather; and up to the close of the week the monsoon current from the Bay of Bengal had not found its way over Bengal, but it was still being deflected in an easterly direction and was giving heavy rain to Assam and Burma. The wind systems blowing in Bengal were practically unaltered throughout the week. Strong southerly winds were blowing at the southern stations, south-easterly winds in East Bengal, easterly and north easterly winds in Assam, North Bengal, and North Behar; while westerly and even north-westerly winds have been blowing in West Behar and Chutia Nagpur; and finally, south-westerly winds have been blowing in Orissa and at the neighbouring stations of South-West Bengal. This distribution has been practically the same as that which obtains during a great part of the hot season. At the head of the Bay winds have been strong, but elsewhere they have only been of moderate velocity.

A remarkable feature during the past one or two months has been the persistence of easterly winds at Akyab, wind frequently varying from east-south-east to north-east, and this would almost appear to show indraught towards the sea area off the Arakan and Pegu coasts. It may also possibly indicate the existence of a persistent feeble area of low pressure over this part of the Bay, which may be causing the monsoon to be deflected towards the Burma coast and the eastern districts generally, and which may also be possibly causing heavy rainfall in the Bay. The persistence with which heavy rain has been received in Burma during the week, while almost the whole of Bengal has been practically rainless, is shown in the following small table:—

Thus moderate to heavy rain has been received at almost every station in Burma from which reports are received on every day of the week, and at some stations between eleven and twelve inches has been received in this period.

Pressure.—The general variations of pressure throughout the week have been of the ordinary oscillatory nature, and for the whole week pressure has been below the normal. Taking into consideration only those stations from which reports have been received for a number of years, and which therefore yield reliable averages, pressure in Bengal has been below the normal by 0.06 inch. In Assam the defect has been almost similar, and it equals 0.061 inch. The general defect has been also fairly equally distributed, though the defect has been absolutely largest in South-West Bengal and smallest in Chutia Nagpur.

Temperature.—The most prominent feature of the whole week has undoubtedly been the excessive and anomalous record of temperature. In Chutia Nagpur the average temperature for the week has been no less than 13.2° in excess of the normal temperature as derived from the records of former years, while in South Behar the excess has equalled 10°. In South-West Bengal this excess has been 7.7°, and in Orissa 6.2°. North Behar shows an excess of 4.9°, while in North and East Bengal the excess has been from 2.5° to 3.7°. In Assam, on the other hand, temperature has been practically normal; that is to say, the excess temperatures have been confined mainly to the western and south-western districts. Extremely high maximum temperatures have also been generally recorded throughout the week at the western stations, and on most days several stations have recorded temperatures of 105° and upwards. The highest temperature actually recorded during the week was 113.6° at Gya. It must also be remembered that these excessive temperatures have been accompanied by decidedly high humidities at all stations except those in the extreme west of the province.

Rainfall.—The only rainfall of importance during the week in the province has been recorded in North Bengal, and this division has received an average of 2.33 inches. Though this fall is important, it is really only half as large as the normal fall for the period. The next largest fall is of half an inch in East Bengal, or about a tenth of the usual fall. Orissa, South-West Bengal and North Behar have received falls which vary from a little more than one-tenth up to about three-tenths of an inch, and the falls are generally about a tenth of the normal. In South Behar and Chutia Nagpur absolutely no rain has fallen during the week. In Assam the following amounts have been received:—Silchar 8.24 inches, Dhubri 7.96 inches, and Sibsagar 2.22 inches.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature and rainfall data of each of the seven meteorological divisions of the Province for the week ending Friday, the 22nd of June 1888 :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and Thermograph.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected approximately to those of the standard Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

MEMORANDUM.

THE table appended to this memorandum shows—

1. That during the month of April 1888 the deaths of 131,952 persons were recorded in the districts in Bengal among a population of 66,163,884, yielding a death-rate of 23·88 per 1,000 per annum against 21 per 1,000 in the preceding month and 22·80 per 1,000 in the corresponding month of the past year, indicating, as compared with both the periods, a fair advance in the number of deaths recorded.

3. That in comparison with the casualties of the corresponding month of the past year, the mortality from fever had increased to a noticeable extent, the death-rate from injury was stationary, and there were no noticeable differences in fatal results from the other diseases—vide figures given below:—
